CAN MARK TWAIN BE A LITERARY PIRATE?

London Publishers Accuse Him of Appropriating from a Volume on Shakespeare

AND DEMAND REPARATION

Won't Let His Book, "Is Shakespeare Dead?" Be Sold in Great Britain—Fuss Over an Error of Haste.

Mark Twain went to the offices of his publishers, Harper & Brothers, in Pearl Street, one day last Spring, and left some manuscript, asking that it be put into book form and published right away.

"It's part of my autobiography," explained the author, "but I thought I'd like to have it put in covers and printed now."

The publishers hurried matters, and it was not long before the manuscript assumed the form of Twain's latest book, "Is Shakespeare Dead?" The book, in a green cover, was put on the market in April.

The author admits that he incorporated in the book a larger part of a chapter from a volume called "The Shakespeare Problem Restated," written by George G. Greenwood, M. P., of London. It takes up 22 of the 150 pages in Mark Twain's book. The humorist mentioned Mr. Greenwood's book in his own work, but neglected to mention Greenwood's name. Because of this oversight there has arisen a bristling little controversy. Mr. Greenwood's publishers, the John Lane Company of London, with offices in West Thirty-second Street, this city, have sent word to Harper & Brothers that they will not permit Mark Twain's book to be circulated in England until the plates are altered, giving Mr. Greenwood the credit that they maintain should go to him. They have no power to prevent the sale here.

Verdict Against Shakespeare.

In his Shakespeare book Mark Twain puts forth the argument that Shakespeare could not have written the plays ascribed to him because the author must have been a lawyer. He arrives at this conclusion because, as he says, of the "peculiar freedom and exactness of legal phraseology" that, he finds, occurs frequently in Shakespeare's plays. There is nothing, he holds, to show that Shakespeare knew anything of law. Mark Twain reprints the chapter from Mr. Greenwood's book to bear out this theory, and it is this appropriation, without using Mr. Greenwood's name, that has caused the member of Parliament, through his publishers, to protest.

In Mr. Greenwood's book the chapter in question, entitled "Shakespeare as a Lawyer," is the thirteenth, while Twain uses it without change in his own book, with the same caption, as the eighth chapter.

At the bottom of the page on which the chapter starts there is the simple announcement: "From Chapter XIII. of 'The Shakespeare Problem Restated.'" Mr. Greenwood's publishers have written several letters to Harper & Brothers, in one of which they insist that for Mark Twain to ignore Mr. Greenwood was "a violation of all codes"—in other words, unethical.

What John Lane, head of the English publishing house, thinks of the situation is explained in this letter, sent from his office in London, over which he placed the caption "Literary Larceny."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dear Sir: A friend in Philadelphia has kindly sent me a copy of Mark Twain's recently published work, "Is Shakespeare Dead?" I find that of its 150 pages no less than 22 are taken bodily from "The Shakespeare Problem Restated," by G. G. Greenwood, M. P. It is true that he mentions the work, even commends it, but nowhere is there any reference made either to its author or to its publisher.

Publisher Not a Humorist.

Mr. Clemens is a humorist with a world-wide reputation. He can view a burglary at his own house with a Socratic detachment of unconcern sufficient in itself to discourage the American Bill Sikes. He can pin on his door or gate (I forget which) a notice giving directions to the cracksman as to the whereabouts of the plate basket.

I can do none of these things; they are foreign to my nature. I am not a humorist, I confesss it frankly, and I fail to see the point of this—Mark Twain's latest joke. Good taste sometimes limits the boundaries of humorous perception in this country.

Mr. Greenwood dryly remarked when he heard the compliment paid him: "Mr. Clemens may urge that he would not be one that 'filches from me my good name.'" But why not show a like consideration for my feelings as the publisher? The unwritten law, said, I believe, to be the only law popular in America, leaves no room for settlement. An author may filch whatsoever he pleases from a publisher, even his name, without any risk of conviction. It's the one compensation literature has to offer.

That there should be a class of American publishers addicted to the amiable pursuits of one of their National heroes we have become accustomed if not reconciled to; but that a distinguished man of letters should follow that lead fills me with pained surprise. Had Mr. Greenwood or I been applied to, we should have been proud to accord our permission.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Clemens and his publishers were entirely at the mercy of Mr. Greenwood and myself as regards the English edition of "Is Shakespeare Dead?" And the only claim that we can make to being humorists is that we have given the necessary powers without which at least one of Mark Twain's books would have been denied to Europe.

It is not to the law that I appeal—that protects Mark Twain—but to the courtesy that should exist between writers, distinguished or otherwise. I regret that Mr. Clemens should have taken advantage of the laws of his country instead of those of custom. If those laws permit a humorist to make demands upon another man's work no consideration—not even that of an assured position in the world of letters—should be allowed to stand in the way of his acknowledging his indebtedness just as if he were amenable to the same standards as the man in Grub Street.

Some weeks have elapsed since the matter to which this letter refers was brought to the notice of Mr. Clemens's publishers, and I presume he was informed of my protest, yet no word of apology or explanation has been vouchsafed to Mr. Greenwood.

It was probably a similar experience that prompted that eminent divine, Robert South, to write:

"Is my friend all perfection, all virtue, and discretion? Has he no humours to be endured?"

I am, yours faithfully. JOHN LANE.

What the Harpers Say.

When inquiry was made at the offices of Harper & Brothers yesterday one of those in authority made this explanation:

"Mr. Twain was in a great hurry to have the book printed. He gave the manuscript to us and said he was anxious to have us rush it as fast as we possibly could. There is a rule in this office that none of Mark Twain's copy shall be changed—not even a comma. He is al-

TARIFF BILL PUZZLES TAFT.

Tells Wool Men a Story Apropos of Intricacies of Schedules.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—President Taft confessed to a delegation of Ohio woolen manufacturers to-day that he has become bewildered by the intricacies of the tariff measure. The delegation of manufacturers was the seventh that has called in the last few days, and all of them have urged conflicting changes in the schedule as proposed in the Senate bill. The President threw up his hands to-day when the woolen men sprang a seventh suggestion, radically different from those made previously by other textile manufacturers.

"Gentlemen, gentlemen," he is reported to have exclaimed, "you remind me of an experience I had on my recent trip into the South. When passing through the mountains of Tennessee a Reception Committee boarded our car to accompany us to a town in which I was to speak. They were fine fellows, and the Chairman of the Committee was anxious to tell me all about the country. Our train was running along the bank of a beautiful stream, and I asked its name. The Chairman mumbled something that was unintelligible. I asked him to repeat it. Again he mumbled so that I couldn't catch what he said.

"'I beg your pardon,' I said, 'but, I didn't understand it. Will you spell it?'

"'Waal, I don't reckon as how I kin,' he replied. 'Some folks spells it one way; other folks spells it another, and still another folks spells it different. In my pore jedgement, Jedge, they ain't no correct way to spell it.'"

The President looked around the group laughingly, and added that while he was not prepared to admit he was quite so uninformed on the tariff he would confess that on some of the schedules the story explained his position fairly well.

NICHOLS DARTMOUTH'S HEAD.

Columbia Professor Chosen to Succeed President Tucker.

CONCORD, N. H., June 8.—Prof. Ernest Fox Nichols, former head of the department of physics at Dartmouth College and now Professor of Experimental Physics at Columbia University, was to-night unanimously elected President of Dartmouth, to succeed Dr. William Tucker, who resigned on May 12, 1907, on account of ill-health. This action was taken at a meeting of the Trustees of the college, held in this city to-night.

Prof. Ernest Fox Nichols is 40 years of age. He is a native of Leavenworth, Kan. He attended the Kansas Agricultural College, afterward taking a post-graduate course at Cornell, being graduated with the degree of Master of Science. After five years abroad at the Universities of Cambridge and Berlin he returned to this country and became a Fellow of Physics at Cornell.

Upon finishing this course Dr. Nichols was appointed Professor of Physics and Astronomy at Colgate University. He occupied this chair until 1898, when he was called to Dartmouth to become Professor of Physics. He was called to the chair of experimental physics at Columbia College in 1903.

Prof. Nichols's works in physics include many important discoveries, among these being the measurement of heat waves larger than any hitherto known and the measurement of heat radiation of the planets Jupiter and Saturn. He is the author of several papers and magazine articles on radiation and kindred researches contributed to American and foreign scientific periodicals.

He received the Rumford medal in 1904 and also the premium from the American Society of Arts and Sciences for his original work in radiation. Cornell University conferred the degree of D. Sc. on him in 1897. Dartmouth gave him the same degree in 1905.

POSED AS WOMAN TO GET JOB.

Negro Man Found It Easier—Worked as Servant for Years.

CHICAGO, June 8.—John Robinson, colored, found it easy to obtain employment as a woman, and has passed as a member of that sex for years, according to his testimony in the Municipal Court to-day.

Robinson found many avenues of employment closed to his race, but years ago concluded that the servant problem offered a solution of his own difficulties. He was young and presently abandoned male attire, and assumed the name of Jeanette Robinson.

He was employed as a domestic by various families, and was working in a west side residence when detectives discovered his secret. He was fined $85 and costs and ordered to resume the conventional dress of his sex.

OUTING MAGAZINE SOLD.

Receivers Dispose of It to Advertising Agent for $30,000.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 8.—With the approval of United States Judge George W. Ray, the receivers of the bankrupt Outing Publishing Company of Deposit, to-day sold the Outing Magazine to Thomas H. Blodgett, the Chicago advertising agent of the magazine, for $30,000. This magazine was considered to be the chief asset of the Outing Publishing Company. It was appraised by the receivers at $50,000.

Mr. Blodgett will continue the publication of the magazine. He will take possession on July 1.

The report of the appraisers of the bankrupt Knapp Brothers, private bankers of Deposit, show that they loaned to themselves personally near half a million dollars of the money deposited in their banks, and over half a million to the enterprises in which they were the principal stockholders, and which were under their management. Their loans aggregated $1,006,000, of which about $520,000 was to the Outing Publishing Company and the balance on notes of different members of the Knapp family.

Cleveland Leader Control.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 8.—The Cleveland Leader will to-morrow make the following editorial announcement:

"Under the terms of a contract just entered into with the Cleveland Leader Printing Company, this newspaper will hereafter be edited and published by Charles E. Kennedy, Nathaniel C. Wright and Harry S. Thalheimer, who, as publishers, will be in full control of its editorial and business policies."

ALDRICH SEES TAFT ABOUT TARIFF BILL

Alarmed Over Attacks and Possible Spread of Republican Senators' Hostility.

DISCUSS THE INCOME TAX

Will Try to Induce Supporters to Postpone Action Until Next Session or Scale Down Proposed Levy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Senator Aldrich held a protracted interview with the President at the White House to-day. On his return to the Capitol he held a number of mysterious conferences and then adjourned the Senate at 5:30 o'clock instead of recessing over the dinner hour and holding a night session. The greatest secrecy was observed about the White House visit and the subsequent conferences with Senators, but the knowledge of what had happened at the other end of the avenue caused a flutter of excitement among the insurgents.

In the opinion of Senators who were close to Mr. Aldrich after his return from his call on Mr. Taft, the Rhode Island leader was very nervous, walking about restlessly and talking to Senators Dixon, Jones, and other doubtful Senators as if under some kind of strain. That Mr. Aldrich did not wish his visit known was indicated in the way he alighted from a closed carriage at the main entrance of the White House instead of the Executive offices, where newspaper men are always on the watch.

The insurgents and several Senators not wholly allied with either branch of the split Republican Party believe that both Mr. Aldrich and the President are worried at the outburst of criticism against the Tariff bill in the last few days. This criticism has come from within the Senate, even within the Republican ranks, and from outside quarters. While the final passage of the bill is regarded as certain, the possibility of ten or more Republican Senators voting against the bill at the last is believed in certain quarters to have been the subject of discussion at the White House conference.

Hostility to the Bill.

A number of Republican Senators have already announced their determination to vote against the bill unless concessions are made, and others who were counted on, after the fight of the insurgents is over, to get back into line for the final passage of the bill, are becoming more and more hostile to the measure under the bitter comment the Senate leaders have passed on their Republicanism. What restrains some of them from the final opposing vote is the fear that the moral effect of such a course would be to turn the House over to the Democrats two years hence, and at the same time to weaken the party in the Senate. It is the fear of this same thing that is believed to be worrying Mr. Aldrich as the party leader and the President. After so many defeats, however, the insurgents are not hopeful that even such a threat will gain them concessions, while recent calls at the White House have disclosed nothing of the President's real attitude toward the bill.

Discuss the Income Tax.

One phase of the tariff situation that was discussed by the President and Senate leader was the income tax. Senator Aldrich gave the President to understand that he was in doubt of his ability to hold the situation in hand, and as a result of the discussion the Senate leaders are prepared to adopt a new plan. If they can they will induce the income tax supporters to postpone until next session all consideration of the matter, and if that is impossible, as Senator Aldrich gave the President to believe might well be the case, the scheme is to induce them to scale down the proposed tax so that the levy, if passed, will be as light as possible.

In furtherance of this plan Mr. Aldrich this afternoon saw Senator Dixon, who announced last night his intention of introducing an inheritance tax amendment, though the nature of the talk between the Senator from Rhode Island and the Senator from Montana could not be learned. Mr. Aldrich then saw other Senators in preparation for carrying out the plan.

At a previous meeting with the President, when the possible changes conferrees between the House and the Senate could make in a pending bill were under discussion, Mr. Aldrich explained at length that if any income tax were passed it would be within the power of a conference committee to modify the provision to the extent of making the tax one on corporate incomes or on inheritances, the only limitation, said Senator Aldrich, that the revenue to be derived must not exceed or fall below that of the tax voted originally.

This expression from Mr. Aldrich is taken to mean that he is casting about for an escape from the income tax, and it is known he and the conservative element of the Senate would, if they thought it possible, change the proposed income tax to any of the other kindred varieties of levy. On the other hand, it is known that any attempt to make such a change in conference will entail a heavy war with the supporters of the tax, who in the first place secured its passage through the Senate, while the House Republicans, particularly those from the Middle West, are eager for a chance to pass an income tax with which to salve the feelings of constituents who are inclined to be critical of the tariff features of the pending bill.

The adjournment to-night is taken to be for the purpose of holding informal conferences to ascertain just how far the leaders can go in the new policy they have agreed on. There was no meeting in the Finance Committee room.

Debate on the disputed wool schedule took up the day in the Senate, though no vote was reached. Debate will be continued to-morrow, Mr. Aldrich giving as a reason for the early adjournment that Senator Warren wished to speak on the subject after a night's rest. The explanation called forth a violent protest from Senator Clay of Georgia, but Senator Kean, who was in the chair, put the pending motion to adjourn while the Georgian was furiously pounding his desk, and the Chamber emptied, leaving Mr. Clay talking to a vacant hall.

"I protest that I have a right to be heard," he shouted, when Mr. Aldrich insisted that the motion be voted on without further debate. "The Senate has adopted an order of business recessing the body from 5:30 o'clock to 8 o'clock, and I insist that the order be observed. Mr. President," he bawled, as Mr. Kean put the motion, "I will pay my respects to the Chair to-morrow. The Chair has violated every precedent of parliamentary law."

After adjournment Mr. Kean, who has more personal friends on both sides than any other Senator, talked to Mr. Clay,

TAX RATE WILL GO UP

But the Increase, Says Mr. Metz, Will Be No More Than Normal.

Controller Metz declared yesterday that, contrary to the general impression that there will be a decided advance in the tax rate this year, the figure will not exceed the normal increase; that is, the rate will be about 1.67. Last year's rate was 1.61. A few weeks ago it was declared by the Tax Commission that this year's rate might be as high as 1.74.

The Controller made the announcement on the tax rate in connection with an itemized statement of the revenues of the General Fund for 1909, which he forwarded to the Board of Aldermen yesterday. It is on the basis of the receipts of this fund that the tax rate is computed on July 1. The figures for this year are $34,231,062, an increase of nearly $7,000,000 over those of last year.

At the same time the valuation on personal, real estate, and franchise taxes fell off this year. There was also a $16,000,000 increase in the budget. The Controller says, however, that if he had had another month to carry out the cleaning up of the arrearage books, he could have cut down the rate still more.

NEW MASSACRE REPORTED.

One Hundred Killed Following Executions, According to Berlin Paper.

BERLIN, June 8.—The Tageblatt's Aleppo correspondent states that the Turkish authorities last week executed twelve of the ringleaders, including six Armenians, concerned in the Adana massacres. The energetic course of the Government, the correspondent adds, caused the populace in the region between Alexandretta and the mountains to start a new massacre, in which about 100 persons were slain.

The Young Turk Committee did everything possible to prevent the disorders. They are in need of reinforcements, however, which as yet have not arrived. The situation occasions great anxiety, the agitators denouncing the Sultan as an infidel who has sold himself.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 8.—An imperial irade issued to-day confirms the sentences of death imposed by court-martial upon twelve Moslems and five Armenians for complicity in the massacres at Adana last April.

HOME OF SUFFRAGE LOOTED.

Only the Yellow Banners Left—No Clue to the Burglars' Sex.

Somebody who was described last night as "just too mean for words" broke into the headquarters of the National Progressive Woman's Suffrage Union at 122 East Twenty-third Street, yesterday, and stole everything of value except the banners inscribed with the slogan, "Votes for Women," which the stump speakers of the union use at street corner meetings and elsewhere.

Mrs. Sofia Lobinger, the Treasurer of the union, and her fellow-members of the Executive Committee, discovered the robbery last evening when they visited the headquarters for a meeting.

"It wouldn't be so bad," said Mrs. Lobinger later, "if we hadn't been burglarized less than six months ago. And to think that they took every solitary thing except our banners!"

Mrs. Lobinger said she estimated the loss at about $600, a Turkish rug worth $300 alone being included in the thieves' loot.

TO SAVE $100,000 A YEAR.

Division of Returns in Department of the Interior to be Abolished.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Carrying out the policy of economy adopted by the new Administration, it is declared unofficially that within a few days steps will be taken to abolish the division of returns in the Department of the Interior. By this means it is believed that $100,000 a year will be saved to the Government. The division of returns has been maintained as a check on all contracts awarded by the Departments of War, Navy, and Interior, and it has outgrown its usefulness.

A board appointed by President Roosevelt just before he went out office has been looking into the question of curtailing certain departments and abolishing a number of bureaus altogether, and this board is expected to file its final report this week. The division of returns was created by Congress in 1862, and Congressional action will be necessary to eliminate it. This will be asked at the beginning of the regular session in December.

DUSTLESS ROAD FOR JERSEY.

It Will Run from Trenton to the Seashore—Contracts to be Let Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, June 8.—New Jersey is to have a dustless road from Trenton to the seashore. Meetings of the representatives of Mercer, Monmouth, and Middlesex Counties with State Road Commissioner Gilkyson were held in Freehold on Monday and the plans were indorsed.

The State Commissioner said that he wanted a dustless highway in the interest of everybody who drove or of those who walked on foot. The matter will be formally acted on by the freeholders of the three counties on Friday.

It is the intention of Commissioner Gilkyson, if these plans go through, to advertise for bids next Tuesday for a dustless road of sand and asphaltum or some other good dustless material.

TORPEDO BOAT CONTRACTS.

Five New Vessels Are to Have the Speed of Express Trains.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Contracts were awarded at the Navy Department to-day for the construction of four speedy torpedo boat destroyers, and the contract for a fifth will be awarded to-morrow. The vessels will have the speed of express trains, the specifications calling for 29½ knots an hour. The successful bidders were the Bath Iron Works, Bath, Me., which will build one vessel for $659,500; the New York Shipbuilding Company, one at $648,000; William Cramp & Sons, Philadelphia, one at $637,000, and the Newport News Shipbuilding Company, one at $629,000.

The contract for the fifth boat will probably be awarded to-morrow to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Quincy, Mass., which has submitted a bid of $644,000.

The vessels must be completed, demonstrated, and delivered to the navy within twenty-four months. This holds good with all of them, with the single exception of the vessel to be built by the New York Shipbuilding Company, which must be ready within twenty-two months.

BLACK HAND LEADERS TRAPPED IN OHIO

Postal Agents Raid a Store in Marion Said to be Gang's National Headquarters.

NINE PRISONERS ARE TAKEN

In Two Different Towns—Arrests Follow Series of Dynamite Outrages in Cincinnati.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 8.—With the arrest of Samuel Lima, Joe Batella, and Sam Rizzio at Marion, Ohio, and six other suspects at Dennison, United States Secret Service men think they have caught the ringleaders of the Black Hand Society in this country. The officials making the arrests were Detectives J. F. Oldfield, R. M. C. Hosford, and E. F. Hutches, all attached to the office of Post Office Inspector Holmes of this city.

Several hundred letters were found concealed in Lima's home. The conspirators were alleged to have sent $3,000 monthly to Italy.

Post Office Inspector Charles Holmes of Cincinnati, who is in charge of the case, says his men discovered evidence showing that Marion is the headquarters of all the Black Hand societies of the country, and they allege that Lima is the head of the organization. In the safe in Lima's store was found evidence that hundreds of business men in all parts of the State and country had been paying tribute to the gang.

Inspector Holmes says that the gang was composed of Italians, and worked exclusively on its countrymen. He has obtained evidence that as late as two weeks ago it sent from the Marion Post Office money orders aggregating $1,900 to confederates in Italy, this being the division of blackmail funds in one case.

The arrests were made simultaneously to-day in the two towns after a search of six months for the men who sent threatening letters to John Amicon, a fruit dealer of Columbus, demanding that $15,000 be paid in Pittsburg. The handwriting in the letters to Amicon is identical with that in the letters received by Antonio Rizzo, a fruit dealer of Cincinnati, who died suddenly several weeks ago after refusing to obey the demand of a Black Hand letter to pay $1,000 or forfeit his life. He died after eating a banana given him by a stranger.

The men arrested to-day were charged with attempting to extort under the Federal statutes. The Black Hand gang recently ordered Fred Cianciolo, a Cincinnati fruit dealer, to give up $10,000 on penalty of death for himself and family if he refused.

Cianciolo gave no thought to the letters, and a few nights later a dynamite bomb was exploded in the doorway of his home. No one was injured, but an adjoining saloon was wrecked.

Joseph Annarino, a Cincinnati fruit dealer, was recently warned to give the Black Hand $10,000 or his child would be kidnapped.

Acting in harmony with the Government officers, the Pittsburg police recently entered a Black Hand headquarters there and made twenty-one arrests.

Several hundred Italians have collected in streets at Marion to-night, and the authorities fear an attempt will be made to release the men under arrest. The jail is closely guarded, and the militia is ready for immediate action. Rizzio and Batella were attempting to leave town when captured.

GUARD BLACK HAND WITNESS.

Fear for Safety of a Boy Accuser of Nineteen Prisoners.

FAIRMONT, West Va., June 8.—With the counsel table piled with knives, revolvers, and other paraphernalia of an alleged Black Hand society, nineteen Italians, arrested two months ago in a raid, were placed on trial to-day before Judge Mason in the Circuit Court.

Orazio Parabelli, 19 years old, whose initiation into the society caused the arrests, was the principal witness for the State. He testified that he was forced to join the organization, under penalty of death, and compelled to pay $25. He took the precaution, however, of first telling the District Attorney of the threats. Five marked five-dollar bills were then given to him, and he was advised to join the organization.

He identified nine of the nineteen prisoners as those who initiated him into the Black Hand organization, and said he knew the others as members of the society.

Young Parabelli was closely guarded against any possible attack.

BANKER TOD'S TENT GONE.

He Accuses Neighbor Lucas's Workmen of Taking It from Great Island.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUND BEACH, Conn., June 8.—J. Kennedy Tod, the New York banker, known here as "the Laird of Innis Arden," surprised Greenwich this morning by calling at Prosecuting Attorney H. B. White's office and demanding a warrant, on a charge of larceny, for employes of E. J. Lucas, a wealthy Mount Vernon real estate dealer, who has a country place in Sound Beach.

Mr. Tod asserted that Mr. Lucas had caused to be taken a large tent which Mr. Tod had placed on Great Island, which at low tide is close both to Innis Arden, Mr. Tod's place, and the Lucas estate.

The island belongs to the State of Connecticut, but Mr. Lucas is said to regard it as his property. Mr. Tod, whose estate is open to everybody, recently pitched a tent on the island, as a haven from storms for fishermen or picnickers. This morning he discovered that the tent was gone, and after an investigation hurried to Greenwich and applied for the warrant, which is now in Constable Palmer's hands.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE IN CHILE

Many Houses Destroyed, but No Casualties—Shocks Recorded Here.

VALPARAISO, Chile, June 8.—An earthquake occurred this morning at Copiapo, a small seaport on Copiapo Bay. The walls of numerous buildings were cracked and considerable other damage was done, but there was no loss of life.

SANTIAGO Chile, June 8.—According to advices received here, the earthquake at Copiapo was very severe. Many houses were destroyed, but there were few casualties, owing to the fact that the buildings at that place are very low. For a time the residents of the place were panic stricken.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—An earthquake, officially estimated as 4,000 miles away, about the distance between here and Chile, was recorded at the Weather Bureau to-day. The shock was well defined, and of moderate intensity, and began 57 minutes and 12 seconds after midnight.

For over an hour the disturbance continued, although, as stated by the Weather Bureau experts, "the amplitude of the oscillations was comparatively small."

HARRIMAN ARRIVES IN PARIS.

Tried to Get a Special Train at Cherbourg, but Failed.

At Cherbourg he tried to secure a special train to make the run to Paris, but failing in this he came on the regular boat train.

FOUR AUTOISTS DROWNED.

Machine Topples Into Sacramento River—Chauffeur Swims to a Boat.

KNIGHT'S LANDING, Cal., June 8.—Mrs. W. F. Dixon, Mrs. J. H. Dungan, Miss Merle Dungan, and Miss Julia Dungan of Woodland were drowned last night when their automobile toppled into the Sacramento River.

PASTOR PAYS $6,036 ALIMONY.

The Rev. C. T. Russell of Brooklyn Settles Litigation with His Wife.

PITTSBURG, June 8.—The long pending litigation between the Rev. Charles T. Russell, formerly of this city, but now of Brooklyn, N. Y., and his wife, Mrs. Maria F. Russell, was settled here to-day when counsel for the wife, who sued some time ago for a divorce, receipted on the dockets in the prothonotary's office for the payment of $6,036 alimony up to Sept. 1, 1913, $1,500 for counsel fees, and $60 costs.

Months ago the Rev. Mr. Russell removed all his property to Brooklyn, with the result that his wife obtained a writ of foreign attachment against it.

CHARGE DUBROVIN WITH LIBEL

Guchkoff, Octobrist Leader, Institutes Criminal Proceedings Against Him.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 8.—M. Guchkoff, leader of the Octobrist Party in the Duma, has instituted proceedings for criminal libel against Dr. Dubrovin, editor of the Znamya, the organ of the Union of Russian People, which printed an article alleging that money had been used in passing the Old Believers' law.

This reactionary organization seems to have fallen upon evil days, even its friends in the Government camp having deserted it. The demonstration against the Constitution, which the organization was planning to make at the celebration at Poltava on July 8, has been forbidden by the authorities.

H. E. DIXEY TAKES A BRIDE.

Actor Marries Miss Marie Norstrum, His Leading Woman.

Henry E. Dixey, the actor, returned to town last night from Milwaukee with a bride. She is Marie Norstrum, his leading woman.

The marriage was said last night to have taken place in Milwaukee, but at the Hotel Empire, where Mr. Dixey makes his home here, it was said that Mr. Dixey left word that he was not to be disturbed by inquirers.

"Is Mr. Dixey married?" was asked.

"Mr. Dixey will speak for himself to-morrow morning," was the reply.

Miss Norstrum has been Mr. Dixey's leading woman for several years. She was born at Fort Apache, Arizona, in 1886, and made her first stage appearance in 1904 with Mr. Dixey in vaudeville. Later she appeared as leading woman with Mr. Dixey in "The Passing Parent" and "The Man on the Box." Last season she again appeared with Mr. Dixey in vaudeville, but not in "Mary Jane's Pa," in which he is still starring.

Mrs. Kraus Leaves All Her Estate to a Devoted Lawyer.

Displeased by the marriage of her daughter, Adeline, to Lawyer O. B. Thomas, Mrs. Mary Gertrude Kraus, who died in St. Francis's Hospital on June 5, in her will filed for probate yesterday cuts off Mrs. Thomas from any interest in her estate and leaves it all to Franklin Quinby, a lawyer at 45 Franklyn Street, and who until a few days ago lived at 422 East 142d Street. He is also named as executor. The petition puts the value of the estate at $14,000.

"I give to my said executor absolute and discretionary power over my obsequies, with the right to dispose of my remains as in his judgment shall accord with my wishes, which I have fully expressed to him," says the will.

After providing that the funeral expenses shall be paid for out of her estate, the testatrix directs that "all the rest, residue, and remainder I give to my friend Franklyn Quinby in recognition of the faithfulness and devotion he has shown in my recent trouble arising out of the secret marriage of my daughter, and the events both anterior and subsequent to the same."

Mr. Quinby, the beneficiary, could not be found last night. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, who live at the Lorraine did not care to discuss the will.

PAY $10,250,000; END SUGAR SUIT

Trust Gives $2,000,000 Cash, Cancels $1,250,000 Loan, and Returns $7,000,000 Securities.

TRIAL STOPS SUDDENLY

Pennsylvania Sugar Co., Which Sued Under Sherman Law for $30,000,000, to Open Again.

WAR ON THE COMBINE NOW

Independent Co. Will Use Cash Obtained from Its Big Rival to Resume Business—Negotiations Were On During the Trial.

Two millions dollars in cash, the return of $7,000,000 par value of securities held as collateral, and the cancellation of a loan of $1,250,000 more was the price which the American Sugar Refining Company agreed last night to pay in settlement of the suit brought against it by the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company under the Sherman Anti-Trust act. The suit was brought to recover $30,000,000, being the triple damages allowed by the statute, on the charge that the Sugar Trust, its counsel, John E. Parsons, and Gustav Kissell, a broker, had conspired to wreck the Pennsylvania Company through the medium of a well-concealed loan deal. The case has been on trial before Judge Holt, in the United States District Court, for two weeks, but was stopped suddenly yesterday, when the lawyers got together for a final settlement in negotiations which it was learned had been on for some time.

This settlement of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company's suit comes immediately on top of the payment by the Sugar Trust to the United States Government of $2,000,000 in cash as the amount out of which the United States had been cheated through the use of fraudulent scales on the sugar-weighing piers in Brooklyn. Hence there has been a double interest in the suit, both because the damages demanded were among the largest ever asked in litigation in the Federal courts here and because the method by which the Sugar Trust undertook to put its Philadelphia rival out of commission were lined up beside those which were employed on its Brooklyn piers to cheat the Government out of millions of customs duties.

The Hipple Tragedy.

There was, moreover, an element of personal tragedy behind the Pennsylvania company's suit, for the closing down of the new plant which Adolph Segal had built for it to compete with the Sugar Trust, and consequent depreciation of its securities, was one of the contributing causes in the downfall of the Real Estate Trust Company of Philadelphia, whose President, Frank Hipple, committed suicide when the exposure came. The suit just settled was instituted through the Real Estate Trust Company as holder of large amounts of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company's securities, although it was brought in the name of the corporation.

The state of facts out of which the suit developed dates back to 1903, when Segal built the new plant of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, and then, after tying up $2,600,000 out of $5,000,000 of its stock in a voting trust, wanted to borrow $1,250,000 for some of his ventures and pledged this stock along with a big block of the concern's bonds and various other collateral as security for the loan. Segal had been in negotiation with a syndicate of Philadelphia capitalists for a loan of $1,000,000, and thought the terms they asked too hard. So, when Gustav Kissell approached him, asking merely that during the pendency of the loan the holder of the collateral should name the Directors of Segal's sugar company, he readily assented.

The rest of the story is quickly told. Kissell was acting under the explicit authorization of the Sugar Trust; he named as Directors himself and three clerks, who voted not to open the plant until the loan was paid. The plant was accordingly locked up, and has remained so ever since. Receiver George H. Earle of the Real Estate Trust Company dug out the facts with his lawyers, John W. Hutchinson and William De F. Junken, and subsequently brought in ex-Gov. Frank S. Black and H. Snowden Marshall, while Samuel Untermyer, on behalf of certain bondholders, also joined in the attack.

Negotiations During the Trial.

It appears now that negotiations for a settlement have been going on during nearly the entire pendency of the trial before Judge Holt. The defense, which summoned to its rescue John G. Johnson of Philadelphia, John G. Milburn, Henry W. Taft, William D. Guthrie, and H. B. Closson, among other legal talent, began some time ago with an offer to return the securities which went up as collateral to the loan, thus restoring the plant to its own security holders, and to pay in addition $750,000, besides canceling the loan itself.

This offer was refused because the cash consideration was deemed far too small, and because it carried with it a stipulation that a suit which the Real Estate Trust had brought against Kissel individually should also be included in the settlement. The figure remained at $750,000 until Judge Holt, following the close of the presentation of testimony yesterday, denied a motion to dismiss the complaint and declared that the evidence, which stood uncontradicted, must go before the jury. This left the defense in a dangerous position, for the jury under the Sherman act might fix the damages at any sum it chose up to the maximum of $10,000,000 claimed, and then the Sugar Trust would be mulcted three times the amount so fixed under the triple penalty clause in the act.

So the conferences were again taken up, and early in the evening the terms of the settlement were reached, on the understanding that the matter relating to Mr. Kissel personally will be taken up later and negotiated in connection with the final adjustment. It was learned last night that the controlling interests in the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company will at once make plans to place their plant in operation, acquiring as they do from the Sugar Trust itself $2,000,000 working capital with which to start their competition with the trust. The [illegible] to this end will be the unseating of Kissel and his four dummy Directors in the board of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, and the election of men to succeed them who will represent the stockholders of the concern.

The Trial Stops Suddenly.

News that a settlement was in process of negotiation brought the big case to a sudden stop yesterday after the defense had lost its motion to dismiss the complaint as to the claim of a conspiracy and the claim for damages. It had been supposed earlier in the day that after ex-Gov. Black had finished with his last witness, who was Wallace P. Willett, the founder and publisher of The Sugar Trade Journal, the defense would go on with a long array of witnesses. Much interest had centred in the prospect of the cross-examination of John E. Parsons, the veteran counsel of the Sugar Trust and a defendant, by ex-Gov. Black, but this was not to be in store for those who had followed the case.

Mr. Parsons did not take the stand, nor did any one else, on behalf of the defense, but Mr. Willett, who was apparently accepted as an expert by both sides and was examined merely on the quotations which his journal published of the price of refined sugar during the period covered by the complaint, did testify. But during the examination of Mr. Willett by ex-Gov. Black there had come out the list of refineries owned by the Sugar Trust as the witness knew them. This was the list that Mr. Black tried so hard to get into the record on the preceding day, but without success, and one that stockholders of the Sugar Trust have spent much time in trying to get from the management.

As named by Mr. Willett the list runs: Two refineries in Brooklyn, the Havemeyer and Elder Refinery in South Fifth Street, and another not operated since its acquisition by the trust; one in Jersey City, two in New Orleans, two in Boston, one each in St. Louis, San Francisco, and Philadelphia; one in Baltimore, not operated since 1904, and one in Camden, N. J., not operated since the trust obtained control of it. Mr. Willett was of the opinion that one of the two Boston refineries was closed and that the Philadelphia refinery was also closed. He told Mr. Black that the entry of a new refinery into the field always resulted in a drop in the price of sugar, and cited the case of the Yonkers refinery as one in point.

Judge Holt excused the jury as soon as Mr. Milburn was through with the brief defense, and then, when the lawyers and the Judge met in the afternoon, Mr. Taft took up the argument for the dismissal of the complaint. He urged that the evidence did not bear out the facts alleged in the complaint, and that at best the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company was insolvent and unable to conduct an inter-State business in refining sugar when the loan to it was made. The fact that the old company went out of business and a new one was organized, whose prospective profits after it had built a plant were made a basis for the claim of damages, was dwelt on by Mr. Taft as further reason why the court should dismiss the complaint.

Mr. Guthrie then moved that the complaint be dismissed as against Gustav Kissel, his client, on the ground that there was no evidence showing that Kissel was a party to the conspiracy. Francis H. Kinnecutt made the same motion with respect to Kissel's clerks, Walter D. Robinson, George L. Twigg, and Morris J. Werner, who become co-defendants in the action and had been dummy Directors of the Pennsylvania company while it was under Sugar Trust domination.

Ex-Gov. Black consented to the dismissal of the complaints as regards the three clerks, but not as against the other defendants, and Judge Holt held with him that the case against the Sugar Refining Company, Mr. Parsons, and Mr. Kissel must go to the jury. Mr. Milburn then gave the first intimation that a settlement was likely, saying that the lawyers would report to the court in the morning on that point. Then an adjournment was taken, and the lawyers again took up the negotiations looking to a settlement.

SMALL FIRE ON THE YALE.

Stateroom Bedding Was Set Afire by Passenger's Cigarette.

Excitement was caused early yesterday on the Boston steamship Yale as she was coming down the Sound by smoke coming out of a stateroom on the upper deck. Mate Joseph L. Groves, passing the room, saw a blaze through the shutters of the upper part of the door.

Breaking into the stateroom, Groves found the bedding afire in the lower bunk and Louis B. Metcalf of 108 University Road, Brookline, Mass., a passenger, asleep with a half-smoked cigarette in his hand. The mate dragged the man into the corridor and beat out the flames with a blanket taken from the upper berth.

The ship's surgeon dressed Metcalf's burns and a wireless message was sent to this city for an ambulance to meet the Yale at her pier.

He was not badly burned.

To Fight the Building Code Revision.

The Greater New York Taxpayers' Conference passed resolutions yesterday condemning both the majority and the minority reports of the Building Code Revision Commission on the ground that they unnecessarily increase the cost of building material. A committee was appointed to represent the conference at the hearing on the new code before the Aldermen's Buildings Committee this afternoon.

LOEB CUTS SALARIES IN THE CUSTOM HOUSE

Seventy-three Good Republicans Must Serve Uncle Sam for Less Pay.

WAIL FROM THE LEADERS

And This After All We Did for Taft! —G. A. R. Preparing to Resolute—But Economy Is Prevailing.

There is wailing and gnashing of teeth in the local Republican organization as a result of the vigorous swinging of the official axe of Collector Loeb in his effort to purify the Custom House at this port. Yesterday Congressman Herbert Parsons, President of the New York County Republican Committee; Congressman William S. Bennet, Republican leader of the Nineteenth Assembly District and one of the most important cogs in the Parsons machine as well as a much-talked-of candidate for Mayor on the Republican ticket, joined hands with Congressman William M. Calder of Brooklyn in registering a protest with the Collector against the recent sharp reductions in the salaries of customs employes under his jurisdiction.

The entire New York delegation in Congress, it was said yesterday, would join in this protest and would lodge a complaint with President Taft, with whose approval the reductions ordered by Collector Loeb were made. The reductions followed a conference on Sunday afternoon between Collector Loeb and James B. Reynolds, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Reynolds is a New Yorker, too. He started out as a settlement worker and a reformer. Later he became President Roosevelt's special agent in the Packingtown investigations. He was active in the Taft campaign.

The reductions have affected in all seventy-three employes of the New York Custom House. Many of the men who have been reduced are active Republican workers in their Assembly districts. The local machine has been hit as hard by the axe of Collector Loeb as it possibly could have been if the office were occupied by a Democratic appointee of a Democratic President. Collector Loeb's office in the Custom House was overrun yesterday by district leaders who were doing their best to have constituents who had been "demoted," put back again on their old grades of salary.

Of the "demoted" men twenty-eight were day inspectors, who have been earning $1,825. They have been reduced to $840 a year. Thirty were night inspectors, who have been reduced from $1,460 a year to $720; fifteen were assistant weighers, who have been getting $3 a day, but now will get $660 a year.

Many of the men so reduced are civil war veterans and members of G. A. R. posts. It was said that Collector Loeb, when he made this move, fully realized that he would be denounced by Grand Army posts all over the country. These bodies, in fact, are already preparing to adopt resolutions registering their protest against the docking of their comrades.

The move of collector Loeb, following so closely on the appointment of a Commissioner of Immigration over the head of Thomas W. Whittle, who was the candidate of the Republican organization, has aroused a great deal of feeling among local Republicans. Already the leaders are beginning to express the fear that it will have a disastrous effect on the municipal campaign.

President Taft received a larger majority in this State than even Roosevelt, though Col. Roosevelt was a native of this State and a popular idol. The organization leaders feel that under these circumstances the President, at least, should consult the leaders of the local organization before letting salaries be cut. Both in appointing the Commissioner of Immigration and in consenting to the more recent actions of Collector Loeb, it is declared, the President has ignored the local machine altogether.

The move of Collector Loeb in ordering the wholesale reductions in the Custom House has caused a great deal of speculation and given food for thought to the lesser fry of politicians in the Republican organization, some of whom have looked upon his actions as a first step in an organized effort to break down the present machine and build up a new organization. This view is not shared by men of influence and position in the Republican organization. One of these said yesterday:

"These actions on the part of Collector Loeb hit the Republican organization hard—very hard, indeed. It is a bitter pill for us to swallow after what we did for Taft in the last campaign. It's enough to make any body lose heart, lose interest in the game! But I have seen no indication that there is any politics in what Mr. Loeb has done. If there was, I would know it. I am quite convinced that he has been actuated by nothing except a desire to purify and render the Customs service more efficient and to bring about economy."

and, they parted without any show of feeling.

Against High Duty on Wool Tops.

The woolen debate centred on the old question of classification. Mr. Dolliver asserted vigorously that the high duty on wool tops was out of all proportion to the rest of the schedule, and that it put the card wool manufacturers, who use tops as raw material, entirely at the mercy of their rivals, the worsted makers, who control tops and other wastes as by-products of their regular manufactures.

Mr. Dolliver introduced several amendments which were not considered in detail, the general effect of which was to lower the duty on tops to 20 cents, to assessing wool according to the amount of shrinkage, and to levy the duties on the scoured wool value in the wool. He completed his system of reduction by a final proviso that none of the specific duties imposed, some of which have frequently exceeded 200 per cent., should under any circumstances exceed 100 per cent.

Mr. Dolliver's contentions aroused strong opposition from Senators Carter, Warren, Heyburn, and Smoot, and as soon as Mr. Dolliver was well under way the debate, technical as it was, became a running fire between the five men, Senator Nelson occasionally interposing in Mr. Dolliver's behalf. The proviso limiting the duty to 100 per cent., said Mr. Smoot, would remove the bulk of the protection accorded the sheep farmers at the very time they need it most—when wool is so cheap that the specific rate of 11 cents exceeds the value of the wool to be protected.

"The Tariff bill," went on Mr. Dolliver, "is so framed that its face has a malevolent look to the country. As the people who have appeared advocating changes, I can't find anybody who appeared before the committee except our friends the worsted people, and a few habitual witnesses who hang around the committee room like professional jurymen around the courts."

Mr. Dolliver said that certain of the woolen paragraphs like that on clothing give "an ugly advertisement" to the American tariff laws. He denied that he wanted any extraordinary reduction, but "just enough to enable a man with a good conscience to defend the system before the country."

Late in the afternoon Mr. Heyburn, whose speeches on economic subjects have caused the Republican leaders whom he follows some uneasy amusement, took the floor.

"If it is necessary to keep out foreign competition," he shouted, in reply to a question from Mr. Cummins, "I would vote a rate of 1,000 per cent."

"Then where would our revenues come from?" asked Senator Nelson.

"Oh, we can always count on the vanity of people who would pay anything to have a foreign label or foreign coat of arms on their purchases," answered Mr. Heyburn carelessly.

"You had better vote for the income tax," answered Mr. Nelson as he sat down.

Newspaper Publishers' Hearing.

Representatives of newspaper publishers, headed by John Norris, Chairman of the Committee on Paper of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, will have a hearing at 9:30 o'clock to-morrow before the Senate Finance Committee. The committee has thus far taken no action on the question of wood pulp and print paper, and the differences of opinion in the Senate have been so great that the outcome of a vote could not be foretold.

The action of the House on this subject is regarded as the equivalent of free wood pulp and free paper.

Paper manufacturers in the United States have insisted that they would be driven out of business by the House provision, and have demanded the continuance of the protection given by existing law. Some of the members of the Senate were inclined to fix a rate of $4 a ton on print paper, which is a $2 decrease from the present rate. When communicated to the members of the Newspaper Publishers' association, this rate was declared to be unsatisfactory. Another hearing was then ordered.

On the questions of wood pulp and print paper, coal, oil, and hides, the Senate committee has determined to canvass the sentiment of the Senate before making recommendations.

MISS GOLDMAN TALKS IN FREEMAN'S BARN

Police Keep Her from Public Hall and Stand Beside Her in the Stable.

CURIOUS THRONG PRESENT

Big Audience in and Outside the Barn—She Raps the Police and Says We're Getting Russianized.

Emma Goldman, although she was thwarted by the police of East Orange, N. J., under the leadership of Mayor Cardewll and a delegation of leading citizens and Police Chief Bell from speaking in English's Hall last night, had a triumph nevertheless. With a band of distinguished adherents, including Ferdinand P. ("Affinity") Earle, she drove to the stable of Alden Freeman and there by the light of oil lamps, standing on a chair, she delivered the address on the modern drama which New York police had suppressed, and that, too, right in the most fashionable section of East Orange.

Close upon 1,000 persons must have listened to her, for the stable was so jammed with people that Chief of Police Bell was crowded right up against her chair. The yard of Mr. Freeman's place outside was black with people, and evidently there were well-known citizens among them, for in the road behind the house many automobiles were parked.

In the course of her speech she said many bitter things against the police, "useless ornaments of society," as she called them; she lauded high as a great drama—as the greatest American drama—"The Easiest Way," and when some one derisively asked her "How about 'Uncle Tom's Cabin?'" she cited the words of Justice Dugro to the effect that a negro could not be entitled to as much damage for injured feelings as a white man, by way of showing that the book had not yet served its purpose.

When Miss Goldman decided to give her address, "The Drama as the Strongest Disseminator of Radical Thought," she engaged English's hall, in East Orange, and gave him $5 to seal the bargain. Then the Mayor brought pressure to bear, and Mr. English tried to withdraw. Miss Goldman wouldn't take back her $5, and said she would see about it. She said it in such a way as to put the police on their mettle.

Fifteen of them, with the Chief and Mayor Cardwell, were on hand early last night in English's restaurant, to be ready for a surprise.

So when Mr. Freeman, meeting the Anarchist at the station, arrived on foot at the hall with Mr. Earle, Alexander Berkman, Leonard Abbott, Manager Reitman, and others, at the same time that Miss Goldman drew up in front of it in Mr. Freeman's carriage, the place was well defended.

Miss Goldman made one sally. She pushed through the little crowd, followed by the men of her party, and advanced directly against the chests of the police force. The chief and his men stood like a stone wall. Mr. Freeman then announced that the lecture would be given in his barn, and that all were welcome. All moved thither, including the police force.

When Miss Goldman pushed into the stable she could only find room to stand by making the people crowd closer together. There was not even an extra inch, so far as any one could see by the light of the oil lamps on the empty wagons inside and outside the stable, and hundreds crowded about the doors, scores about the windows. Every one cheered and whistled, and some without cried: "Come to the door so's we can see you." Then Mr. Abbott got to the chair, and read a sort of manifesto on the constitutionality of free speech, which he said many distinguished people had signed.

Then Mr. Freeman, amid considerable whistling and applause, read by the dim oil lamplight a eulogy of Thomas Paine, who died 100 years ago yesterday, and after it introduced Emma Goldman as:

"The most conspicuous agitator for freedom of thought and speech in America—and I am glad that East Orange has this chance to observe that Miss Goldman has neither hoofs nor horns, and does not ride on a broomstick."

Loud cheers and laughter followed this, and the cheers mingled with loud whistles from without as Miss Goldman took the chair.

"As I drove here," she said in a piercing voice, "it came to me that those Russians battling for freedom could not have believed possible what happened in your town to-night. They think this country is the cradle of liberty—they do not believe such things happen here at all. But America is gradually coming to Russian conditions—she is nearing them faster all the time."

Here there came more cheers and whistles, and Miss Goldman entered on her subject, and the people without the dim-lit barn pressed forward, and Chief Bell took his place by Miss Goldman's chair.

But here the noise from without so increased that one of the audience got to his feet and said sententiously: "I for one would be very glad if the people who don't want to hear would disperse; the police are here—they might disperse them."

"Not the police," said Miss Goldman; "they would make more confusion in one minute than they could stop in five years." More cheers and laughter, followed by comparative silence, which enabled Miss Goldman to point out how all the most radical plays she could think of had wakened up "the sleepy brains of people" to thought.

SMITH SHOT AND SAILED AWAY

Didn't Wait to See if Bradley Was Dead, He Tells the Court.

The suit brought by Capt. Walter Smith of the schooner Cleveland, who shot and killed Game Warden Guy M. Bradley in Florida waters on July 8, 1905, to recover $50,000 from Collier's Weekly as damages for libel contained in an article published in that magazine on April 21, 1906, was continued yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Gerard and a jury.

The article was headed "Bird Protection's First Martyr. A True Story," and told how Smith and his sons were continually breaking the game laws, and of threats made against Bradley by Smith for interfering with them. It went on to describe the shooting, and concluded by saying that the Grand Jury failed to indict "the murderer."

Capt. Smith's cross-examination was continued by John F. Fenlon, counsel for Collier's Weekly. His story as told on his direct examination on Monday was gone over in detail. He had said that Bradley drew his pistol and fired the first shot, the bullet burying itself in the mast behind which he (Smith) was taking shelter.

"How did the bullet go through him?" asked Mr. Fenlon.

"I don't know," replied Smith.

Q. Do you know where you hit Bradley? A. I know I hit him in the breast, all right.

Q. You were behind the mast? A. I picked up my gun when he drew his pistol, jumped behind the mast, and then shot him.

Q. Was your body protected by the mast? A. It was.

Q. Did he speak after he was shot? A. Not a word.

Justice Gerard then took a hand in the examination.

"And you left him there in the boat and sailed off—all of you?" he inquired.

"Yes," replied Smith.

Q.—And did not wait to see if he was dead? A.—No, but I kept my view on him. I thought maybe he was crouching and might get up.

It developed that in February, 1905, a petition was drawn up, before the shooting, asking Smith to leave the town of Flamingo within twenty days, and that the petition was read to him. Bradley was one who signed it. Smith asserted that some of the signatures to it were forgeries.

She Wants $100 a Pound.

Through Randolph Perkins, a Jersey City lawyer, Katherine Plunkette of Elizabeth, N. J., who on Oct. 8, 1908, weighed 600 pounds and was a freak in a show in Newark Avenue, Jersey City, is suing the Public Service Railway Company of New Jersey for $20,000. She is known as "Cherry."

On Oct. 8 last, when about to board a trolley car in Elizabeth, she was thrown to the street and injured. She says she has lost 200 pounds, and fixes the price of her loss at $100 a pound. The case will be moved for trial in a few days in the Supreme Court in Jersey City.

HE WAS FAITHFUL TILL DEATH

But After Old Sweetheart's Suicide Hauser Took to the River.

In his native village in Southern Germany half a century ago Fritz Hauser fell in love with the village belle and spent much of his time at her home, bringing her presents and watching her as she worked at the spinning wheel. Presently, however, there came a dapper youth from one of the near-by cities, and Fritz, broken-hearted, watched his sweetheart slowly transfer her affections to the newcomer, whose good looks and manners fascinated her.

The young villager, when he found that he had lost his place in the affections of his former sweetheart, went into the army to serve out his time, as every good German must do. Then he came to this country, got a position, and prospered fairly well. Faithful to the memory of his sweetheart, however, he never married. The years went by and he became middle aged.

Then one day he met a Mrs. Martha Ackerman, whose husband and nine children had all died, leaving her alone. Hauser recognized something familiar about her, and presently discovered that she was the sweetheart of his boyhood days in Germany. Mrs. Ackerman was almost destitute, and when she took three little rooms at 207 West Twenty-ninth Street, Hauser went to board with her there, adding his pittance to hers.

That was nearly twenty years ago. Ever since then Hauser, who was an ironworker, had boarded with Mrs. Ackerman, practically supporting her with his earnings. The couple did not marry, however. Both had grown old, and they were content to live near each other, sharing their joys and sorrows. So they might have gone on living till death dissolved the partnership had Hauser retained his health and ability to work.

But he was more than 60 years old a year ago, when he found himself falling rapidly behind his companions on the dangerous jobs to which his calling of an iron worker led him. At last he failed to make good, and when the next pay day came around his young boss told him as kindly as might be that after that week his services would not be needed longer.

Hauser was hard hit, but he braced up and pattered around the neighborhood looking for such jobs as he could pick up. His unfailing good humor and fine courage got him work when a man better fitted for it might have failed, and for a year old Hauser eked out a living for himself and the sweetheart of his boyhood. Rent days came around, however, when the old man could not command even the small sum required to keep the three little rooms. He faced this difficulty as he had done others, however, telling his landlord that next week would see better times, and the landlord pretended to believe him.

When the rent came due on the first of this month, however, Hauser could not meet it, nor take up any of the $56 previous indebtedness to his landlord. He brooded over the debt, and, although he did not tell Mrs. Ackerman, she guessed what was troubling him, and determined to relieve her old sweetheart of one expense at least.

It was on the afternoon of June 1 that Hauser saw Mrs. Ackerman pass his room on the way to the bathroom. He asked her if anything was the matter, and she replied that she wanted a drink of water. The old man returned to bed and did not awaken for several hours. When he did and went into the front room he missed Mrs. Ackerman.

Going to the kitchen he found her lying dead on the floor with gas flowing full force from a tube extending from the gas jet. For two hours old Hauser sat beside the body before he called in the neighbors and told them what had happened. Friends agreed to look out for the necessary things in connection with the burial, and Hauser went out, saying he would take a walk.

He never returned. That night the neighbors sat up waiting for him, then sent the body of Mrs. Ackerman to the Morgue. The next day passed without Hauser returning, and his friends decided that, tired of the struggle, he had gone to some institution.

Yesterday the body of a man was found floating in the North River at the foot of Seventy-ninth Street. It was carried to the Morgue, where Policeman Burfiend, who is stationed there, searched it. In a pocket of the dead man's coat the policeman found a scrap of paper on which was scribbled in German this note:

> My name is F. Hauser of 207 West Twenty-ninth Street. I lived there with Mrs. Martha Ackerman and supported her when she could not work any more. I have not had any work for the last eight months. There are seven months' rent due and we must move. We have not enough money even for that purpose. For that reason I am sick of life. Good-bye, dear old New York. No one wants me now, although I was formerly a much sought after man. I am 67 years old and a veteran of two wars.

The wording of the note makes it apparent that Hauser wrote it before the suicide of Mrs. Ackerman. Despite this, however, he had lived and helped her until she died.

CAN MARK TWAIN BE A LITERARY PIRATE?

ways very particular about that, and his wishes are respected.

"So the manuscript, exactly as he gave it to us, with the title, 'Is Shakespeare Dead?' was put into book form as quickly as we could do it.

"No one thought of looking particularly to see if Mr. Twain had given credit to Mr. Greenwood. It was noticed that the book itself was credited, and that seemed sufficient. Later on, when the John Lane Company called our attention to it, we learned that Mark Twain had failed to speak of Mr. Greenwood. We felt very sorry about it then, but it was too late to recall the edition. We don't put the blame on Mark Twain exactly. Of course, if we had noticed the omission we would have called his attention to it. Quite likely it escaped his notice, as it did ours. He didn't mean to be unethical."

The correspondence that passed between the John Lane Company and Harper & Brothers was shown to THE TIMES reporter. It began with a letter written by the Harper firm on March 29, saying that Mark Twain had written "a little bit of a book called 'Is Shakespeare Dead?' largely devoted to advertising George Greenwood's book, 'The Shakespeare Problem Restated.'" The letter went on to say that "in this little monograph Mr. Clemens wishes to use nine pages from Mr. Greenwood's book, as this forms the basis of his praise." A postscript says: "Of course, we are writing at Mr. Clemens's request."

The John Lane Company, through its manager, Rutger Bleecker Jewett, replied to this letter, giving permission to Mark Twain to quote from Mr. Greenwood's book as much as he pleased, but it was in Mr. Jewett's mind, he said yesterday, that Mark Twain would not neglect to mention Mr. Greenwood's name. Shortly after the book was put out Harper & Brothers received another letter from Mr. Jewett, this one in a different tone.

"Is Shakespeare Dead?" had found its way to London, and Mr. Greenwood had seen a copy of it.

They Were Indignant.

In his letter Mr. Jewett wrote that Mr. Greenwood and Mr. Lane, the publisher, were "both justly indignant" that Mr. Twain had refrained from using Mr. Greenwood's name in connection with the liberal passages taken from the latter's book. "They have refused to allow Mr. Clemens's book to be imported into England," he added. In reply, Harper & Brothers explained that they had intended making formal acknowledgment to Mr. Greenwood in a prefatory note in Mark Twain's book, but that it was overlooked in the rush.

"We may say," the letter continued, "that at the author's request this book was issued more hurriedly perhaps than any volume we have ever published. Only eighteen days elapsed between the time we received the manuscript and the appearance of the finished book."

Harper & Brothrs added that a new edition of the book was forthcoming, and that it would be sure to have a reference to Mr. Greenwood.

The next day Mr. Jewett wrote back to Harper & Brothers, saying:

"We note from your admissions that Mr. Greenwood's contention is correct, viz., that he has not been given proper credit in Mr. Clemens's book. You write that you think Mr. Clemens's book is largely devoted to advertising 'The Shakepeare Problem Restated,' claiming that it is the crux of his entire argument.

"From a letter received from Mr. Greenwood it is evident that he considers it more than the crux. Both Mr. Greenwood and Mr. John Lane consider that Mr. Clemens has transgressed all codes in not giving proper credit to Mr. Greenwood as the author of this book, and to Mr. Lane as the publisher.

Divergent Views of It.

"How Mr. Clemens's book can be considered by him or by you as a work devoted to advertising Mr. Greenwood's previous work is beyond our comprehension, if Mr. Clemens has studiously omitted the name of the author and publisher of the book he so kindly undertook to advertise. Mr. Greenwood demands the following before he is willing to consent to allowing the book to be published in England.

> (1) That the plates shall be altered so that full acknowledgment shall be made both to author and publisher before any further edition be printed;
>
> (2) That at the end of every copy of the English edition and of all copies of the American edition published after May 10 a full-page advertisement shall appear, to be supplied by me.

"This seems to me the least that can be done to make some amends for the injustice which has been committed in such a very extraordinary manner."

Ten days after receiving this letter, on May 21, Harper & Brothers sent a reply, saying they would give credit in the next edition of "Is Shakespeare Dead?" to Mr. Greenwood and to the John Lane Company, but nothing was said of any page advertisement. The Lane Company reiterated its demands, and there the matter stands.

"Is Shakespeare Dead?" is being sold here unrestricted, but in England the John Lane Company, protected by copyright laws which do not extend to their books in this country, are watching to prevent a copy of Mark Twain's volume from being marketed.

"We don't like to be discourteous about this," said Mr. Jewett, "but we feel we must protect the authors who put their confidence in us. Mark Twain should have been more careful."

In going into his argument of the authorship of the Shakespeare plays Mark Twain in his book says:

> If I were required to superintend a Bacon-Shakespeare controversy, I would narrow it down to a single question—the only one, so far as the previous controvercies have informed me, concerning which illustrious experts of unimpeachable competency have testified: Was the author of Shakespeare's works a lawyer—a lawyer deeply read and of limitless experience?
>
> I would put aside the guesses and surmises, and perhapses, and might-have-beens, and could-have-beens, and must-have-beens, and we-are-justified-in-preumings, and the rest of those vague spectres and shadows and indefinitenesses, and stand, or fall, win or lose, by the verdict rendered by the jury on that single question. If the verdict was yes, I should feel quite convinced that the Stratford Shakespeare, the actor, manager, and trader who died so obscure, so forgotten, so destitute of even village consequence that sixty years afterward no fellow-citizen and friend of his later days remembered to tell anything of him, did not write the works.

An effort was made yesterday to see Mark Twain, but he was not at his home in Redding, Conn., and could not be reached.

WEST POINT TAKEN BY "HOSTILE" FLEET

"Admiral" Oliver's Warships Slip in Past the Forts Under Cover of Darkness.

CADETS DEFEND GALLANTLY

But Succumb to Superior Strategy—Lots of Pretty Girls There for Commencement Enjoy Captivity.

A squadron of warships, under command of "Rear Admiral" Llewellyn W. Oliver, (Capt. Oliver, Twelfth Cavalry, U. S. A.,) captured West Point at 10 o'clock last night, the capitulation being witnessed by several hundred army girls, a thousand or more army men and women, and about a thousand civilians from Newburg, Poughkeepsie, and other places within easy reach of West Point. "Admiral" Oliver had under his command about 150 cadets, and had as his chief of staff "Commodore" E. Llewellyn Bull, (Lieut. Bull, Twenty-second United States Infantry.)

That something was going to happen at West Point last night had been suspected for several days, but none of the hundreds of pretty girls who are spending graduation week there had any idea that the reservation was to be bombarded by a hostile fleet and themselves, as well as all official West Point, taken into captivity.

The fleet under "Admiral" Oliver was sighted coming down the Hudson at 8:45 P. M. last night by a detachment of cadets operating a searchlight abaft the Quartermaster's stores. Capt. Charles P. Summerall, Second Field Artillery, U. S. A., was Commander in Chief of the defending forces, his division commanders being First Lieut. Alfred A. Maybach of the Coast Artillery, Capt. Isaac Newell of the Twenty-second Infantry, and First Lieut. Walter D. Smith of the Fourteenth Cavalry. One of the ablest of the division commanders was prevented from taking part by the going out of commission of the semi-armored cruiser Highlander. When last heard of that officer was watching developments from the top of the railway station at Garrisons-on-the-Hudson.

The battle was planned many days ago, and those in the secert knew that Admiral Oliver had to win or the problem would not be properly solved. The problem contemplated the capture of West Point by a hostile fleet, which, after eluding the searchlights that were focussed on the Hudson at the northern end of the reservation, passed the mountain batteries on Constitution Island, and landed enough men to surprise and capture the coast artillerymen, who were operating under Summerall, Smith, and Maybach, on the hill overlooking the Hudson, from the north.

The battle was scheduled to begin promptly at 8 o'clock, but it refused to get real dark at West Point until forty-five minutes after that hour last night. Soon after sundown the crowd that wanted to see the battle began gathering. They came by train, in automobiles, and wagons.

As soon as semi-darkness had settled down Admiral Oliver got his fleet together and sailed away in the direction of Newburg. Somewhere between there and West Point he found a mooring dark enough to hide his vessels from view till the moment to attack arrived. Ashore Summerall was just as vigilant, and at 8 o'clock their searchlight was throwing a great beam of white light across the Hudson to the shores of Constitution Island.

Under the administration of Col. Scott as Superintendent of the Academy a complete coast artillery outfit, even down to the intricate range findings and atmospheric apparatus has been installed at West Point. This was in charge of Lieut. Maybach.

Summerall also had a strong infantry support under command of Capt. Newell. A large detachment of the Newell force was held in reserve to repulse the Oliver landsmen when they came ashore, while the woods bordering the Hudson were full of scouts.

The beginning of the battle was announced by the firing of a rocket that shot hundreds of feet into the air from the coast artillery battery. A moment later the searchlight located one of the Oliver vessels, and a second later the mountain artillery on Constitution Island opened fire on the invaders. The ship may have been hit, but she did not stop. The echoes of the Constitution guns did not have time to die away before the guns of the attacking squadron began barking a lively reply.

Then the guns on the mainland opened fire, and for the next half hour it seemed as if Fort Wadsworth had been temporarily transferred fifty miles up the Hudson. At 9:30 o'clock the rattle of musketry announced that the Oliver marines had effected a landing and were coming up the hill. They were right on top of the Coast Artillerymen before the latter knew it.

As the guns of the Coast Artillery all pointed riverward they were rendered useless, and after what in real war might have been a fierce hand-to-hand fight, the Summerall forces surrendered and Admiral Oliver stepped aside to receive the congratulations of an officer stationed at Iona Island, the only real navy man present.

Aside from the entertainment it afforded the onlookers, the problem from a military standpoint was a serious matter, and had been carefully worked out by the officers and cadets who figured in it. That the cadets acquitted themselves with credit was the unanimous verdict of all the officers who witnessed the manoeuvre. Col. Scott was proud of them.

Next year there will be another battle, and in that engagement, the cadets figure, the fleet will be sent to the bottom of the river at a point midway between Constitution Island and the mainland.

To Owners of Summer Homes
MUSIC is one of the great summertime needs—perhaps the greatest. It fills in the gaps in the round of pleasures and adds a note of gayety to all occasions.
The big hotels show how thoroughly they appreciate music's importance by spending large sums for orchestras of their own, while the more populous resorts have public concerts morning, afternoon and evening.
Persons who are fortunate enough to have summer cottages ought to be independent of outside musical attractions. To be able to give your own concert in your own home, to make up your own programs, to hold an informal dance without relying upon outside musicians—such is the ideal condition.
The Pianola and the Pianola Piano make all this, and more, possible.

In many of the most luxurious summer homes, in the suburbs and in the mountains, the Orchestrelle has been installed, fulfilling all the functions of a private orchestra. This instrument, playing overtures and symphonies with full orchestral effect, appeals to the most refined musical intelligence, but it is equally successful in the field of lighter music. Prices, $400 up.
The Music
A three months' subscription to our Circulating Library of music rolls costs only $10. Our "music purchase agreement" at $50 and $100 affords special advantages to persons desiring home libraries of their own.

DANIEL CHAUNCEY, JR. DIES OF POLO BLOW

Hit on the Head in a Game Two Weeks Ago, but Had Apparently Recovered.

SISTER DIED A WEEK AGO

Surgeons Said to Have Found That the Blow Had Paralyzed the Broker's Spinal Nerves.

Daniel Chauncey, Jr., broker, society leader, and crack player of the Rockaway Hunt Club, died suddenly yesterday at his home in Cedarhurst as a result of an injury he received in a polo game about two weeks ago.

In that contest young Chauncey was accidentally struck on the head with a mallet in the hands of an opposing player. He was incapacitated for further play in that game, but for several days suffered no serious effects from the injury. About a week ago, however, he began to complain of pains in the head.

An examination by physicians is said to have revealed the fact that the blow on the head had brought about paralysis of the nerves of the spine. When Mr. Chauncey died yesterday morning it was at first said that his death had been caused by heart disease. His friends in Brooklyn who knew of the accident were of the belief, however, that it had at least indirectly caused his death.

Daniel M. Chauncey, the young man's father, who is the head of the D. & M. Chauncey Real Estate Company of Brooklyn, was in that borough when he heard of his son's death, and he hurried back to Cedarhurst. He was too much shocked by the news to give any details of his son's illness.

About a week ago young Chauncey's sister, Caroline, died, and he was prostrated with grief. It was apparent that he was much depressed from that time on, but the family did not suppose that he was in any danger.

Mr. Chauncey's relatives would not admit that his death could be attributed to the blow he received on the head in the polo game, telling some of their friends that the real cause was a nervous breakdown. This version, however, did not appear to accord with the opinion of his physicians.

Young Mr. Chauncey was badly injured about three years ago in a polo game between the Rockaway and Great Neck teams at Great Neck. At that time also he was struck on the head with a mallet and got a bad wound. He was taken from the field insensible, and suffered from the injury for some weeks. It is supposed, however, that he completely recovered from the effects of this first injury.

Young Chauncey was 25 years old and was a graduate of St. Paul's School at Concord, N. H. After leaving school he engaged in the stock brokerage business in Manhattan, becoming a member of the firm of Chauncey & Co. of 20 Broad Street. Three years ago he became a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Mr. Chauncey was married only about two years ago to Miss Grace Fargo, daughter of James F. Fargo of 120 East Thirty-seventh Street, Manhattan. The wedding took place in St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue. Rene La Montagne, a fellow-polo player of Mr. Chauncey, was his best man. Mr. Chauncey was prominent in society circles in both Brooklyn and Manhattan.

The Chaunceys have a country home at Cedarhurst, and are leaders in the fashionable Summer colony there.

Final arrangements for the funeral had not been made last night.

OPTIMISTIC TRAVELING MAN.

Commercial Travelers' Convention at Ogdensburg to Hear of Better Times.

The ninth annual State convention of the United Commercial Travelers of America, lasting three days, will be held at Ogdensburg, beginning to-morrow. A special train will leave the Grand Central Station to-night, carrying delegates and their wives from New York, Brooklyn, Knickerbocker, Jamaica, and Mount Vernon Councils. Stops will be made to pick up delegates at Newburg, Poughkeepsie, Troy, Albany, Glens Falls, and Saratoga Councils. Arthur E. Morford, the Grand Counselor of the order, will be on the train.

Controller Metz, himself an old commercial traveler, who is a member of Brooklyn Council, has sent to the convention an invitation to visit New York next year for the convention of 1910. It is proposed in connection with the Grand Council meeting here next year to have the Grand Council of New Jersey join the Grand Council of New York in a great demonstration here on the last day of the two conventions.

All of the delegates to the convention have nothing but good cheer and optimism to carry to their fellow-delegates at the Ogdensburg meeting. Many of them report a material improvement in business wherever they have been this year over that of last year. A trip to the Thousand Islands will be a feature of the convention.

HOLY CROSS GRADUATES 13.

Justice O'Gorman's Daughter Complimented for Acting in Class Play.

The fifty-first commencement exercises of the Holy Cross Academy and High School, 343 West Forty-second Street, were held yesterday afternoon. Thirteen young women graduates received gold medals, laurel wreaths, and diplomas for successfully passing the Regents' examinations.

The Right Rev. Mgr. Charles McCready presided, and in giving out the diplomas he made a short speech in which he said: "I have made thirty-one appearances in this room at graduations, each one more pleasant than the last. It is not right for me to single out any individual, but the young lady who a short time since held the stage for so long a time, both by her enunciation and her acting, showed real genius, which she has perhaps inherited, and I especially congratulate her."

The last remark was intended for Miss Anna Aloysia O'Gorman, daughter of Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman, who took a prominent part in a little play presented by the entire graduating class. This play was the feature of a programme which included several musical numbers, a salutatory by Catherine Marie Quinn, and the valedictory by Mary Katherine Smith.

An audience of over 200 showed their appreciation by hearty applause as each graduate came forward to receive her diploma. Those who received them were:

Mary Johanna Curley, Anna Veronica Caragher, Anna Consuela Donlin, Marguerite Marie Farrell, Helen Margaret MacRae, Frances Regina Moore, Anna Aloysia O'Gorman, Catherine Marie Quinn, Mary Katherine Smith, Leonore Regina Shannon, Gertrude Ursula Swayne, Mary Josephine Taylor, and Marion Svetson Kinsley.

MME. URIU TALKS AT VASSAR.

Brings Greetings from Princess Oyama to the Other Alumnae.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 8.—Japanese women are making great strides in an educational way, according to the declaration made by the Baroness Uriu in the course of an address at the Vassar alumnae banquet here to-night. After commenting in a general way on the progress made by the college since her graduation, twenty-eight years ago, Mme. Uriu turned to the advancement of women in her own country.

"We, too, have changed," she said. "Japanese women have come forward, and each year finds new and great advances. There is no Vassar among us yet, but education for women and educational methods are progressing. And women are steadily advancing on lines somewhat different from yours, yet progressive. Many of your own women have good schools in Japan for our girls, to help them to become good and influential women and wives."

The Baroness struck a happy chord in the hearts of her auditors by declaring that despite the changes Vassar and Vassar girls are always the same in spirit. On behalf of the Princess Oyama, wife of Field Marshal Oyama, who attended Vassar with her, the Baroness extended greetings to the Alumnae.

In the afternoon the class day exercises were held, and the daisy chain, that honorable and ancient custom at Vassar, was carried in the class procession. To-morrow Admiral Uriu, the Baroness Uriu, Consul General Midzuno of New York, and Madam Midzuno will go to West Point, whence, after spending a few hours, they will return to New York.

MERCER ST. POLICE HELD.

Two from the "Penitentiary Precinct" Accused of Intoxication.

Two policemen, attached to the "Penitentiary Station," as the Mercer Street precinct is known in the department, were arrested yesterday, both charged with having been intoxicated on duty.

Policeman Henry A. Woesthoff was arrested at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by Lieut. Walsh, who charged that he found him helpless at Bleecker Street and West Broadway. Policeman Martin Davis was arrested just twelve hours later at Bleecker Street and the Bowery.

Davis was appointed to the force in 1907, and recently was transferred from the Greenpoint Station. Woesthoff was appointed to the force in 1906, and was transferred from the West 100th Street Police Station. Davis was fined $10 in the Night Court. Woesthoff returned to duty, and charges will be preferred against him.

LAMAR SNUBBED BY HEINZE AT HEARING

Broker Offers His Hand, but Mining Man Fails to See It—The Ohio Copper Deal.

THEIR STORIES DIFFER

Lamar Fails to Remember Details About the Authority He Says Was Given Him to Operate.

F. A. Heinze and David Lamar told their respective stories of the Ohio Copper deal, engineered through Moritz Rothenberger & Co. last Winter, before United States Commissioner Alexander, in the Federal Building yesterday. The testimony was taken in the Rothenberger bankruptcy proceedings, the occasion for the testimony of Heinze and Lamar being the representations of the bankrupt that as a result of trades in Ohio Copper which Lamar conducted for Heinze, the latter is now indebted to the brokerage house for about $9,380 in cash and 1,600 shares of Ohio Copper stock, which Heinze's representatives took out of the Rothenberger offices on the night of March 16.

Yesterday's hearing, beyond accentuating the previous discrepancy between the stories of Rothenberger, Heinze, and Lamar, threw comparatively little light on the tangled situation. Heinze asserts that the firm owes him $27,000 on the Ohio Copper transactions, and that, save in one instance of Lamar's own suggestion, he never authorized Lamar to act for him in buying or selling Ohio Copper through Rothenberger. On the other hand, Lamar asserted yesterday that he conducted a long series of transactions with Rothenberger under Heinze's specific authorization. Rothenberger, in testimony which he gave last week, bore out the statements of Lamar so far as they related to the alleged connection with Heinze.

Lamar was the first witness called yesterday. He had been on hand for some minutes before the opening of the hearing, and when Heinze entered stepped up with a smile and hand outstretched. But Heinze would not shake hands. He looked right through Lamar and kept on talking with his counsel, and Lamar retreated.

In his testimony Lamar said that during February last he had been retained by Heinze to operate in Ohio Copper with a number of firms, among them Rothenberger & Co. Counsel for Peter Alexander, receiver of the Rothenberger firm, tried to get Lamar to tell the substance of any conversations in which such authority was given, but Lamar said he didn't remember.

Eventually the examination came down to Feb. 23. About that time Lamar declared Rothenberger told him he must have more collateral for the Heinze account, and accordingly Lamar took Rothenberger to Heinze, and it was arranged, according to the witness, that Heinze should put up 4,400 shares of United Copper as margin against the purchase of 8,800 shares. Lamar was called upon to identify a receipt for 3,800 shares of Ohio, which had previously been delivered by Rothenberger & Co. to Heinze's office on Lamar's orders, and then told how subsequently he discovered that Rothenberger could not carry the entire account, and accordingly undertook to take some of the 8,800 shares off Rothenberger's hands.

Lamar said that he took the 4,400 shares and disposed of them in different places where he himself had accounts as a basis for taking up the 8,800 shares as purchased by Rothenberger & Co. From time to time thereafter, according to Lamar, the stock was put back in Rothenberger's office as that firm became able to carry it. So the situation came down to March 19, when Rothenberger & Co. acknowledged themselves in trouble and representatives of F. A. Heinze went into the office to see what could be done. The Heinze representatives took out after that examination the 1,600 shares of Ohio Copper and the $9,380 which Rothenberger & Co. now claim, and also the books relating to the Ohio Copper deal, which, according to Rothenberger & Co., make a further debt due from Heinze of $14,271.

When Heinze was called he said that Lamar had been in the habit of coming more or less to see him about Ohio Copper, in which both were interested on their own account, and that finally some time in February Lamar suggested that Rothenberger & Co. could buy 8,800 shares of Ohio Copper advantageously, provided Heinze let them have 4,400 shares as margin. Heinze agreed and authorized Lamar as his agent to put through the transaction. The following day, Heinze said, Rothenberger came to him and said that the stock had been bought. Rothenberger showed the purchase slips and Heinze directed his secretary to accept the stock and receipt for it. It was allowed to remain with Rothenberger.

Heinze denied that he had ever authorized Lamar to be his agent in any other transactions. He explained that in March Lamar came to him and said that Rothenberger & Co. were in trouble and would go under unless helped out. Being a large holder of Ohio Copper himself Heinze did not want to have the firm go under, and so sent his men over to see what the condition was. He asserted that he was entitled to the cash and Ohio Copper stock that his men took out, since much of the stock that the firm was carrying for him had disappeared, and that he helped out Rothenberger & Co. to the extent of over $30,000.

The hearings will be continued next Tuesday.

MORE TROUBLE FOR HEINZE.

Additional Indictments Against Him Are Now Looked For.

After a session with United States District Attorney Wise the May Grand Jury wound up yesterday its consideration of the Heinze case, and will not have the matter up again before it adjourns next Tuesday. It is believed that further indictments will be returned before the Grand Jury is discharged, as the Heinze matter has been before it in several of its phases almost continuously since the second Heinze indictment charging misapplication of the funds of the Mercantile National Bank, was found several weeks ago.

The June Grand Jury, which will be sworn in next Wednesday, will remain in session until October. The Heinze matter will probably come before it again, although it is understood now that the case has progressed so far that it is not a matter of pressing importance to the Government whether the missing books of the United Copper Company are returned or not.

CHARTER COMMITTEE MEETS.

Legislators Organize to Investigate the Question of Revision.

The legislative committee which is to consider the New York City Charter with a view to recommending amendments or a complete revision to the next session of the Legislature met and organized last night at the law office of Assemblyman Charles F. Murphy of Brooklyn, at 50 Church Street. Assemblyman Frederick W. Hammond of Onondaga was elected Chairman, Senator Alexander Brough of New York Vice Chairman, Assemblyman Murphy of Brooklyn Secretary, and Bernard J. Haggarty of Rochester Sergeant at Arms. Mr. Haggarty is Sergeant at Arms of the Assembly.

After organizing, the committee adjourned, subject to call from the Chairman. Some weeks will probably elapse before the first real business meeting. Besides those named the committee is composed of Senators Reuben L. Gledhill, Thomas F. Grady, Assemblymen Beverly R. Robinson, Thomas J. Geoghegan, and Alfred E. Smith.

The committee will probably utilize the great amount of material assembled by the Ivins Charter Commission in its investigation, but the complexion of the legislative committee suggests that the city need expect at its hands nothing in the way of charter revision except what the Republican and Democratic machines decide that it should have. Senator Grady is opposed to charter revision of any kind, while the Republican members from Brooklyn are controlled by Republican State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff, who was instrumental in defeating charter revision at the last session of the Legislature.

The committee will have $20,000 to spend. Its meetings will probably be held in the Council Chamber at the City Hall.

The legislative committee, which was created with the view of collecting evidence to prove direct nominations impracticable, will meet and organize at the Murray Hill Hotel next Friday. Gov. Hughes vetoed an appropriation of $20,000, which the legislative leaders set aside for this committee, but the latter managed to get a contingent fund of $65,000 from which to defray its expenses. This committee expects to do a lot of junketing before it reports to the next session of the Legislature. It will probably visit Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois, Wisconsin, and may even go as far West as Oregon, where a system of direct primaries has been inaugurated with indifferent results.

LICHTENSTEIN LOST $700.

Not $2,000 as Reported, He Tells Mr. Murphy—Pinochle the Game.

Sol Lichtenstein, the former bookmaker, who refused on Monday to talk to Assistant District Attorney Murphy about the report that he had lost $2,000 in a roulette game in the Hesper Club, at 111 Second Avenue, returned yesterday and told Mr. Murphy that the game was only pinochle and that his loss was between $700 and $800. He said that Manny Manheimer won the money.

Leonard Snitkin, Lichtenstein's counsel, who threatened to sue Inspector Herlihy for a poke in the eye which he received from the Inspector's long index finger in the course of a dispute in Mr. Murphy's office on Monday, said yesterday that he thought $20,000 would be about the right amount for "damage to self and feelings."

He gave a different version of the affair, also, in which he was injured, saying that he had kicked Herlihy in the shins in return for the poke in the eye.

Yes, Ivory Soap is good for shampooing.

A white soap, it yields a perfectly white lather—a lather that cleanses the hair but does not change its color.

Containing no "free" (uncombined) alkali, it can be used without fear that it will dry the hair or make it brittle.

Use the clearest, cleanest water you can get. Soft water is better than hard. Put the Ivory Soap in the water and when a suds is formed, apply it to the hair—again and again and again. Rinse thoroughly.

Toweling will only partially dry the hair. A fan will help. But the best way of all is to give it an air bath—comb it out and let the air and sunshine dry it.

BRITAIN JUSTIFIES HER NAVAL SCARE

Newspapers Say America Is Beginning to Understand the Critical State of Affairs.

HER CONSCIENCE IS CLEAR

Naval Estimates Reduced $20,000,000, Germany's Increased $50,000,000—Storm May Follow Quiet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 8.—THE NEW YORK TIMES's editorial comment on Lord Rosebery's speech was cabled to The London Times yesterday and has attracted wide attention, as "indicating that the American disposition to ridicule British fears is yielding to a recognition of the real facts in the case."

The indorsement of Lord Rosebery's pronouncement, contained in Sir Edward Grey's speech at the Imperial Press Conference to-day, is looked upon as a convincing reply to those who considered that Lord Rosebery had painted too dark a picture of the European situation.

Most of the evening papers quoted the editorials in THE NEW YORK TIMES and The New York Evening Post as an implied acknowledgment by unprejudiced onlookers that Britain cannot afford to cut down her growing expenditure on armaments. The Daily Mail argues that England has a perfectly clear conscience in regard to the perilous race of armaments, and cites the British proposals to The Hague Conference of 1907 and the heavy reduction in the British military and naval programmes of the following year.

"While the British navy estimates between 1904 and the present year," says The Daily Mail, "have been reduced by no less than £4,000,000, the German estimates in the same period have increased £10,000,000."

The London Times will have an editorial to-morrow driving home the argument that "the time demands from the whole empire the most strenuous exertions for the maintenance of our supremacy at sea. There is a hush in international politics, but it is a sultry hush. It may unhappily prove the prelude to a storm, and for the possibility of that storm we must be ready."

It is significant that The Daily Chronicle practically falls into line with the other papers which have all along advocated the strongest navy, and prints a "patriotic and imperial" leading editorial which might have been written in Carmelite House or Printing House Square.

LONDON, June 8.—The second meeting of the Imperial Press Conference was held here to-day under the Presidency of Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty. Foreign Secretary Grey also was present, and both Ministers spoke on the navy.

"If the navy fails," declared the Foreign Secretary, "it will be useless to discuss any other subject."

He summed up the policy of the Foreign Office as follows: "To keep what we have got, to consolidate and develop, to quarrel as little as possible with other peoples, and to uphold in the councils of the world the ideals of Great Britain. With so much at stake the maintenance of the navy must be the first consideration, not only for the home Government, but for all the self-governing dominions of the empire."

In conclusion the Foreign Secretary said the present excessive expenditures for armament made the political weather "sultry."

Mr. McKenna said he foresaw the possibility of the empire being called upon to unite its whole strength in the common defense of the home country. He declared he would assist the development of the local navies of the overseas dominions in every way in his power, as the maintenance of supremacy on any sea meant the maintenance of supremacy on all seas.

MELBOURNE, June 8.—A cablegram has been received here from the Imperial Government accepting the formal offer of a Dreadnought, or an equivalent addition, to the British Navy.

BURGLAR ATTACKS A NURSE.

Piles Bedclothes on Her and Then Makes His Escape.

Awakened by a noise in her room early yesterday morning, Miss Roberta E. Gegg, a nurse attached to the Kings County Hospital, in Clarkson Stret, near New York Avenue, Brooklyn, saw a man putting into his pocket her gold watch and chain and other valuables. Her room is in the two-story building used for nurses, which is about 400 yards distant from the main hospital building.

Miss Gegg recovered from her surprise at seeing the intruder and screamed. Then she asked him what he was doing there. He did not say a word in answer to her question, but rushed at her and grabbed her by the throat, to prevent her from making another outcry.

The burglar then piled the bedclothes around Miss Gegg's head and held them tight until she was too exhausted from her struggle to free herself. When he saw that she was too weak to raise a cry of alarm he escaped.

The nurses on the second floor were awakened by Miss Gegg's cries, but by the time they got to her room the burglar had disappeared.

GUGGENHEIM DIVORCE IS CALLED A FRAUD

Chicago Court Order to Couple to Show Cause Why It Should Not Be Set Aside.

WIFE GOT $150,000 ALIMONY

She and William Guggenheim Both Married Again—Judge Who Granted the Decree Charges Trickery.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Judge Honore to-day ordered William Guggenheim of New York and Grace B. Guggenheim to show cause why their divorce procured in Chicago in 1901 should not be set aside. Edward F. Dunne, ex-Mayor of Chicago, who issued the divorce decree while a Judge in the Circuit Court, to-day represented the complainant, Grace B. Guggenheim, and appeared in court with five affidavits alleging that the divorce was obtained by fraud.

Mr. Dunne declared that the decree was fraudulent, as neither party was a legal resident of Illinois at the time it was granted, and misrepresentations had been made to Mrs. Guggenheim to get her to sue for the divorce. The complainant also avers that Mr. Guggenheim and his wife's supposed attorney, Louis Werner of New York, conspired to practice a fraud on the court. She further states that alimony of $150,000 was given to her, and that her attorney got $12,500 of the amount.

Mrs. Guggenheim avers that it had been represented to her that the defendant was "the weakest and least important member of the Guggenheim family," while in fact he is the ablest of the seven brothers and the chief organizer and business head of the great combination of mining and smelting interests owned by the family. She adds that his personal wealth is probably more than $3,500,000.

The complainant has been married three times, and has figured in a number of divorce suits. After the 1901 divorce Mr. Guggenheim married Aimee Lillian Steinberger. The complainant's first husband was William C. Herbert, a naval officer, who got a divorce on the grounds of desertion. Mr. Guggenheim was married to her on Nov. 30, 1900. Less than four months later they were divorced in Chicago. The complainant's next husband was Jules Roger Wahl, who obtained an annulment of the contract in France on the ground that the Chicago decree was invalid.

The complainant's affidavit in the present proceedings was attested to before a New York notary on March 23. She tells how she met Mr. Guggenheim in June, 1900. He followed her about until she finally consented to marry him, she says. They were married quietly at Hoboken. She was forced to keep their marriage a secret, she says, as Mr. Guggenheim's family were Orthodox Jews and she was a Christian. They lived at the Hotel Manhattan in New York until Dec. 31, 1900, when Mr. Guggenheim told her he had decided to leave her, as his family was still unalterably opposed to their marriage. Mr. Guggenheim then went to Europe.

After many efforts to get Mr. Guggenheim to return to her, the complainant says, she finally consented to sue for a divorce on the advice of Daniel Guggenheim, one of the defendant's brothers. It was suggested that she go to South Dakota for four months and sue there, but she refused. It was finally decided that the suit should be filed in Chicago.

She arrived in Chicago on Feb. 14, 1901, accompanied by Miss Mary Sesnan. She returned to New York while the divorce suit was pending, and revisited Chicago in the latter part of February and in March. Attorney Werner, she avers, said that when she was asked where she lived she must say in Chicago, and explained that this would be perfectly true.

After the decree was obtained the complainant says she returned to New York, and soon afterward was married to Wahl. When the latter obtained an annulment of their marriage she believed herself free to marry again. On consulting her present attorney she was advised that the Chicago divorce was void and that she was still the legal wife of Guggenheim.

Other affidavits were filed corroborating the complainant's statements.

HATTERS BACK TO WORK.

Danbury Manufacturers Agree to Restore the Union Label.

Special to The New York Times.

DANBURY, Conn., June 8.—The strike of members of the United Hatters of North America against the National Hat Manufacturers' Association over the removal of the union label was settled to-day after a conference between the union's National officers and the Executive Board of the manufacturers, which lasted for twelve hours. The hatters will resume work to-morrow morning for the first time since the strike began on Jan. 15.

The plan under which the hatters resume work is the one prepared by the Rev. J. D. Kennedy, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church. By its terms the hatters will work for ninety days without the union label. At the end of that time it is the purpose of the manufacturers to withdraw from the National association and to continue at the end of that time as independent shops the union label to be restored. At present the members of the manufacturers association are under $25,000 bonds not to use the union label.

A split exists in the ranks of the manufacturers, which it is expected will be adjusted shortly. Though the strike has been called off in the Danbury, Bethel, and New Milford districts, it still continues in the other hatting centres. Twenty-three factories will open in the morning.

President Samuel Mundheim of the National Hat Manufacturers' Association said yesterday that he had received no official advices of the action taken by hat manufacturers in Danbury looking to a settlement of the strike in the shops there. He declared, however, that whatever had been done toward a settlement in the Connecticut city would have no effect on the general attitude of the association toward the strike.

TAX SALES SET ASIDE.

Parcels Belonging to St. Peter's Church Were Sold Under an Error.

Daniel Moynahan, Collector of Arrears of the Department of Finance, announced yesterday that the sale of liens on several parcels of property belonging to St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church at the tax sale on Monday, were due to a clerical error, and that the disposal of the claims has been set aside.

He explained that the adjustment of the matter had been taken up by the Controller, and that the representatives of the church had assumed that the parcels would not be included in the sale.

It seems that the claims against St. Peter's were for sewer assessments, and that the question of whether or not property used partly for school and church purposes or to give light and air to the same should be liable to assessment is being considered by the Corporation Counsel.

FOSTER STILL A BAPTIST.

Wrote His Book on Religion to Save the Church, Professor Declares.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Prof. George Burman Foster of the University of Chicago, author of "The Function of Religion," which has caused a furor among the Baptist clergy, declared to-day that he was a loyal Baptist and would not withdraw from the Church, no matter what pressure was brought to bear upon him.

"It was to save the Church, to defend it from its most potent enemies," he said, "that I wrote the things which have angered my fellow-ministers in the Baptist faith. 'I had no thought of creating discord, but I saw a great exigency, to face which successfully the Church must cast aside the baggage which it has brought down from the unenlightened ages, while keeping only the essence to true religion."

Many Want to See Governor's Room.

Several patriotic and civic organizations of the city have requested Borough President Ahearn to open the Governor's Room at City Hall on Saturdays and holidays. Since the remodeling of the room by Mrs. Russell Sage, the interest of the public in the historic relics exhibited in the place has redoubled and, particularly on Memorial Day, large numbers of people went to City Hall to visit the room, but were unable to get in. Mr. Ahearn says he will take the matter up at once.

SHOPPERS SEE WALL BURY 3 WORKERS

One Killed and Two Hurt in Collapse of an Iron Staircase in the Old Manhattan Theatre.

ONE IS CHOKED TO DEATH

Smothered by the Dust and Debris—Another Buried to His Waist and Dragged Out Badly Injured.

Through the fall of an iron staircase and the wall supporting it in the old Manhattan Theatre, Broadway and Thirty-second Street, now being torn down, one man lost his life and two others were injured at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in sight of a crowd of shoppers. For a time one of the injured men was seen standing buried to his waist in the débris of the fallen wall, and it appeared that as he was not badly hurt the accident had not turned out very seriously. It was only the discovery of a hat among the ruins that brought out the fact that a man was buried beneath them, and when he was dug out it appeared that he had been choked to death by the falling rubbish.

The Manhattan Theatre is being torn down to make room for the new Gimbel store, and the wrecking is in charge of Ford & Waixel, contractors of 1,019 Boston Road. An old iron stairway about twelve feet high runs through the centre of the building. Three men were at work in the well of the staircase, and one of them weakened its supports. With a crash half of it came down, bringing along with it a portion of the wall.

Immediately a great crowd collected, and Sixth Avenue and the stairs and platforms of the Thirty-third Street Station of the Elevated were blocked. Some of the workmen were so much alarmed that they fled at once and had not returned at quitting time.

Patrolman Patrick Gorman of the Tenderloin Police Station was on the sidewalk and at once turned in a call to the New York Hospital. The foreman, Solomon Dickin of 104 Orchard Street, and Supt. Ireland led a gang of men to the rescue, and soon got out the half buried man and another who had been working alongside him.

All the workmen are Poles, and none of the foremen or the contractors can talk their language.

It was nearly fifteen minutes after the accident before the man buried in the débris could be reached. He was taken out badly bruised about the body and his legs were injured, but none of these hurts would have been mortal. It was the lime and dust which had fallen in heaps upon him which had choked the life out of him.

Drs. Wynett and Butterfield arrived with the ambulance and worked over this man for some time, but could not revive him. They sent the body to the Tenderloin Police Station and took the other two men to the New York Hospital. There it was found that they had sustained severe cuts on the head, bruises on the legs and feet, and possibly internal injuries.

It was learned that the dead man was called Duysick, and the injured men were Salustvi, Discowski and Venca. Discowski lived at 105 Columbia Street, but the addresses of the other two were not known.

Patrolman Gorman locked up the foreman, Solomon Dickin, on the charge of homicide.

Plan for City Charter Hearings.

The legislative committee appointed to hold hearings on the proposed new city charter met yesterday afternoon at the office of Assemblyman Murphy in Brooklyn and drew up plans for the opening operations within a few weeks.

Assemblyman Hammond of Onondaga, Chairman of the Cities Committee of the lower house, was elected Chairman; Senator Brough of this city Vice Chairman, and Assemblyman Murphy Secretary of the committee. The hearings will probably be held in City Hall.

DUFFY'S FATHER RECALLED.

Has a Confidential Talk with the Mayor—More Witnesses Soon.

Mayor McClellan continued the investigation into the Duffy case yesterday. To-day he will take the testimony of several more witnesses. It is probable that his final decision will not be ready before to-morrow or the next day. Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell, who is attached to the Mayor's office, is going over the testimony already taken and preparing it for presentation to the Mayor, but it is likely that several more witnesses will be heard before the case is closed.

George E. Duffy, father of the young man concerned in the charges brought against Police Commissioner Bingham and the department by Supreme Court Justice Gaynor, went to City Hall yesterday with Mirabeau L. Towns, the Brooklyn lawyer, whom Justice Gaynor has interested in the case. They were closeted with the Mayor for a long time. It was Mr. Towns's second call on the Mayor during the day.

On leaving City Hall Mr. Towns declared that the Mayor had recalled the elder Duffy to ascertain, if possible, the motives for the repeated arrests of his son. The lawyer said he was not at liberty to divulge what happened, on the ground that it would be a violation of the Mayor's confidence. The Mayor was equally reticent. He did not even care to say just who he would have before him to-day.

As far as can be learned Gen. Bingham has not yet been asked to explain to the Mayor, and has not communicated with him about the charges since the trouble started. The Commissioner has not been at City Hall since the Coney Island Sunday closing matter was under discussion.

Advertising Men to Play Tennis.

Entries to the advertising men's lawn tennis tournament, to be held at the West Side Tennis Club, 238th Street and Broadway, on June 23, have been coming in so rapidly that it has been decided by the committee to limit the number of competitors to 100. Advertising men who have not entered and who desire to compete should send their entry at once to E. C. Conlin, care of Munsey's Magazine, New York City.

NEW CITY ACCOUNTS SYSTEM.

Municipal Research Bureau Examines Its Working and Finds It Good.

The Aldermen granted Controller Metz $50,000 yesterday to continue the introduction of the system of accounting recommended by the Bureau of Municipal Research for the city departments. By its adoption, the bureau maintains, that for the first time in years a departmental chief will be able to tell at the end of each month how much of his appropriation has been spent and what his liabilities are.

It was pointed out yesterday at the bureau that the record for last month shows a great advance on the results achieved in former years. On May 29, the last working day of the month, two departments had their accounts for the month ready. On June 2 eleven departments had made returns to the Controller's office, and by last Saturday twenty-one reports were in.

Up to the present of the twenty-two large city departments eighteen have adopted the bureau's plan of accounting and three others are preparing to do so. Of the eighty-six small departments fifty-five are using the system. The only large city department which will not fall into line is the School Board, which spends $27,470,736 this year out of a total budget of $156,545,148.

THE CITY BOND SALE.

Those who bought the bonds sold by the city yesterday are more to be congratulated than the seller. In one sense it cannot be agreeable to any citizen to see the city's obligations sell below the value of money. We would all like to see the price up and the yield down to whatever unblemished credit ought to bring. That this figure was not reached yesterday cannot be attributed to the debt-limit controversy, for no one thinks that the city is now outside its limit as increased by the last valuation for taxation. Neither can it be attributed to an unfavorable money market, for there is a plethora of funds, and other applicants are being accommodated on terms which used to be within New York's reach.

There is just one explanation. It is not the city's present condition which makes lenders backward, but fears of tendencies toward municipal Socialism which have recently developed, and of the removal of all barriers to prudence regarding this form of benevolence by the raising of the constitutional debt limit. We are now experiencing a check to the beneficial activities shown in the past few years through the expenditures of money raised by taxation and borrowing. It has swollen taxation unendurably to land owners, and to users of land who feel the burden in rent, and to buyers at prices raised by the rise of rent. The evil is thus in process of curing itself when those responsible for these conditions propose to extend the exhilaration indefinitely by removing the debt limit.

No living man knows where this might lead the city. The wholesome limit is to be removed just as it is doing the very work for which it was designed, and because it is doing its work. It was plain from the beginning what the tendency of this would be. The prices recorded yesterday make good those expectations. Sweet is mingled with the bitter. The result of the sale may defeat the constitutional amendment. If it fails to do so New York may expect to pay usury hereafter.

PROTECTION AS A PARTY ISSUE.

Mr. ALDRICH was as impertinent as he was arrogant in taunting his Republican opponents with wishing to form a new party. He assumes that anybody who will not accept his interpretation of the tariff policy of the party to which he professes to belong is disloyal. He chooses to forget that the men who hold to his interpretation were badly beaten at the last National Convention, and that the Senators who are opposing him are faithfully trying to carry out the specific pledges of the party made at that convention. If they are to be denounced, an entirely new system of party discipline and obligation must be devised under which fidelity is punished as betrayal and treachery is rewarded with undisputed power. By that system Mr. TAFT, if he remains as true to the Republican pledges in action as he has so far in profession, must be read out of his party. This is the practical outcome of Mr. ALDRICH's position. From the standpoint of party expediency it is as risky as from the point of view of principle it is immoral.

There is another thing Mr. ALDRICH chooses to ignore in his supercilious attitude toward the Senators who are at once faithful and independent. It is the fact that the Republican Party, in the course of its long career of more than half a century, including fourteen Presidential elections, has fought but two National contests on the issue of protection. One of these, in 1888, it gained, though Mr. CLEVELAND had a plurality over Mr. HARRISON and the latter was in a minority of nearly half a million on the total vote. The second, in 1892, the Republicans lost, their minority on the total vote being in round numbers 1,700,000. The only definite appearance of protection in a National campaign since that unfortunate encounter was last year, when the Republican leaders thought that popular sentiment against the abuses of the tariff was so pronounced that they undertook to placate it by a promise of revision and reduction. Now, plainly that is not a record that warrants Mr. ALDRICH and "his men" in assuming that high protection is the essential doctrine of the Republican Party, and that they are the sole guardians of it.

Again we are compelled to remind Mr. ALDRICH, though no one knows the fact better, that the people of the United States never voted the adoption of the protective policy, never gave an affirmative vote in connection with it. Protection was foisted on the country in the first instance by what in effect was a trick. During the civil war very high taxes for purely revenue purposes were levied on all sorts of American manufactures, and, as was but just, compensatory duties on competing foreign imports were enacted, with some additions for revenue. At the close of the war, when the revenue was no longer needed, the internal taxes on domestic manufactures were repealed and the duties on imports were left practically untouched. They constituted thereafter a system of protection of a most exorbitant character, the result of purely Congressional action, on which the people never expressed and never had a remote chance to express a specific judgment. It may be said that the party in power was continued in power after this action, but that was done on issues wholly apart from the tariff. From the close of the war until the election of 1884 the controlling issues were those connected with the war and with reconstruction. In 1884 the Republicans suffered defeat. In 1888, as already noted, Mr. CLEVELAND made the issue of the tariff prominent, if not controlling, and the Republicans won on the Electoral votes, though beaten on the popular vote. In 1892 the issue, for the first time in the history of the country since the formation of the Republican Party, was distinctly the tariff, and the party was heavily defeated not only on the Electoral but on the popular vote. From 1896 to 1908 the decisive issue has been Bryanism, even in 1904, when the Bryanites betrayed Judge PARKER.

Is this a history that would justify a sensible and practical, to say nothing of an honest, political leader in assuming that high protection is so rooted in the hearts of the American people that he is safe in denouncing and insulting every member of his party who wishes to reduce its exactions? Remember these points, Mr. ALDRICH: The high tariff secured by stratagem, without popular approval distinctly sought; one election barely gained on the tariff as an issue; one badly lost on the same issue; finally a party pledge to reduce the tariff, extorted from the leaders by fear of popular sentiment. On cold facts is it not wiser as well as more manly to keep the pledge?

CHAUCHARD'S FUNERAL.

The whole world must marvel over the idea of posthumous fame represented by the extravagant funeral of M. CHAUCHARD, founder of a big Paris shop, planned for himself and provided for in his will. A coffin costing $4,000, a tomb costing $16,000, an operatic service in the Madeleine, a vast and splendid procession—what will they profit the voyager, who has already met his pilot face to face on the unknown seas? Yet CHAUCHARD alive was the soul of benevolence, and helped others greatly with his bounty. The $40,000 set aside for the funeral is a very small part of the wealth he leaves. Such a funeral doubtless provides remunerative employment for many who need money, and its solemn pageantry strongly impresses the multitude. The showy funeral generally survives in Paris. The visitor in the French capital is ever aware of death, because he sees so frequently the plumed hearse, the uniformed servants of the undertaker, the horses in their trappings of mourning. In London, on the other hand, one may dwell for months without noticing a funeral procession in the streets. CHAUCHARD's idea, therefore, does not prove him essentially vain.

Of course, the funeral serves to advertise the big shop. It is CHAUCHARD's last contribution to its prosperity. It is worth while to have a business discussed along the line of a procession from the Madeleine to Père Lachaise by countless thousands in the streets. So that the extravagance of CHAUCHARD's funeral does not seem so pitiable when one thinks it over. Few in these days would care to have such a funeral, but few ever will.

SAVINGS BANK INTEREST.

It cannot have been agreeable for Mr. WILLIAMS, Superintendent of Banks, to recommend the reduction of savings bank interest. Neither is it agreeable to say that he is right in his advice, but there is more than a presumption to that effect. There are factors at work which make it better that the banks should act voluntarily upon a sound discretion, rather than have their hands forced by the progress of events, thus raising even a shadowy suggestion that the management of the banks lacks either intelligence to see what should be done or the courage to do it.

The deposits of the savings banks are now at their maximum, having increased right through the recent reaction, although at a reduced rate of growth. But, unfortunately, the surplus is not at its maximum. In 1900, when the deposits were below a billion, the surplus was at its greatest, $118,294,674. The deposits are now $1,396,443,327, but the surplus is only $105,493,132. It may be said that the surplus is still adequate, but it cannot long remain so if the deposits continue to grow and the surplus to decrease. Recent events, moreover, make it prudent to maintain a liberal surplus, and impose caution upon the tendency to compel a closer distribution. The Superintendent's report shows that the savings banks hold securities which are worth $625,331,856, but which cost $674,626,790. On the second page it appears that the surplus fell $18,936,989 in 1907, but increased $22,237,856 in 1908. The appreciation more than made good the depreciation, but the fact remains that the surplus is liable to sudden depreciation of about 15 per cent. Savings banks are not liable to runs, having a legal protection, and they are not compelled to liquidate, so that mere market fluctuations lack the significance which they possess for other banks. On the other hand, the savings banks lack the money-making opportunities of other banks, and are fiduciary institutions, so that their administration should be more prudent than that of other institutions, which have a greater recuperative capacity, and whose temporary reverses are therefore less serious.

It is beside the point to remark that the reduction of interest by one-half per cent. would cost the depositors of this city alone almost $5,000,000. The reduction upon the average account would be $3, and the loss would be worth the cost. For it should not be overlooked that the unfavorable figures quoted above have roots in practices which should be checked. Excessive competition for deposits is the explanation of the maintenance of an interest rate above that which can be earned. And the reduction in a few banks would overwhelm with deposits the banks which do not reduce their rate. This would make more difficult the task of earning 4 per cent., which already tempts ventures into imprudent investments and drives the best borrowers into seeking accommodation from private lenders.

Particularly objectionable is that form of competition which drains funds here in excessive supply, at the cost of creating abnormal scarcity in the district whence the funds come. If the metropolitan banks pay 4 per cent., and the country banks pay less, the money will be deposited here in cases in which it is practicable, and the local banks will have so much smaller resources to meet the local demand. The situation in this respect is in some ways like that by which the New York banks generally draw money from other banks in the interior, thus making the local money markets the more stringent and the New York money market unwholesomely easy, at certain seasons. It is the metropolitan savings banks which pay the more liberal interest, although their losses in the reaction of 1907 were greater than those of the country banks. And it is the country banks which pay the more prudent rate of interest, although their investments are both more stable and return a better income.

Of course, the accounts do not show that the savings banks are maintaining their interest by the reduction in their surplus. But the figures do show that there are losses to be made good, and that the savings banks of this immediate neighborhood should lead the way in the prudent restoration of their surplus by reducing their dividends to depositors. If the depositors for investment dislike this it is their privilege, indeed their duty, to make their investments for themselves and at their own risk. They have no fair claim to have 4 per cent. paid them at the risk and cost of depositors as a whole.

THE CASE FOR SODA WATER.

The Bakers' Weekly for June 5 reproduces the arguments contained in a booklet called "The Truth About Soda Water," distributed by a manufacturer of soda fountains and carbonic waters in Chicago. In the first place, the booklet says, soda water has been wrongly named:

> The delicious, sparkling drink you get at the soda fountain is not soda water at all. There is no soda in it. It was simply "christened wrong" at the start because it foamed like an old-fashioned drink they used to make with soda and vinegar, and, as is true in many other instances, the misnomer stuck.

It is really "temperance champagne"—pure water charged with the gas that makes champagne and the natural and artificial mineral waters effervescent. Combined with sugar and fresh fruits and their juices, it exercises a slightly stimulating and tonic effect upon the digestive functions, deepens the respiration, and, by virtue of its content of fruity citric and tartaric acids, cools the overheated blood. It is good even for invalids:

> The invalid stomach that cannot hold even pure spring water welcomes carbonated water. For more than a century wise physicians from all over the country have sent their dyspeptic patients to Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where they could drink the pure water—carbonated by nature—that bubbles up from these famous ice-cold springs.

But it is not because of their carbonic quality that patients go to drink the Saratoga waters. However, in a recent number of The New York State Journal of Medicine D. C. MORIARTA, one of the doctors at Saratoga Springs, says:

> Personally, I believe that the carbonic acid gas, which is present in our mineral waters, acts as a stimulant to digestion, prevents putrefaction, and serves to establish a general good feeling.

Unfortunately, some experts do not admit that the waters dispensed at all soda fountains are pure, or sparkling with a wholesome, healthful gas, and flavored with juices of fresh, ripe fruit. Dr. CHARLES L. DANA remarked recently in THE TIMES that the crusaders for temperance would "have to provide our youths with some better substitute than the stomach-killing soda fountain." The State food chemists who met last Fall at Mackinac Island, Mich., accused the bottling companies of employing saponin, derived from soap bark, for its foam-producing qualities—an extract which the United States Dispensary condemns as "a powerful poison." Of 121 samples of soft drinks sold in Chicago 53 were found to contain the coal-tar derivative called saccharin, which is used as a "sweetener"; and in ten others salicylic and benzoic acids were detected. The flavoring extracts used were also adulterated.

Many millions of capital are invested in manufacturing the apparatus for soda fountains. The product of these fountains is imbibed by the whole Nation. It would be of public interest to learn whether the medical specialists condemn as "stomach-killing" soda water that is free of adulterants.

Apparently Senator McCARREN and Leader MURPHY accept the latest scientific theory that the flesh of their kind is for human beings, at least for politicians, the most nourishing and satisfying all 'round food yet discovered. If they could manage to apply it to the point of mutual disablement, there would be "no complaint."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Mrs. Eddy Is Not Yet a Myth.

That Mrs. EDDY is still alive and in possession of about as much "mind" as she ever had was rendered at least probable, not by the ridiculous exhibition of her made to the Boston reporters on Monday, but by one beautifully characteristic non-sequitur which appeared in the remarks addressed "To whom it may concern," issued over her name the same day. "It is self-evident," the sentence read, "that the discoverer of an eternal truth cannot be a temporal fraud."

To whom self-evident? To a Christian Scientist, no doubt, but for nobody else, even though the grotesque assumption of the concealed premise be granted, does the conclusion follow by any logical necessity. "Eternal truths"—there are no others—have been discovered by all sorts of people, and not infrequently the discoverers have used the truths for the duping of the credulous and the exploiting of the foolish. The point is, however, that only Mrs. EDDY could make a statement so obviously absurd with her calm confidence that it would be accepted as something between law and gospel by her followers. Of course the little group of men and women who are holding her in such curious seclusion have made a deep study of her peculiar style, and can themselves, on occasion, imitate it fairly well, but a certain timidity, a lingering respect for plausibility, differentiates their productions from hers.

Another indication of Mrs. EDDY's survival in mind as well as body is to be found in the note sent to the Directors of the "Mother Church," promising to attend their annual meeting, "but not in propria persona." That utterly useless and needless use of a Latin phrase is also beautifully characteristic and familiar to all students of Eddyite literature as the woman's favorite device for convincing herself and others of like ignorance that she is deeply versed in the classics. Most of her more eminent and responsible satellites have enough education and taste to avoid these naive displays of fragmentary learning.

Just why Mrs. EDDY hides or is hidden away from her friends and foes alike is a mystery beyond our elucidation, but the chances are that she is still a pretty well-preserved old woman, with not a little left of her originally not small stock of native shrewdness. She knows her business, Mrs. EDDY does, now as always, and the vindication of her present policy of speaking from the dark lies in its as yet successful suppression of a dozen ambitious women who are waiting in breathless eagerness to take her place, wield her power, and pocket her revenues.

Gunning for Balloons.

About the queerest and most incomprehensible of human instincts is that which leads so many people to fire guns at any balloon they see floating in the air over their heads. Instinct it must be, and not mere malevolence or even mischievousness, since it is shown by a considerable fraction of the inhabitants of every country, and nowhere, so far as known, has there been until very recently any measurable antagonism to balloons or their passengers. Of late they have been viewed with some suspicion and hostility when they drifted across European frontiers, but that is only a part of the general war scare in that nervous part of the world, and no trace of such a feeling exists in this country.

Yet now, and here, as always and everywhere, in the annals of aeronautics, it is the commonest of experiences for the occupants of balloons to hear bullets and shot of assorted sizes whizzing through the air near them. Several of the competitors in the so-called race from Indianapolis had to rise hurriedly to escape these unwelcome demonstrations of interest, and it will be remembered that last year one of these strangely impelled marksmen was identified, arrested, accused of assault, and convicted. Whether his penalty was fine or imprisonment we forget, but we remember that he had no adequate explanation of his conduct. Probably he was as much mystified by it as were those who prosecuted him.

An obscure primordial jealousy of persons who have raised themselves so high above common humanity may lie at the roots of the problem. The unformulated purpose may be to show that the aeronauts are not so different from other people after all, and that they have not escaped from ordinary human chances by mounting into the heavens. There may be, too, an underlying sense that no harm will be done by the firing. None ever has been that we recall, and a small perforation of the balloon itself would cause nothing worse than a slow descent, but some day one of these gunners will kill an inoffensive sky-traveler if the practice be not stopped, and it is therefore well that the efforts to punish and suppress it be vigorous.

Teachers in Need of Lessons.

Weak hearts and ruined eyes are indeed deplorable products of a scientific education, and it is no wonder that the instructors at Annapolis are startled by the number of boys, exceptionally sound when taken into the Academy, whom they have had to "drop" instead of graduating.

The recent discovery that something was fatally wrong with the training of the embryo Admirals involves a heavy responsibility that should be fixed, not somewhere, but upon somebody—the somebody or somebodies who have let things go on that in the present state of knowledge are close to unpardonable. Overindulgence in athletics is the suggested cause of the strained hearts, and the failure of eyes is accounted for by the use of improper lights in the study rooms. Both explanations are reasonable enough, and probably like results from like conditions have not been found at other institutions of learning simply because there have been no such examinations as those of Annapolis to reveal them.

The showing at the Naval Academy is particularly dreadful on account of the special care used in selecting the students. Working with the best of material, there is no excuse for the physical deterioration from which the boys suffer. Midshipmen are expensive, and they should not be spoiled in the making.

RIVALS IN SCIENCE.

Mrs. Eddy Clings to Life Too Persistently for Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me we shall have just as much fun out of X-Science after Mary Baker G. Eddy has been gathered to her fathers as we have now; more perhaps. For in about twenty-four hours after her acknowledged demise there will be as many brands of X-Science as there are ambitious women of Mrs. Eddy's own stamp. Some of these born leaders are apparently becoming impatient, for Mrs. Eddy is surely "a long time alive." The latest one to step into the limelight is about the most amusing one who has broken loose so far.

In X-Science literature, and at their services, death is never mentioned. The dead are never commemorated in any way; they have committed the unpardonable sin of acknowledging the reality of death, and their indiscretion is politely, or mercifully, ignored. "All is mind, and mind is all." How often have I heard that insisted upon! Yet here comes Mrs. Gilbert, declaring that Mother Eddy is either dead (although there is no death) or mindless (when there isn't anything but mind!) Of course Mrs. Gilbert could explain this seeming inconsistency, for in X-Science nothing is impossible of explanation. Talk about the White Queen in "Alice," who could believe six impossible things before breakfast! Why, an X-Scientist could not only believe, but prove 'em! And Mrs. Gilbert is a profound thinker. Take this gem from one of her letters, for example: "For if God is our source of supply, then our source of supply is God." But do you suppose she worked that out herself, or did Mary Baker G. impart it before she was overtaken by non-existent death, or lost her immortal, imperishable mind? It sounds to me like one of Mary Baker G.'s impressive utterances; but as there is only one mind, and that "Our Beloved Leader's," perhaps it naturally follows that the faithful, who are required to think as she thinks, should also write as she writes—with here and there one who feels qualified to do a little "leading" as well.

HISTORY OF DEVOTEES

Reveals Origin of Great Discoveries, Inventions, and Masterpieces.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

F. G. R. Gordon takes the commercial view of genius and its offerings to progress. A more sympathetic study of the history of art, science, and invention would show him that it is a history of devotees. That competitive spirit has not made it, except in so far as competition among leaders of business has led them to watch for the best thing, and get it at the lowest price. The commercial motive never produced a single great work of art, discovery in science, or epoch-making invention. It may do a great deal of the minor work by decorative artists, poetasters, and inventors of "gimcracks" or improvements. The nature of genius is to love truth in some or all of its forms and sources. The same mind absorbed in such a pursuit is brought back to consideration of the mighty dollar only by sordid necessity. If the individual were the social unit one might reason that genius is its own reward, and envy the joys rather than pity the needs of the truth chaser. But the dependents of the man or woman who pursues some thread of truth for love of it or for humanity's sake experience the needs without the joys.

Competition has made for the survival of the fittest in organic evolution. Co-operation should achieve the survival of the fittest in ethics. Competition makes weak-hearted athletes, bankers that die suddenly at their desks, and politicians that end their own lives. Co-operation? Well, we shall know what it can produce when it has become a science and a universal practice, stimulating and moderating, directing and securing the industries of the world.

Shooting Monkeys Not "Sport."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I met, some years ago, an Englishman who had devoted much of his life to the shooting of big game in Africa and on this Continent. He told me that at St. Kitt's, Jamaica, he was induced to try monkey shooting, which form of "sport" was prevalent there.

He took a long shot at a monkey, which was jumping from branch to branch, and succeeded in wounding it. When he reached the spot where it had fallen, he found it sitting on the ground, crying with pain, both hands clasped to a wound in its side and with tears running down its face. He said he felt like a murderer. He took the animal up, bandaged its wound, took it home with him and finally cured and made a pet out of it. "No more monkey shooting for him."

Taxicab Overcharges.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I lately noticed that the register of a taxicab was turning up 10 cents at an average rate of something oftener than once in four blocks, when it should have turned up the 10 cents only once in five. When I got to the end of the route, I asked the chauffeur to give me a receipt for what I had paid him, which he did very politely, and I then wrote an account of the circumstances to the company, who promptly returned me a check for the overcharge.

Of course the amount returned did not pay me for the trouble, not to speak of the trouble of writing this, but if everybody would watch the registers of taxicabs and apply to the company, probably the company itself would watch the registers more closely.

Doors Ajar in Subway Cars.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Doors are not always closed tightly after the Subway trains are started. Saturday afternoon I changed from an express to a local at Grand Central, and as I was going only to Times Square, I stood by the door. I felt something move back of me. I looked and the door had opened several inches. If it had been on the bad curve, or the car had given a sudden jerk, it might have opened quickly and landed me under the train.

COMPLETE McADOO TUNNEL

Will Be Ready Jan. 11, 1911, Says McAdoo—Connection with Hoboken.

Following the action of Mayor McClellan yesterday in signing the franchise for the extension of the McAdoo Subway from the present terminus at Thirty-third Street and Sixth Avenue, William G. McAdoo, President of the Hudson & Manhattan Railway Company, said he hoped the work of building the extension would be under way within six months, and that the entire system would be ready for the public by Jan. 1, 1911. This will complete the Hudson & Manhattan Railway and make possible a connection direct from the Grand Central Station to any of the trunk line terminals in Hoboken and Jersey City.

Yesterday morning at 6 o'clock the final blow-out was made in the transverse tunnel which forms the connection of the McAdoo system between Hoboken and Jersey City. From now on the work of making the final connections in the sections of the McAdoo tubes adjacent to the river tunnels will go on rapidly. It is expected that the whole system to Twenty-third Street, including the Hoboken and Jersey City connection will be ready for use not later than July 15. The terminal station at Cortlandt and Church Streets is now complete, and the ballasting of track and laying of rails between this station and Jersey City is well advanced. All that will remain in the river sections after the track is laid will be the general cleaning up preparatory to the use of the tunnels by the public.

QUEENSBORO BRIDGE ROW.

Three Members of Aldermanic Celebration Committee Resign in Pique.

Aldermen Quinn, Emener, and Flanagan of the Aldermen's committee appointed to participate in the Queensboro Bridge celebration resigned yesterday, as a result of the agitation over the question of the manner in which the committee's twenty-thousand-dollar appropriation is to be expended. All three are Democrats and from Queens.

Some time ago a rumor was circulated to the effect that the sub-committee had arranged for the expenditure of nearly the whole of the $20,000 through one contracting company, which was said to be controlled by a certain Tammany Alderman. Alderman Gunther (Rep.) characterized the rumor as ridiculous.

CARE OF JEWISH DELINQUENTS

Dr. Bogen Says It Will Fall to Their Own People.

BUFFALO, June 8.—A paper by Dr. Boris D. Bogen of Cincinnati relating to corrective work among Jewish boys provoked a lively controversy at this afternoon's session of the sixth annual conference on the Education of Backward, Truant, and Delinquent Children. Dr. Bogen described the peculiar characteristics of Jewish boy delinquents, and declared it was only a question of time when they would be cared for by their own people.

Judge Moses of Baltimore took issue with Dr. Bogen's idea of segregation. It would be a mistake, he said, to bring up a boy in an atmosphere so different from what he must encounter upon leaving an institution.

"Your institutions may be perfect," said Dr. Bogen, "but I still maintain that you know nothing about Jewish boys. They must be brought back to that home influence so essential to them."

The Rev. Hastings Hart of Chicago told of a child who had many infirmities, and who, in addition, was addicted to pilfering. Her spine, feet, tonsils, eyes, and teeth were treated with much benefit to her. Then she was entirely cured of pilfering by having her room stripped of everything. She was shut up in it and placed on a diet of bread and water.

The following officers were elected for 1910: President—O. E. Darnell, Washington, D. C.; First Vice President—J. C. Kallen, Jamesburg, N. J.; Second Vice President—W. F. Penn, Morgansea, Penn.; Secretary—E. L. Coffeen, Westboro, Mass.

ANIMAL PROTEIN.

It Does Not Sustain Man to the Age of 125.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The human race, Mr. Fries contends, suffers no ill-effects from its meat-eating habits. Yet it is generally acknowledged that the human race dies very prematurely—so prematurely, in fact, that a full third of people's lives is cut off entirely. It is generally recognized by biologists that any animal should live five times the length of its period of maturity; a dog matures at 2 and dies at 10, &c. This is the average that may be observed throughout the animal kingdom. Man, it is asserted, matures at about 25, so that, by analogy, he should live to be 125 years old—and that before he shows signs of decrepitude, mental or physical. Yet, in place of this, what do we find? That the average term of life is something over 42 years, and, not only that, but those 42 years are filled with sicknesses and diseases of all kinds, as human experience testifies. Is this a normal condition? Or is there not something wrong somewhere to produce these results; and what so wrong and perverted as the present food habits of the people?

Mr. Fries is entirely mistaken (in common with many others) in his belief that the "ethical" reason is the chief reason for vegetarianism. Many are vegetarians on that account, doubtless, but not scientific vegetarians. To them it is entirely a question of physiology and hygiene. If I thought that I should be better physically by eating meat I should have no hesitation whatever in eating it. No, it is because we can show that meat contains certain poisons not found in fruits and vegetables, and that these poisons taken into the system help to deteriorate it and cause sickness and death. That is the reason for our abstaining from meat and its derivatives.

What are the uses of eggs and milk? Mr. Fries asks. Eggs are surely for the bringing forth of chicks—just as the ostrich eggs are for the production of small ostriches; and if hens were not forced to lay in such excessive quantities, there would soon be not too many eggs for that purpose alone. Milk is for the nourishment of the young mammal, until its teeth are cut, when the supply normally dries up, and if the abnormal process of milking were not continued the cow would dry up when that purpose of nature has been accomplished. Until man cuts his teeth he is a young mammal also, but he should not be nourished on milk all his life nevertheless.

It is absurd to propose, as Mr. Fries seems to do, that vegetable and animal life feel equally. Without a centralized nervous system, there cannot be the same sensibility as with it; a fact which all the biologists have insisted upon over and over again. Besides, there is a difference between taking life necessarily and taking highly sentient life when there is no need to do so.

Allow me, in conclusion, to insist upon this fundamental point, that the vegetable kingdom holds and supplies all the proteid in the world, and we either obtain this directly by going to the vegetable kingdom, or, indirectly, through the animal kingdom. The animal creates nothing. And since we can obtain all the proteid we need from the vegetable kingdom, why eat the animal which contains toxins of various kinds from which the vegetable is free? All ethical reasons apart, this valid objection remains and always will remain against flesh eating.

THE SWIMMER.

Forward or back! Which shall it be?
I tire of breasting the stream;
Yet the merciless waters roar on me
Whenever I pause to dream.

Forward or back then I must go—
Leap at the falls and win,
Or yield to the surging downsweep's flow
And drown in the caldron's din!

Drown, and be swept to the deep, dark sea,
To drift on the listless tide!
Oh, strong is the stream as it bears on me,
But half of my strength is—Pride!

There is a sea where drowned men lie,
Its waves are salt with tears;
And the wind goes by with a moaning sigh
O'er wrecks of the long-lost years.

SOUTH SHORE CO.'S FRANCHISE KILLED

Public Service Commission Refuses What It Calls a Fifty-Year Monopoly.

POINTS OUT MANY DEFECTS

Board of Estimate Had Already Passed Favorably on the Grant—Belmont Interests Involved.

On an opinion by Commissioner Bassett, the Public Service Commission yesterday refused its approval to the franchise already passed by the Board of Estimate giving to the South Shore Traction Company a franchise to construct and operate a line of trolley cars through Queens Borough and over the Queensboro Bridge into Manhattan.

The franchise was refused on the ground that as drawn it would give to the South Shore Traction Company what would amount to a fifty-year monopoly of the principal avenue of communication which Queens Borough has with the new bridge, and at the same time leave the South Shore Company where it may give up operation at any time after ten years.

There are various other objections, but these are the principal ones. Their force, as viewed by the Public Service Commission, appears when it is considered that to close up the Queensboro Bridge to easy approach from that borough would leave the Steinway tunnel as the only means for trolley cars to find their way into Manhattan. Hence a situation would be created whereby the South Shore Company could virtually dictate its own terms to other lines desiring to reach the bridge by the same route, or could suspend operation after ten years and disconnect the Queensboro Bridge altogether from the facilities which it is planned to afford for trolley cars.

Concerning the South Shore Company it has been reported that the Belmont interests controlling the New York and Queens County system, which built the Steinway tunnel, through the New York & Long Island Railroad Company, are interested in the application for the Queensboro Bridge franchise. If such proved to be the case, when the new company was fully disclosed, the advantages to the traction combination, consisting of the Steinway tunnel and the New York and Queens County trolley lines, of absolute control over the Queensboro Bridge facilities would be obvious.

The South Shore Traction Company was to obtain under the franchise, as passed by the Board of Estimate, a fifty-year grant of the right to maintain trolley tracks in Thompson Avenue and Hoffman Boulevard, which are to Queens Borough what Fulton Street is to the Borough of Brooklyn, from the standpoint of through traffic.

The company bound itself to permit the use of its tracks by another company on the payment of an initial amount and an annual rental, but the determination of this amount was left to a board of three arbitrators, on which the city has no representative. One of the arbitrators was to represent the South Shore Company, one the applicant company, and the third was to be chosen by these two.

The franchise further provided that in arriving at a decision the arbitrators were bound to consider and allow credit to the South Shore Traction Company for certain things, which included "the increased value of the territory as a district suitable for railroad operation, which increase may have resulted from the operation of the company, and the loss of business to the company which may result from direct competition on its own line." This compensation for competition is one of the features that appeared monopolistic to the Public Service Commission.

Further than that, Commissioner Bassett says in his opinion:

"It is, of course, proper that a pioneer company entering an undeveloped field should be protected against the possibility of other companies coming in without compensation at some future date, using this company's property, and reaping a rich reward without risk or expense. It is wholly improper, however, that any company should be permitted to take advantage of a geographical situation to absorb the value resulting from the development of an immense tract in the heart of a great city for a period of fifty years.

"We think that the time has passed when cities of this State, either to obtain a premature advantage of low fares or to encourage sales of vacant real estate, should contract away the welfare of future generations. The duty of the commission to disapprove arises when provisions are inserted that are sure to embarrass the future and impair the objects of the Public Service Commissions law."

Commissioner Bassett reports to the Public Service Commission that in his opinion a provision in the franchise to the effect that the city should be represented in any arbitration on the terms under which a new company was to be allowed the use of the South Shore tracks would cure much of the objection to the franchise as now drawn. He further recommends that the financial burdens imposed on the South Shore Company by the franchise should be lightened, recognizing that the new company proposes to traverse much territory that is now undeveloped.

WANT FULTON ST. CARS AGAIN

Bondholders Ask the Utilities Board to Reopen the Crosstown Line.

The holders of sixty-seven bonds of the Fulton Street Railroad, the half-mile horse car line of the old Metropolitan system through Fulton Street that was capitalized at upward of $4,000,000 a mile, have applied to the Public Service Commission to reopen hearings that were concluded last Winter on the subject of ordering the receiver of the Fulton Street road to continue its operation. The petition of last Winter was presented by the Mallory Steamship Company and about 40 other firms and individuals along the route of the road.

The receiver is Gilbert Montague, who testified that when he took possession a year ago he found as the only assets a line of rusty rails and some turnouts. There were no horses or cars, and when Oren Root, General Manager of the Metropolitan system under the receivers, was quizzed on this subject he said he assumed the horses of the Fulton Street line must have died and the cars dropped to pieces from old age.

Mr. Montague spent some little money of his own in trying to find out whether there were any assets or not, and then abandoned his search. Since that time the question of operating the road has not been urged until yesterday, when application was received from the holders of the bonds.

LOWER RATES RESTORED.

Central Readjusts Fares to Highbridge and Other Local Points.

Under an agreement reached with the Public Service Commission, the New York Central Railroad will readjust its local rates of fare to Highbridge, Morris Heights, and University Heights. Some time ago the Central reduced its rate to Albany to $3 flat and made pro-rata reductions in its rates to points along the line, but at the same time it jumped the rate to Highbridge from the Grand Central from 10 to 17 cents, the rate to Morris Heights from 14 to 20 cents, and the rate to University Heights from 14 to 21 cents.

Residents in the neighborhood of these three stations complained to the commission, and Commissioner Eustis began negotiations with the railroad, which have resulted in the restoration of the old rates.

PLEY SISTERS BRIDES TOGETHER

Double Wedding in Grace Church—Alexander Jones and Raphael Pumpelly the Bridegrooms.

IMPRESSIVE JOINT SERVICE

Dr. Huntington and Dr. Vibbert the Officiating Clergymen—Many Old Families Represented.

The Misses Alice Van Doren Ripley and Amelie Sybil Huntington Ripley, the daughters of Gen. Edward R. Ripley and Mrs. Ripley, were married yesterday afternoon in Grace Church to Alexander de Trofimoff Ogden Jones and Raphael Welles Pumpelly, respectively. The Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, rector of Grace Church, and the Rev. Dr. William H. Vibbert, Vicar of Trinity Chapel, officiated, uttering the prayers and delivering the blessing in unison.

The altar and chancel were decorated with white peonies, and white-flowered trees were arranged in standards separating the pews on the nave from those at the side.

When the bridal party had assembled the choirboys came down the nave singing, "O Perfect Love," and returned singing the processional, followed by the ushers, who were J. Egmont Schermerhorn, Bayard Boyesen, Gustav Schwab, Ogden Jones, Guerdon S. Parker, Gardner B. Perry, Ralph Page, Arthur Page, Waldo C. Johnston, and Dr. George Jean, the last two being brothers-in-law of Mr. Jones.

Gen. Ripley and Mrs. Ripley, the latter in a gold embroidered blue crêpe frock, followed the ushers, and then came the two young girl bridesmaids, the Misses Alice Van Doren Whiting and Julia Beverly Whiting, daughters of Dr. Guy Fairfax Whiting and Mrs. Whiting of Washington, and cousins of the brides. They wore white lingerie frocks, with embroidered borders and pink sashes, and white hats covered with pink sweet peas. Each carried a round bouquet of pink sweet peas and white spirea.

The two sisters followed, walking side by side. Miss Alice Van Doren Ripley, the elder, wore a point lace shawl veil, formerly her grandmother's, and a white satin robe with a watteau train, point lace sleeves and yoke, and pearl ornaments. Miss Amélie Sybil Huntington Ripley wore a Brussels net veil bordered with lace, and pearls. Her robe was similar to her sister's. Both carried lilies of the valley and orange blossom bouquets.

At the chancel, Mr. Jones, attended by Stephen Clark, and Mr. Welles, attended by Langdon Warner of Boston, met their brides. The ceremony began with the marriage of the elder sister, Gen. Ripley giving his daughters in marriage in turn.

A. T. Ogden Jones is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Ogden Jones and a nephew of Miss Frances Ogden Jones, and Mr. Pumpelley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Pumpelley of Newport, who returned from abroad three days ago to attend the wedding. He is a mining engineer and has also written considerable verse that has been published in various magazines.

A reception at the Ripley residence, 11 West Fifty-sixth Street, followed the double ceremony.

Among the families represented at the wedding were the Delafield, de Peyster, Rhinelander, Erving, Jones, Waldo, Fairfax, Van Rensselaer, Hassell, Schermerhorn, and many others.

Court Fight Over "The Moulin Rouge."

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich reserved decision yesterday on the application of counsel for "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" Company, who asked for an injunction restraining Hurtig & Seamon from using the title, "The Girls of the Moulin Rouge," for the piece now being played in the latter's theatre in 125th Street. The plaintiff contended that he had spent large sums both on the production and in advertising. The defense asserted that the name "Moulin Rouge" had been applied to theatrical productions for many years, and that the title in no sense belonged to the plaintiff.

Managers Still Waiting for Erlanger.

The committee representing the Western Theatrical Managers' Association, which has been here for the last few days conferring with the producing managers regarding booking for their theatres next season, announced yesterday that it had received substantial encouragement. Carson of the West 125th Street Station. The complaint is made about the young woman's dance. With her was arrested also Joseph Hurtig of the music hall. Both were bailed out later.

Anonymous but Lovely Thompson Star

Frederic Thompson announced yesterday that by special booking with Klaw & Erlanger he will present in a new play by a well-known dramatist early in the Fall "the youngest and loveliest star on the English-speaking stage." The public, it is further stated, will have no knowledge of her identity other than that conveyed by the name "Nell."

The Henry Wolfsohn Musical Bureau was notified yesterday that Gustav Wohlgemuth and Prof. Max Mayer Oldersleben, who will represent the Kaiser at the competitive singing concerts in the Musical Festival in Madison Square Garden on June 19, have sailed for New York on board the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

MERODE AT MARTIN'S FETE.

Dances in Abbreviated Costume in the Bois de Boulogne.

PARIS, June 8.—The most picturesque American function of the season was the "tea" given this afternoon by Frederick Townsend Martin at the Pré Catalan. Mr. Martin engaged half of the large restaurant, which is in the heart of the Bois de Boulogne. The lawn was prettily dotted with fancy tables, over which awnings had been arranged, and with small tents. The centrepiece was an improvised stage, where the feature was the appearance of Cléo de Mérode, who, despite the dazzling sunlight, danced in a costume of the eighteenth century, with quaint gold cap and short dresses.

The host had issued 400 invitations to the leaders of American and French society now in Paris, and many of the invitations were accepted. Among those who attended were Prince von Radolin, the German Ambassador; Baron Kurino, the Japanese Ambassador; the Duke and Duchess d'Uzès, the Marquise Talleyrand-Périgord, the Duchess de Grammont, and the Duke and Duchess de Morny.

Among the Americans who attended were Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, ex-Judge and Mrs. E. H. Gary, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Sloan.

Mme. Emma Eames, Miss Billie Burke, Miss Mary Garden, and Miss Kitty Cheatham were the only professionals invited as guests.

NEW WOMAN A FREAK, SAYS BISHOP DOANE

One Who Strives for Man's Work "a Horrible, Misshapen Monster," He Declares.

SEES SUFFRAGISTS' DOOM

Their "Quiet Appeal Will Be Drowned by Howling-Dervish Suffragettes"—Talks to Girl Graduates.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 8.—Bishop William Croswell Doane, in his address to the graduating class of St. Agnes School this afternoon, bitterly attacked the new woman in her efforts to do man's work, and denounced the woman suffrage campaign as a "hysterical clamor employed in the pursuit of this chimera."

"Your womanhood is your especial gift of grace and honor equal to, but different from, the glory of manhood," he said to the young women students. "Nothing but mischief and misery and confusion worse confounded can come from the attempt to make the two the same. The masculine woman, the effeminate man, like bearded women or a long-haired man, is a lusus naturae, a monstrum horrendum informe. So, first, you are to keep and guard as a sacred trust your womanhood, your femininess.

"In the stress and strain, in the crush and pressure of our modern life, woman has elbowed herself into certain kinds of work in which she resembles and rivals man. How much humanity, how much society, has gained by it, if employed women are to make unemployed men, it is difficult, if not impossible, to say. And yet I believe things will right themselves in time. But this deep line of distinctive difference remains unchanged.

"There are still a multitude of occupations in which neither can supplant the other. And in our huge country, with its growing demands, the balance will sooner or later be struck. While each sex must confine itself to certain sorts of occupation, men being unable to do much of women's work, as women are unable to do much of men's, where there is common ground of possible service they will not supplant, but rather supplement, each other.

"Only, whatever the point and place of meeting be, in mental or manual labor, in professional, or in any other, bear yourselves always with the decency and dignity of true womanhood, and choose, where choice is left to you, the occupation and position that most fitly belongs to you as women, realizing and remembering that equal dignity attaches to every duty done, or every service rendered, or every position faithfully filled.

"I believe myself that the vocation of a trained nurse is as honorable and as valuable as the calling of a physician, and to my old-fashioned notion is more suitable and more becoming. In spite of the fair figure and quick cleverness of Shakespeare's Portia, I think the place for the women pleading is with Mrs. Ballington Booth in the cells and corridors of jails rather than in the courtroom before a jury and a Judge. And I am absolutely sure that the admission or the intrusion of women into the ministry is not only against the teaching of Scripture and the tradition of centuries, but is the spoiling of their great power of teaching and influencing in schools and classes a few at a time those whom the very closeness and quietness and privacy influence and effect.

"Deep in the very roots of nature and character the cleavage of this difference lies. Guard it and humor it as the choice and special gift to you of power, as the intimation and indication to you of the lines by which to shape your lives. Truly as the boy is father of the man so truly the girl is mother of the woman. And I have hope and confidence to think that some such shaping and setting as your womanhood has taken on her will make and mold your womanhood when you get out into the world and your work.

"I cannot count it necessary and perhaps it is not wise for me to caution you against the loudly shrieked call to give women the right to vote and to be voted for. I am disposed to think that the quiet and decent appeal of a few of the so-called suffragists will be so drowned in the sort of howling-dervish performance of the so-called Suffragettes that they will fail of any effect. At any rate, the argument should be addressed rather to legislators than to you, except so far as one is justified in saying here to you that your womanhood will gain nothing by suffrage, and is losing every day in its dignity and its true influence by the hysterical clamor which is employed in the pursuit of this chimera."

BARONESS VON WREDE HERE.

Sister of Kuhne Beveridge to Go on the Stage.

Among the arrivals on the steamship Kroonland yesterday was the Baroness von Wrede, sister of the sculptress, Kuhne Beveridge, and grandaughter of Gen. Beveridge, ex-Governor of Illinois. The Baroness has lived in Europe since her mother took her there, at the age of 6 years, to meet her stepfather, the Baron von Wrede. Upon the mother's death, in 1904, the Baron bestowed the title of Baroness upon his stepdaughter.

For many years she studied art, but later decided that her talent lay more in the direction of the stage. She made her initial appearance with Mme. Réjane and achieved considerable success. Four years ago the Baroness began to appear in vaudeville in this country. She intends, she said yesterday, to return to the stage here.

MANAGERS ELECT OFFICERS.

Henry B. Harris Succeeds Mr. Savage as President of the Association.

Lignon Johnson has been retained for another term as general counsel.

The meeting was fully attended, and there was no friction. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Savage, Mr. Cooley, and Mr. Johnson. Mr. Savage asked that the members work even harder than they have done in the past. Each member pledged himself to bring a new member into the organization before the next meeting.

JAMES A. RICHMOND DEAD.

Was President of Broadway Railroad, Which He Organized with Sharp.

James A. Richmond, whose death in Paris was reported here yesterday, was a prominent figure in traction affairs in New York City twenty-five years ago. He was then President of the Broadway Railroad, which he and Jacob Sharp organized in 1884, obtaining a franchise from the Board of Aldermen over the veto of Mayor Edson.

The granting of this franchise was made the subject of legislative investigation, and involved President Richmond and his associates, including Sharp, in charges that led to indictments and in the case of Sharp to a conviction for bribery, which was later set aside by the Court of Appeals.

Mr. Richmond was 70 years old. He was the son of Alvan Richmond, a business man of Little Falls. He came to New York when he was 22 and became a grocer's clerk. Later he went into partnership with William Chapman in the produce commission business. Mr. Richmond frequented the Brevoort House, and there he made the acquaintance of many men well known in those days, among them Horace Greeley, James B. Taylor, William M. Tweed, and Jacob Sharp.

Mr. Richmond never married. Mrs. C. L. Ingham of Buffalo, a niece, was his nearest relative. His body will be brought to this country to be interred at Little Falls.

Played as Death Knocked.

William Hoffman of 275 Etna Street, Brooklyn's most famous pinochle player, who died on Saturday at his home, was buried yesterday in Lutheran Cemetery.

He was regarded as the "nerviest" player of the game in the borough, and a story illustrating this is told by his friends. Four years ago he was playing in a pinochle tournament in the Eastern District when he suffered a stroke of paralysis. Despite his condition and the efforts of his friends to take him to his home, he insisted on remaining until the game was ended.

With another man holding his cards, Mr. Hoffman, propped up in a chair, directed the play and won out. As the last card was played he fell unconscious in the arms of a friend.

Mr. Hoffman was born in Germany seventy-five years ago. He served in the civil war in the Twenty-ninth and the Sixty-eighth New York Volunteers. For many years he was engaged in the distilling business in Broadway, Brooklyn. He was a Past Commander of Metternich Post, G. A. R.

He leaves a widow and two sons.

A NOVEL OF TODAY

Now, only a few weeks old, this great anonymous novel enters upon its second month as the best selling novel here. As you know, it was greeted with a flood—a great volume—of enthusiastic praise—vaster, indeed, than ever has been accorded any other anonymous story in so short a space. The Acclaim has been spontaneous—the success emphatic and quick.

Why?

Because, as one critic says, "no greater novel has been published in the United States," while another believes that "this year of literary grace has seen the rising of a new fictional star of the first magnitude." The Triumph has now become country-wide.

The Baltimore News says:

"It is well to remember that the title rings like the coin cast by Mrs. Wharton; that Mrs. Deland has an unexpected way of manifesting herself recently; that W. J. Locke is quite capable of this masquerading; that Booth Tarkington—'In fact, you never can tell, you never can tell!'"

TIGERS BEAT OUT YANKS IN ELEVENTH

Hilltoppers Fight a Good Battle, but Are Downed by the Champions.

16,000 ROOTERS BACK AGAIN

Strain of Hard and Close Struggle Causes Misplays by New York Youngsters at Critical Periods.

Not too good for Fandom's daily food was a game Detroit won by a score of 5 to 4 on the hilltop yesterday, but 'twas good enough to keep another 16,000 rooters on edge through eleven innings—good enough to be a good game to win and a hard one to lose. It was the kind of humanly imperfect event one remembers long after he has grown so gray that schoolgirls call him "Sir" and even district messengers are respectful to him. Classy plays a-plenty, with a fair sprinkling of errors to leaven the lump. Hopes and fears in an alternating current that electrified the fans most of the time, leaving just sufficient leisure for cool crunching of ice cream cones and swift survey of the crowd—a spectacle in itself. Not too technical a game, but the kind to which the average fan warms gratefully. And eleven—count 'em—eleven innings of it, with Hughey Jennings's coaching line vaudeville specialty as a sideshow wherein the pink lemonade of wholesome American fun flowed freely.

Bingling and bungling decided the issue. The bingle was supplied by Cobb, the bungle by Engle. Tyrus; in the tense eleventh, with Bush on first in consequence of the only pass Detroit drew, tore off a streak of safety to left that was good for one bag and one only, factory cost, and on which the forward runner should have been held to second. But Engle just had taken his hands out of the butter tub, and when his Houdini performance with the little joker ended Bush was on third and Cobb was looking loftily around from the midstation. With the result that, as only one man was out—Crawford, on Cree's good catch deep in centre—the Tigers' midfielder rustled home on Moriarty's out at first. After that O'Leary was an easy victor, but it was too late to save the day, for the Highlanders' half was a procession.

Loss of the game was doubly hard because Brockett, save in the seventh, pitched well, and McConnell, who worked out the last three rounds, was better yet. Also, the fielding of the Hilltoppers, while not so fast as on the preceding day, was rapid on the whole. On the other hand, the home players didn't hit as often nor as effectively as in Monday's battle. They rolled up as many raps as their rivals, but the Tigers bingled more bunchily. When all's said, though, it was due to Willetts's activity on the slab even more than to the generally excellent batting, base running, and fielding of the visiting outfit as a mass that victory finally fluttered to Detroit's banner. He hit a batsman and walked two, but once he steadied down after the exciting opening chapter his control was first rate until the eighth, when the locals tied.

It looked for six innings as if the New Yorks would trim "the class of the league" again. Sixteen thousand ardent well-wishers thought so as they watched the whirlwind swinging and sprinting of Stallings's men in the first. With McIntyre, Bush, and Crawford bowled over like ninepins, Cree crept to the plate and fixed Willetts with a basilisk gaze that drew the ball straight to his spareribs. Tumultuous cheers arose when Keeler sent a bevel-edged single to left centre, and when Elberfeld filled the triangle by beating out a bunt the applause, though inarticulate, said plainly, "We like our William, but oh, you ki-id!" It was as pretty a layout as the most exacting rooter could require. Three such high-steppers as Birdie, Willie, and Normie prancing on the paths and Engle hefting the hickory with a businesslike air. The grand stand gasped, and the bleachers roared themselves into the traditional ominous calm.

"On the nose, Claude!" came the clarion call from the rear of the main pavilion, where fans were packed ten deep. Engle looked eagerly for that part of the ball, but he had no chance to gratify those yearning for the crack of a base cleaner, for Willetts passed him along. What? The fans hardly could believe their eyes. A gift run from a Detroit boxman! Yet so it was, and still all the angles were full, with none out.

Nor did it look any the less rosy for the runners-up when Chase forced Elberfeld at third, for Keeler counted on the play and two speedy men were on the cushions. Hope bounded higher when Schaeffer's muff of Bush's fling let Chase get second on Laporte's force hit, once more stocking the corners. In that moment, however, Willetts evidently said things to himself that restored his poise, or else Manager Jennings gave him the high sign from the bench, for the best Austin could do was to squeeze Engle out at the plate, and Kleinow's long lift was meringue for Crawford. Still, two runs were two runs, and it was with unabated optimism that the fans cheered the Yankees on the way back to the village green.

It slips in smoothly here to record that Moriarty was the banner batsman of the afternoon. He achieved a trio of taps in his first three times up, not forgetting his semi-sacrificial out at first in the final that let in the telling tally. George made the first of his hits in the second. With Cobb gone, he laid down a little one soft as a baby's dream between the plate and third, then extended himself successfully. Moriarty was a human hat rack in that round, for he stole second, and gallopod on to third because Kleinow's throw to Laporte was wild. But O'Leary fouled to Chase and Schaefer fanned.

Brockett opened the second for the locals with a single over short. Then came one of the game's many sparkling plays. Stanage made a running jump for Cree's short foul fly, followed it earthward, and nailed it an inch from the sward, falling flat, but gripping his quarry. Good play by Bush to Schaefer made Keeler's attempt a force, and, though the Kid carded another one-timer, Engle's high one was absorbed by McIntyre.

Near-scores on both sides marked the game's progress until the fourth, when raps by Moriarty, Schaefer, and Stanage, Austin's fumble of O'Leary's grasser, and his wild throw in relaying Stanage's single, followed by Willetts's sacrifice fly, piled up a quartet of counts for the visitors. In the eighth Laporte, with one down, waited to good purpose and advanced on Austin's sacrifice. There Stallings showed generalship, for he sent Demmitt in to bat for Kleinow. The substitute's three-bagger, that registered Laporte, would have been a homer if he hadn't fallen in rounding the first buoy. He scored, tying the tallies, on a safe bunt by Hemphill, batting for Brockett, and Hemp went to second as a result of Willetts's wild throw to first, making third on a passed ball.

Cree was next up, with one run needed to win. There were the time, the place, and the man, it seemed, and all fandom went wild. But Bush and Moriarty collaborated on Birdie's tale of woe, and that was New York's last chance.

BOWLERS MAKE BIG SCORES.

Women Share Honors with Men at Madison Square Garden.

High-class bowling marked the work of yesterday on the alleys at Madison Square Garden, where the National championships are being contested. Nine men in the individual event scored an average of over 200 for a series of three games, and in the two-men event there were four teams whose members totaled an average over the double century figures.

The most remarkable bowling yesterday was done by Walter Graw of the Germania Club of Brooklyn, who took first place in the boys' tournament, rolling a total of 574. A. Weydig, another of the boys who rolled yesterday in this event, showed exceptional form in one of his games, making a total of 244.

The women's tournament also showed some high scores. In the individual events Mrs. Spofford rolled one game of 201, while Miss Littlefield marked up a score of 551 for a series of three games.

The bowling of yesterday practically marked the close of the regular bowling championships, and the prizes in the events will be awarded Friday and Saturday, after a recapitulation of the scores in the individual, two men, and five men events. There are still several teams to roll, but for the most part the fraternal organizations, which begin rolling to-night, will compete.

Squadron A Teams in Polo.

Two Squadron A teams played an interesting polo match yesterday on the Van Cortlandt Park parade field. The opposing sides lined up as the Blues and the Reds, and after a fast and spirited game the Blues won by 8 goals to 6.

KING COMMENDS AMERICAN WINNERS

Visits W. H. Moore's Victorious Horses at Olympia and Congratulates Owner.

GALA DAY AT GREAT SHOW

Royal Party Witnesses Triumph of French Military Team for King Edward's Gold Cup.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 8.—This was the day of days at the Horse Show. Owing to the presence of the King and Queen, the usual special arrangements on that account, and consequent large attendance, more than 11,000 persons were in the amphitheatre, a greater number than ever assembled before at Olympia. A considerable percentage of these were Americans, yet they were vastly overshadowed by the great mass of British spectators.

That the Horse Show, which largely was created by reason of American energy and initiative, has become an English institution was plainly manifest. Notwithstanding the extraordinary number of horses displayed by Americans, it may be noted easily that they are of secondary interest in the eyes of typical British spectators, who never are ready to admit that any equine product in the world can be superior to that bred and trained in this country.

Nevertheless the most brilliantly stirring event of the show was the contest for the King Edward VII. Gold Cup, for military officers and their mounts, of any nation. This was decided to-day in favor of the French competitor, and the award met the entire approbation of the multitude. The jumping performances of the French, Italian, and English steeds were of a very high degree of merit.

Many Americans expressed keen regret that their country was not represented in this sphere of international rivalry, being convinced that young cavalry officers, formed at West Point and with American mounts, could at least have held their own among the crack military riders of the world. The King and Queen viewed the cup competition and also the parade of Morey's and Suffolk giant draught teams from the royal box, which was magnificently adorned with flowers. The King gave a special reception there, in the presence of the cheering multitude, to the victorious French officers.

Immediately after these events the royal spectators visited the temporary stables in the pavilion annex, giving especial attention to the exhibits of W. H. Moore. A message was sent to Judge Moore's private box in the amphitheatre stating that the King wished to see him. His Majesty spoke to the American in enthusiastic terms of the latter's horses, congratulated him warmly on having brought so splendid a lot, and also on the richness of taste in the decorations of their quarters. Lord Honsdale, Chairman of the Horse Show, accompanied the King on his round of inspection.

The huge Clydesdales composing Morey's team held much of the attention of the royal party, and Queen Alexandra, who was looking her best in pale violet, seemed particularly drawn to the beautiful trotters belonging to Messrs. Stotesbury, Watson, and Winans. The usual marks of great popularity were lavished on the King by the throng. Americans for the most part were as ardent in applauding him as the British. Among those who were present were Ambassador and Mrs. Reid, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morris and Mr. and Mrs. M. Morris of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Nash of New York, Princess Hatzfeldt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Gates, Mrs. W. Martin, Mrs. M. T. McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Parks of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Creighton, and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Winsor of Philadelphia. The royal party spent three hours at Olympia.

MANY AWARDS TO AMERICANS.

Judge W. H. Moore's Horses Take Nine Prizes in Olympia Ring.

LONDON, June 8.—Judge William H. Moore continues to be one of the most prominent figures at the Horse Show and added nine awards to-day to his already long list of prizes. Judge Moore drives all his horses, and is almost constantly in the ring. A. G. Vanderbilt and Walter Winans also increased their string of ribbons today, while the Clydesdales of the Morris Company of Chicago, which give a daily exhibition, are still a popular feature of the show. The grace and strength of these heavy animals have excited the enthusiastic admiration of the London critics.

In the competition for a horse exceeding 15.2 hands, shown to a brougham, the first prize of $150 was given to Judge Moore's Marie. C. W. Watson's Moonshine took second honors and the cash prize of $100. Judge Moore's Sylvanus was fourth.

American exhibitors also got first and second honors in this class for pairs of horses, to be driven by ladies and shown in phaeton with rumble. C. W. Watson was awarded first prize, $200, with Norena and Kitty Grey, while Judge Moore got second money, $125, with Phyllis and Menella.

In a class for novice pairs of harness horses exceeding 15 hands, Walter Winans's Crack Shot and Newton Sportsman won second and W. H. Moore's Hildegarde and Leonidas third.

Judge Moore's Hildegarde and Leonidas captured first in the class for pairs of harness horses any height, shown to a brougham, victoria, or barouche. Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Tonawanda and Wanda took third prize in this class.

Blandford of Ossining; Directors—Edward Cox of Buffalo and H. H. Valentine of Albany.

Sieger Defeats Billy Leary.

In a savagely contested bout of ten rounds before the Brown Athletic Association in West Twenty-third Street last night, Charles Sieger, the Iron Man of Hoboken, defeated Billy Leary of Gladstone, N. J., the bell at the end of the tenth round saving Leary from a knockout.

Giants Beat Cubs Through Mathewson's Brilliant Pitching.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Two errors, a sacrifice and a single in the first inning, gave Chicago two runs. One single in the fifth was their only other hit off Mathewson. A pass in the third, a low throw in the fifth, McCormick's lead off with a two-bagger in the sixth, each followed by timely hitting, gave the visitors the victory. Score:

YACHTS AT BERMUDA TWO MINUTES APART

Amorita First, Closely Followed by Schooner Margaret, in Record Time.

LATTER PROBABLY WINS

Crusader II. Arrives 38 Minutes Later—Two Yachts Still Out and Motor Boats Not Sighted.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 8.—So far as can be figured to-night, the schooner Margaret, owned by George S. Runk of the New York Yacht Club, has won the sailing race from New York to Bermuda by about four and a half hours. Three of the yachts crossed the finish mark, off St. David's Head, this afternoon, one of the most remarkable contests that has ever taken place on the sea. Less than two minutes separated the schooner Amorita, owned by Dr. W. L. Baum of Chicago, and the Margaret. The former got in first. She is, however, the scratch boat, allowing the Margaret four hours and thirty minutes, and as the latter finished right on the Amorita's heels, the Margaret is the winner on her allowance. The schooner Crusader II., owned by Edwin Palmer of the Atlantic Yacht Club and sailed by Capt. Charley Barr, came over the line thirty-eight minutes and fifty-five seconds after the Margaret.

The start was made from Gravesend Bay at 10 A. M. Saturday, and the finishing times to-day were: Amorita, 4:19:15; Margaret, 4:21:12; Crusader II., 5:0:07.

The Amorita allowed the Crusader II. one hour and thirty minutes and the Margaret had three hours allowance on Crusader II. Up to dark the sloop Marchioness, owned by J. P. Crozier of the Yachtsmen's Club, Philadelphia, which has an allowance of 24 hours from the Amorita, and the schooner Restless, owned by Dr. L. Sharpe, also of the Yachtsmen's Club, which has an allowance of 45 hours and 45 minutes, had not been sighted. As the sloop has a racing length of only 67 feet, and the schooner 38 feet, it was not expected that they would be able to keep up with their larger rivals.

Nothing has been heard from the four power boats which started from Gravesend Bay at 4:20 o'clock Saturday afternoon. It was thought here that the leader of these boats would reach the finish before the sailing yachts, but the latter were favored by excellent breezes and a comparatively smooth sea, of which they took full advantage. Mr. Runk, owner of the Margaret, declared that the race was a marvelous one in every way. His boat never parted a string and was in touch with the Amorita from start to finish. He did not see the Crusader after the start, until within two hours of the finish. The Margaret kept a direct course southeast by south, and fetched the markboat with but slight variation. The day's runs were as follows: One hundred and fifty-seven, 257, 197, and 59 miles.

The elapsed time of the Amorita from New York is 3 days 6 hours 19 minutes 15 seconds, and that of the Margaret only two minutes more, or a total of 78 hours and 19 and 21 minutes respectively. This establishes a new sailing record for the Bermuda ocean race. The schooner Dervish, which won the race in 1907, formerly held the record in 3 days 19 hours 20 minutes, or 91 hours and 20 minutes. Last year, when the race was started from Marblehead, the schooner Venona won in 99 hours 32 minutes 15 seconds. The Amorita and Margaret both beat Dervish's record by thirteen hours.

Special to The New York Times.

RAWLINS, Wyo., June 8.—After dictating my telegram for THE TIMES yesterday, and as I am doing now to my manager, I received the best shower bath in all my career. I was thoroughly washed and saved a laundry bill. The shower lasted one hour and nine minutes when I was east of Rawlins. I could not stop, as I could not get dry clothing, so I continued on to Rawlins, arriving at 7:30 P. M., with my outer clothing dried out.

I was escorted into Rawlins by ex-Judge of the Supreme Court Homer Merrill, ex-Marshal F. A. Headsall, James H. Clause, and H. A. Gonden.

After changing clothes I felt comfortable while waiting for supper. I received three letters, one from my mascot in Wall Street, one from D. P. Henry of Boston, and another from my newly made friend and benefactor, A. C. Overholt of Winona, Kan.

The kind reception tendered me by the residents of this town, the special treatment, and the three cheering letters made me forget troubles. I received a copy of THE TIMES of May 23, containing a kindly "Topic of the Times," with reference to my arduous task, which greatly pleased me. I went to bed 9:30 P. M. and slept till 11:30 P. M., and after a light lunch I started on my walk at 12:20 A. M., feeling in excellent condition and the best of spirits, in company with six prominent people of this town, who walked two and one-half miles with me. I consider that I won the Ashley belt on two hours' sleep, and probably will win this effort in the same way, weather permitting.

The rains have caused great damage to railroads in this State, consequently trains yesterday were from twelve to fifteen hours late, which will keep my manager behind and deprive me of his services in making arrangements. I walked in two showers this morning, getting wet, but dried out again in the wind, and I hope to arrive at Wamsutter at 7 P. M.

WOMEN'S GOLF TOURNEY.

Miss Adams of Boston Leads Field for Eastern Championship.

Forty women golfers, including some of the best exponents of the game among the fair sex, played the first half of their 36-hole medal play match for the championship of the Women's Eastern Golf Association yesterday on the links of the Baltusrol Golf Club, near Short Hills, N. J. The scoring, however, was unusually high, much more so than had been expected, in view of the array of champions and ex-champions on the field, but it was due, as one of the surprisingly high-scoring women explained, by the fact that the Baltusrol course has been rendered so difficult recently by extra bunkers that it is an exceedingly tricky and hard one for even a man to negotiate in exceptionally low figures.

The women who turned in scores were: Miss M. B. Adams, Boston, 91; Mrs. C. B. Fox, Philadelphia, 96; Miss Kate Harley, Fall River, 100; Miss G. Bishop, Bridgeport, 104; Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Philadelphia, 104; Miss I. Richardson, Philadelphia, 105; Miss F. C. Griscom, Philadelphia, 105; Miss E. Hurry, Englewood, 105; Miss E. S. Porter, Boston, 105; Miss Myra D. Paterson, Baltusrol, 107; Miss McNeely, Philadelphia, 107; Mrs. C. T. Stout, Richmond County, 108; Miss M. W. Phelps, Boston, 109; Mrs. A. Faith, Wykagyl, 112; Miss C. E. Morrill, Boston, 112; Mrs. E. F. Sanford, Essex County, 112; Mrs. W. F. Morgan, Baltusrol, 113; Miss Julia R. Mix, Englewood, 113; Mrs. W. F. West, Philadelphia, 114; Mrs. E. G. Hood, Philadelphia, 115; Mrs. Ormsby McCammon, Washington, 115; Mrs. St. John Smith, Baltusrol, 115; Mrs. N. P. Rogers, Baltusrol, 119; Mrs. Philip De Wolf, Philadelphia, 124; Miss A. Davis, Philadelphia, 125; Miss G. Davis, Philadelphia, 127; Mrs. H. O. Smith, Montclair, 129; Miss Ethel Maule, Philadelphia, 131, and Miss Bredt, Essex County, 134.

Preceding the championship play the annual meeting of the association was held and the following officers were chosen for the year: President, Mrs. Edward F. Sanford, Essex County, Orange, N. J.; Vice President, Miss Maud K. Wetmore, Washington; Secretary, Miss Louise A. Wells, Boston; Treasurer, Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, Nassau County. It was decided to make the championship play hereafter 72 holes instead of 36.

As a special feature there was a driving competition in the morning, each contestant driving three balls. Miss Harley won the honors with an average of 168 yards, her best drive being 185 yards. Miss Adams was second with an average of 167 yards. The present title holder of the Eastern Association, Miss Osgood of Boston, was prevented from defending her championship owing to illness.

Smith-Gray Through and Through.

IT wasn't money, it wasn't delivery, it wasn't even convenience that caused us to take the making of Smith-Gray clothes out of the hands of trade manufacturers a few years ago. It was our customers. Since we began doing our own tailoring, the clothes have cost us more than they used to. But—the clothes come a great deal nearer to our ideas—they back up what we want to say about them—they are Smith-Gray clothes through and through.

YEAR'S WHEAT CROP WILL BE SMALLER

Yield Estimated at 652,351,000 Bushels, Against 688,255,000 for June 1, 1908.

PRICE UP LESS THAN A CENT

Grain Markets Little Affected by the Government's Report—Drop in Rye and Oats Yield.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Government crop report issued to-day shows that on June 1 the Spring wheat condition averages 95.2 per cent., Winter wheat 80.7, acreage sown to Spring wheat 18,391,000, rye condition 89.6, oats 88.7, and barley 90.6.

The Spring wheat condition is compared with 95 per cent. a year ago and a ten-year average of 92.6. Winter wheat average is against 83.5 per cent. a month ago, 86 a year ago, and a ten-year average of 80.5. The Spring wheat acreage is 6.9 per cent. more than sown last year. The condition of rye a month ago was 88.1, a year ago 91.3, and averaged 89.4 on June 1 for ten years.

The condition of oats is compared with 92.9 a year ago and a ten-year average of 88.4. The area sown to oats was about 32,422,000 acres, or .02 per cent. more than the area sown last year.

The condition of barley is compared with 89.7 a year ago and a ten-year average of 90.6. The area sown to barley is about 6,881,000 acres, or 3.5 per cent. more than sown last year.

The condition of meadows (hay) on June 1 was 87.6, against 84.5 on May 1, 1909, and 96.8 on June 1, 1908.

The condition of pastures on June 1 was 89.3, against 80.1 on May 1, 1909, 97.7 on June 1, 1908, and 91.1, the June 1 average for the last ten years.

While grain markets seemed at first disposed to anticipate a very poor Government crop report, upon the actual appearance of the Government's figures much of the early advance was lost and both in Chicago and on the Produce Exchange here quotations were less than a full cent above the final prices of Monday.

O. K. Lyle, the crop expert and statistician, in discussing the report and its suggestion, as to the probable crop, said:

"On Tuesday appeared the official crop report expressing a condition for Winter wheat of 80.7. The May condition was 83.5. It would appear to most people that the decline of 2.8 points from May condition would mean less wheat. The fact is that June conditions in the past five years average 4.32 points under May and mean an equal quantity of wheat, as there are varying conditions, and only the one yield per acre to all. In the five years, 1904 to 1908 inclusive, are found five crops of Winter wheat on a basis of the last census that are the best on which to build a crop suggestion on the condition figures. With May we have nothing now to do. We are in June.

"Reverting to the past we find in the five years there was harvested 144,810,834 acres of Winter wheat that produced 2,101,600,184 bushels, or an average of 14.512 bushels per acre from an average June condition of 81.86. It is simple arithmetic to declare 100 condition to be 17.728 bushels per acre. Taking 80.7 per cent. of this you have 14.3 bushels, and applied to 27,871,000 acres a crop suggestion of 398,555,300 bushels."

Applying the same methods to the Spring wheat crop, the indicated yield is 253,796,000 bushels, making a total crop of both Spring and Winter wheat of 652,351,000 bushels. The indicated yield of oats is 941,210,200 bushels. The tables for Winter and Spring wheat and the total crop are as follows:

Knickerbocker Trust to Pay Ahead.

The Directors of the Knickerbocker Trust Company voted yesterday to anticipate on Aug. 1 25 per cent. of their surplus A certificates. A short time ago the last payment of the company's certificates of deposit was anticipated, leaving only the surplus certificates held by the depositors under the plan of reorganization to be paid off. The action of the Directors yesterday indicates that all the outstanding certificates will be paid much in advance of the time originally set in the plan.

To Contest Dominion Copper Sale.

The Dissenting Stock and Bond Holders' Committee of the Dominion Copper Company, in a circular issued to its depositing security holders, says that the committee's counsel at Vancouver has been instructed to oppose confirmation of the sale of the property, which took place on June 4, and if the sale is confirmed to appeal to the higher court. While these legal proceedings are under way, the committee announces, no further payments by the depositors will be required until further notice is given.

Hildreth's Horse Wears Down Fashion Plate at Gravesend.

The liveliest racing of the season in New York was provided at the Gravesend course yesterday by a programme on which five purse events drew big fields, and the one stake fixture, the Broadway, of $2,500, produced a really sensational contest, with the tireless campaigner, Fitzherbert, the winner after a long sustained chase from a rear position at the start. # HAWLEY RAILWAY ALLIANCE.

The Alton Makes Traffic Agreement with the Kansas City and Mexico.

The Chicago & Alton, one of the Hawley group of roads, has entered into a traffic agreement with the newly constructed Kansas City, Mexico & Orient, under the terms of which the Chicago & Alton will receive the preference in exchange traffic with the Mexico & Orient, while the Alton, for its part, undertakes to turn traffic over to the Stilwell Line.

The arrangement is of advantage to both roads as matters now stand, but it will become a much more important alliance, it is thought, upon the completion of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient's plans for the development of through traffic to the Pacific Coast and to the Far East in conjunction with a steamship line which the Hamburg-American Line is to establish from the Mexican terminus of the Stilwell Road to Asiatic ports.

Vice President Ross of the Chicago & Alton has been elected a Director of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient, thus establishing a closer relationship between the Alton and the Stilwell Line. The arrangement is regarded as one step further in Edwin Hawley's plans for the development of his railroad system along broad lines.

TO SELL ALASKA CENTRAL.

If Transfer Is Consummated Road Will Enter Mining Region.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, June 8.—According to an authoritative report here, the committee in charge of the defunct Sovereign Bank is negotiating with a syndicate of English capitalists for the sale of the Alaska Central Railway, in which the bank is interested to the extent of $2,000,000.

A condition of the sale is reported to be that the bank' people shall carry the rails fifteen miles further, which would strike the fringe of a valuable iron and copper belt. This extension will cost the bank very little, as practically all the materials, including rails, are on the ground already. The syndicate, if it acquires the property, will then extend the line another thirty-five miles, into the heart of the mining region.

The authorities of the bank, the manager of which, D. A. Stewart, is now said to be in Mexico, expected to lose $1,000,000 on this enterprise, but if the $2,000,000 is realized, they will not only escape the threatened double liability, but will recover at least 75 per cent. of the amount they paid in.

$75,000,000 PACIFIC STOCK TO BE RETIRED

Southern Pacific's Plan Is to Exchange the Preferred for the Common.

CASH OR BONDS AT WILL

Banker Familiar with the Three Plans Thinks the Shareholders Will Take Common Stock Offer.

The Directors of the Southern Pacific Company voted yesterday to call for retirement the company's $75,000,000 preferred stock on July 15, the date on which the next semi-annual dividend on the stock is payable. The option is given the preferred stockholders of taking cash at 115, par in 4½ per cent. bonds, with a cash payment of 2 per cent., or share for share in common stock.

The latter is the exchange plan, which all the stockholders are expected to accept, inasmuch as the common stock is selling at 133. The matter was thus put by a banker particularly well qualified to speak of Southern Pacific affairs:

"It is a foregone conclusion that all the preferred stockholders will elect to take share for share in common stock, but if any of them should not want common stock they have the option of taking 4½ per cent. bonds, as the company would like to keep them with it as investors."

This statement of the terms of the retirement of the preferred stock was issued by the company:

> The Board of Directors of the Southern Pacific Company to-day called for redemption of the preferred stock of that company at $115 per share, on the 15th day of July, 1909.
>
> At the same time the board authorized an issue of not exceeding $100,000,000 of 4½ per cent. twenty-year gold bonds or debentures, redeemable after three years at 105, and provided that any holder of preferred stock so desiring should be entitled to exchange his stock for such 4½ per cent bonds, dollar for dollar, and receive in addition $20 in cash for each share of stock so exchanged.
>
> Thus the holders of such preferred stock now, and until and including July 15, will have three options:
>
> (1.) To exchange such stock for a like amount of said 4½ per cent. bonds and $20 per share in cash.
>
> (2.) To convert such stock into the common stock of the company, dollar for dollar.
>
> (3.) To surrender the said stock on July 15 and receive $115 per share therefor.
>
> A semi-annual dividend of $3.50 per share upon the preferred stock, heretofore declared, will be payable on July 15 to holders of such preferred stock of record as such on June 30; and a quarterly dividend on the common stock of $1.50 per share will be payable on July 1 to the holders of the dividend warrants appertaining to the common stock. Hence, to guard against the loss of the difference in dividends by those desiring to convert their stock prior to July 1, (when both classes will be ex-dividend,) the Directors have provided that holders of preferred stock converting the same now and leaving an order will, on July 15, be paid the difference in dividends, amounting to $2 per share.
>
> Pending the engraving of the 4½ per cent. bonds, temporary certificates for such bonds will be issued to those desiring to avail of the privilege to exchange their preferred stock for bonds and cash. The bonds will be of the denomination of $1,000, and to effect exchange the stock must be tendered in lots of ten shares, or multiples thereof.

This announcement was made after the second of two meetings held by the Directors of the company. One convened in the morning and adjourned at 12:30. The Directors got together again at 2:30 and completed consideration of the retirement plan, and then announced the terms offered to the preferred stockholders. Assuming that all the preferred is exchanged for common the company will for the time being, at least, effect a saving of 1 per cent. a year in its dividend requirements on $75,000,000 of its stock owing to the substitution of 6 per cent. common stock for 7 per cent. preferred stock. The amount of common stock outstanding is $197,852,400, which will be increased to about $273,000,000 upon the exchange of common stock for the outstanding $75,179,300 of preferred stock.

The Southern Pacific's preferred stock, the issue of which is limited to $100,000,000, was authorized in 1904, and in that year about $40,000,000 of the stock was subscribed by the stockholders at par. In 1907 another $35,000,000 was issued to the shareholders at par. Of the total amount outstanding the Union Pacific holds $34,200,000.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8.—Cambria Steel was about the only strong feature of the local market. This stock was braced by the very optimistic statements concerning the reviving business for the year of the company. The balance of the list was rather heavy but inactive.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Trading opened to-day after the three-day holiday season on a rather broad scale, but the price tendency was somewhat irregular. Booth Fisheries certificates were in demand and advanced. The common sold as high as 13¼ before midday and the preferred at 57. Booth preferred sold at 1½ again. Chicago Telephone, Match, Swifts, Street's Car, and People's Gas sold a little higher than on Saturday at the close, but Telephone and Match closed easier.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Reported That B. & O. Is to be Listed in Paris.

LONDON, June 8.—Money was in strong demand on the market to-day for settlement purposes, and discounts were firm.

On the Stock Exchange another huge settlement has commenced in mines, in which the rates are stiff. New business in this department is restricted, and prices were easy, with the exception of Chartereds, which were a feature at 38s. Consols and gilt-edged securities were firm, but copper shares dropped with the metal and New York selling. Foreigners were quiet and irregular.

American securities opened nominally within a fraction of parity. Later Southern Pacific and Canadian Pacific advanced, but the rest of the list eased off, and at noon the tone was uncertain, with prices ½ higher to ⅜ lower than yesterday's New York closing. Dullness prevailed in this section until the receipt of the Wall Street opening, when fair buying raised values, especially of Southern Pacific, and the market closed firm. Baltimore & Ohio was a feature on reports that it would be introduced for quotation on the Paris Bourse.

Bar silver dull, 24¼d per ounce.

Money, 1½@2 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills, 1⅞ per cent.

PARIS, June 8.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened steady, but the close was irregular.

Three per cent. rentes, 98f 15c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 21c for checks.

BERLIN, June 8.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were weak and trading was inactive.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Good Weather Outbalances Trade Demand—Closes 6 to 17 Points Down.

Cotton became weak and unsettled late yesterday, with the close easy at a net decline of 6@17 points. Bullish conditions in the dry goods trade were a sustaining influence during the quiet early trading, but were offset by good weather reports.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 1 point, and right after the call prices ruled about 2@3 points higher on over-night buying orders. Weakness of the near month led to rumors that cotton was coming here for delivery on contract.

The range of contract prices follows:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks in Irregular Movement—Call Money Rates, 1¾@2 Per Cent.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC'S PLAN

Retirement of Preferred Causes Sharp Advances—Government Crop Report Fails to Confirm Damage Reports.

The stock market yesterday was very plainly engaged in an effort to determine in advance the probable effects of at least three developments which it was known would come too late in the day for actual appraisement, and its efforts were not altogether successful. The matters upon which it was working were the expected announcement of the calling of Southern Pacific preferred stock; the Government's report on June 1 crop conditions, and the outcome of the offering of $40,000,000 of New York City 4 per cent. bonds. When the Southern Pacific Directors went into session in the morning Southern Pacific stocks, both common and preferred, began to advance, and by the time the road's board met again in the afternoon for final determination of various points in the proposed plan for the retirement of the preferred, the common had scored a maximum gain of nearly 5 points, and the preferred of fully 5 points. The plan itself had been foreshadowed in the columns of this newspaper yesterday morning, and the only novelty was the offer of 4½ per cent. bonds to preferred stockholders, with a cash bonus, as an alternative to the acceptance of 115, or the conversion into common shares. Union Pacific rose sympathetically, but the full effect of the announcement upon the securities concerned was, perhaps, not felt since the announcement itself was made just as the gong was sounding for the closing of business. In the same way the Government's report on the crops and the announcement of the bids for the city's bond offering were followed so quickly by the closing of the market as to render sober action upon them on the Stock Exchange practically impossible. It is doubtful, however, if the low price at which the bonds appear to have sold, something under 101, has any effect whatever since the state of affairs with the city's finances has been a matter of common knowledge in the financial district, where no expectation of any rush for yesterday's offerings was entertained.

As for the crop report, overnight consideration of this document will probably lead Wall Street to believe that it might have been a great deal worse, and that, considering the flood of damage reports during May, the condition of Winter wheat as disclosed is really good. The usual loss in condition in the month of May is something over 4½ points, but this year it has been only 2,8 points. The crop suggestion of 398,555,000 bushels, when added to the estimated yield of Spring wheat on an unusually good June condition, and an enlarged acreage, promises a total of all wheat of 652,000,000 bushels, which compares with a yield last year of only some 13,000,000 bushels more. Wheat prices reflected considerations of this kind apparently in their very modest advances for the day.

Money market conditions at home are unchanged, but abroad the Paris cheque on London advanced sharply, money was harder, the Bank of England bought gold freely, and the exchange markets moved away from the gold export point. On a special transaction $250,000 gold was engaged for Argentina.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 8.—The local market was strong throughout to-day's session, the copper shares being in especially good demand. Calumet and Arizona was the feature in the early trading, advancing three points. North Butte also came to the front, selling up to 61⅜ on what was believed to be Western buying. East Butte was active and well bought at around 14. The balance of the list is all fractionally higher. The market closed steady and with but little stock offering.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Confusion Among Traders.

It is not an entirely new experience for Wall Street anxiously to look forward to something, and then when it gets it not to know exactly what to do with it. That is the position in which a large number of operators found themselves yesterday on the publication of the Government crop report. Some construed the figures as favorable and other as unfavorable, with the result that the confusion of opinion was likewise reflected in much confusion in price movements on the Stock Exchange. Not to be carried off their feet by pessimistic utterances concerning the report coming from some quarters, it was pointed out in bull circles that the actual condition of the crops at present should be considerably ahead of that indicated by the Government report, as since the date of its compilation weather conditions have been unusually auspicious. Even allowing for no improvement, the bulls said, the combined yields of Winter and Spring wheat, as shown by the report, did not leave a great deal of ground for pessimism on the crop score. The bears, of course, took a different view of the situation.

Bond Syndicate Disrupted.

Word went around among the banking houses before noon that the syndicate which was arranging to bid for the entire issue of $40,000,000 city bonds had for some reason or other been disrupted, and for that fact were not expecting as large a volume of bids to be submitted for the issue as had been earlier expected. Consequently, the fact that the issue was less than twice covered came as no surprise to this element, though the financial community, as a whole, experienced some disappointment. Some bankers, laboring under the misapprehension that another large city bond issue would be brought out in a few months, it also developed, refrained from bidding at all, or submitted figures very close to par. This, it was thought, afforded a partial explanation as to why the bonds did not bring as high a price as the $10,000,000 sold early in March. When bankers heard of the announcement made at the Controller's office after the sale that there would be no further issue of this kind until next year, they were in a more optimistic mood concerning the future market price.

Rise in Southern Pacific.

The Southern Pacific stocks were the star performers in yesterday's market, the common at one time showing a gain of about 5 points, reaching a new high record at 135, while the preferred advanced a corresponding amount, rising to 137, though both stocks receded somewhat before the close. The fresh outburst of strength in these issues was attributed solely to the action of the board in calling in the preferred issue. Although details of the plan promulgated in connection with the matter were not made public until after the Stock Exchange closed, it was known early in the day that decisive action would be taken on the question at the Directors' meeting. The plan, as announced, was quite in line with expectations, and Wall Street for a long time has been of opinion that the Southern Pacific common dividend would be increased to a 7 per cent. basis, following the retirement of the preferred, though an advance in the dividend rate does not seem probable before Fall, in any event. That, at least, is the information coming from inspired sources, with the added suggestion that the matter may go over until next year.

Arbitraging Profits.

For several days a few houses have been making very neat profits in arbitraging between the Southern Pacific stocks. They have been buying the preferred and selling the common against it, in order to get the 3½ per cent. preferred dividend, which is payable July 15 to holders of record June 30. Inasmuch as the preferred gave them a call on the common, by reason of its convertible feature, they were amply protected in their technical short sales of the common, and by watching the market price of both issues closely they were able at times to turn from ½ to ¾ per cent. profit on the operation with no risk at all. When it became definitely known yesterday, however, that the preferred was to be called in right away, quite a crowd of brokers began to arbitrage, with the result that the profit was shortly wiped out. The preferred stock has been selling right along a couple of points above the common, simply because of the larger dividend about to be paid thereon.

Guessing on Reading.

Guessing on Reading continues to be one of the chief diversions of the traders, and from all accounts one man's conjecture would appear to be about as good as the next. One day the speculative fraternity is certain that the dividend on the common stock is to be increased to 6 per cent. and the second preferred is to be retired; the next there is some doubt as to the retirement end of it, and then there begin to be misgivings about even the common dividend increase. Meanwhile the assertions and contradictions serve to keep Reading to the front as a speculative favorite. Yesterday afternoon the doubters seemed to be increasing in number, but a few stanch friends of the stock still adhered to their conviction that there would be "something doing" over in Philadelphia soon which would please the common shareholders.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Directors of the Kanawha & Michigan have re-elected the officers.

Marvin Hughitt, President of the Chicago & Northwestern, returned to Chicago yesterday.

The Anglo-South American Bank yesterday engaged $250,000 gold coin for shipment to Argentina.

The members of the New York Coffee Exchange yesterday voted to close the Exchange on July 3.

Gold coin to the amount of $250,000 was withdrawn from the Sub-Treasury yesterday for shipment to Argentina.

A. G. Hackstaff, Vice President of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, will sail with his family on the Baltic on June 19 for Europe, to be absent three months.

The Soo Line certificates for Wisconsin Central preferred stock are likely to be issued in permanent form some time this week against the surrender of the temporary outstanding certificates.

At the annual meeting of the Laurium Mining Company, held in Boston yesterday, the following Board of Directors was elected: Rudolph L. Agassiz, Quincy A. Shaw, Alexander Agassiz, George A. Flagg, and Thomas L. Chadbourne.

At the recent annual election for the Board of Trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York the only change in the board was that of William H. Porter, President of the Chemical National Bank, who takes the place of Charles D. Dickey resigned.

Thomas J. Barnett, Vice President of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, who has been connected with the company for thirty-nine years, has resigned his position on account of his health. At the stockholders' meeting yesterday the retiring Directors were re-elected.

One hundred and twenty-five years ago today, June 9, the Bank of New York opened for business at 67 St. George's Square, afterward changed to Franklin Square, in the building known as the Walton House. The bank was organized March 15, 1784, with Gen. Alexander McDougall as President, and among the Directors were Alexander Hamilton, Samuel Franklin, Isaac Roosevelt, John Vanderbilt, and Joshua Waddington. After remaining in the Walton House for three years, the bank removed to 11 Hanover Square, and ten years later removed to its present location, corner of Wall and William Streets, June 22, 1797. With the exception of the Bank of North America of Philadelphia, organized in 1781, the Bank of New York is the oldest in the United States.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Stocks Dull and Irregular Within a Narrow Range of Prices.

AMERICAN TOBACCO GAINS

It Rises Nineteen Points to a New High Record for the Year—City Bonds Sell Lower.

The outside security market as a whole was dull and irregular yesterday, with the movement of prices confined within a narrow range. American Tobacco was an exception, however, selling up 19 points, to 450, the highest price of the year. Elsewhere in the industrial list there was a notable lack of feature, even Standard Oil closing unchanged. The copper shares were generally heavy, Ohio Copper losing 3-16, to 4 11-16; Miami ⅝, to 15, and United Copper ¼, to 10¾. Guggenheim Exploration was conspicuous for a gain of a point, to 200. In the bond list Atchison new 4s made a net gain of ¼, to 113¼, with earlier sales at 113⅝. Western Pacific 5s and Kansas City Southern 5s were firm and practically unchanged. New York City 4s, when issued, fell off 11-16, to 100⅝, being affected by the prices realized at the public sale in the afternoon.

Syndicate's 50 Per Cent. Dividend.

The winding up of the affairs of the Fort Washington Syndicate, as a result of the auction sale of its properties six weeks ago, has about been completed. So far the members of the syndicate have received their original investments, together with 6 per cent. interest, and a dividend of 50 per cent. There will be a further dividend upon the conversion into cash of a few mortgages still in the hands of the syndicate. The syndicate was organized in December, 1904.

Buyer for Thaw Residence.

Mrs. Benjamin Thaw has sold to Michael Dreicer the five-story American basement dwelling 1,046 Fifth Avenue, on lot 22 by 100, between Eighty-fifth and Eighty-sixth Streets. Mrs. Thaw acquired the property two years ago from W. W. & J. M. Hall. Last week the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street was sold to Bernard M. Baruch.

Plans have been filed for a six-story dwelling to be built by C. W. Luyster, Jr., on Seventieth Street, west of Madison Avenue. It will be 25 feet front and 70 feet deep, in the style of the French Renaissance, from designs by John H. Duncan. It is to cost $35,000.

Another Union Square Removal.

The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company has leased for Henry Phipps to the music publishing house of G. Schirmer 3 to 7 East Forty-third Street, a plot 60 by 100.5, adjoining the Temple Emanu-El on the east. The lessees, now at 35 Union Square West, will erect a suitable structure on the site for their own use.

Duncan Holdings, $2,470,000.

The eleven properties, including the southwest corner of Broadway and Fulton Street, 43 Park Place, and several parcels on Broadway and Fifth Avenue, north of Madison Square, were transferred yesterday by Susan W. SCARSDALE ESTATES
THE HOMELAND IN THE HILLS
Consider After your day's toil, what then? Is it "back to the flat"—crowded in among thousands of other dwellers, on a side street? No pure bracing air to invigorate your tired nerves and body; no inviting green fields to welcome you; no charm of Nature to feast your eyes upon; no freedom of life in the open.
Is this negative condition of life necessary or wise? You have one life to live—why not make the most of it?
Decide A home at Scarsdale Estates, in the Westchester Hills, just over the threshold of noisy New York, offers you the best there is in life at no greater cost than life in the city, where none of these joys are possible.
We have published a neat booklet which tells you more about this Homeland in the Hills; cost of home sites; improvements made and contemplated, etc., etc. A simple request by mail will bring it to you.

SALE TO HIS BANK GAVE GOW $150,000

Suit by International Trust Co. Against Him and Others Discloses the Transaction.

$257,545 AMOUNT INVOLVED

Plaintiff Concern Asserts That an Exorbitant Price Was Paid for a Building Lease.

The International Trust Company of 206 Broadway, which is in the course of liquidation, has begun suit in the Supreme Court against its former Directors, William Gow, John S. Jenkins, Nelson B. Burr, Stanley E. Gunnison, and William Maxwell and Frank W. Doolittle, as administrators of the estate of Howard Maxwell, to recover from them $257,545, the cash consideration paid by the company to William Gow in connection with the purchase of the premises known as the Evening Post Building, 206 Broadway.

The complaint sets forth that the International Trust Company was organized on Sept. 25, 1907, and that on Oct. 1, the same year, a certificate was issued by the State Superintendent of Banks authorizing it to conduct a banking business, which it did until Nov. 25, 1907, at 206 Broadway. That Howard Maxwell, Burr, Jennings, Gow, and Gunnison were elected as Directors, with Maxwell as President and Jennings and Burr as Vice Presidents.

It goes on to relate that Maxwell retained his position until Nov. 26, 1907, when he committed suicide, and that the other two officials acted until Dec. 14, 1907, when they were restrained from so doing by an action brought in Ulster County.

At a board meeting of the company, held on Oct. 10, 1907, the complaint continues, at which Maxwell, Gow, Jennings, Burr, and Gunnison were present, this resolution was adopted:

> Resolved, That the matter of the purchase of the interest of William Gow in the leasehold property of the building known as the Evening Post Building, at 206 Broadway, be referred to the Executive Committee with full power to purchase and pay for same.

This committee, appointed by the President, consisted of Maxwell, Gow, Gunnison, Burr, Jennings, and one Hutchinson. On Oct. 21, 1907, the Directors met again and unanimously passed this resolution:

> Resolved, That the President be authorized, on behalf of the company, to purchase from William Gow 3,012 shares of the capital stock of the Brooklyn Bank, and his equity in the leasehold property at 206 Broadway, for the aggregate sum of $——.

The amount, says the complaint, was left blank in the resolution. On the same day Gow assigned his lease in the premises to the company. The amount he received for this property is given as $457,545, made up as follows: Assignment made subject to the existing mortgage of $200,000; amount placed to credit of defendant Gow on the books of the company, $257,545. It is alleged that Gow immediately afterward drew a check on the company for this amount and applied the proceeds to his personal and private use.

According to the complaint the lease for the premises was for sixty-three years from May 1, 1874. For the first twenty-one years the rent was put at $30,000 a year, for the second twenty-one years at $35,000 a year, and for the last twenty-one years at a figure to be agreed on, or if this was impossible, the amount to be fixed by arbitration. The complaint goes on to say that Gow got an assignment of the lease from one Isaac Henderson on April 29, 1907, in consideration of the payment by Gow to Henderson of $307,000, made up as $200,000 existing mortgage and $107,000 in cash. Thus within six months of his purchase of the lease Gow resold it to the International Trust Company, of which he was a Director, at a net cash profit of $150,000.

The complaint on this point says:

> That the fair and reasonable value of the said lease at the time of its sale to the plaintiff by Gow did not exceed $200,000, and the defendants did not make, or cause to be made, any investigation or inquiry as to its value.

The company seeks to have the purchase of the property set aside and the return of the $257,545 cash paid for it, plus interest from Oct. 21, 1907, on the ground that the defendants wrongfully and negligently left the funds of the company unguarded.

The matter came before Supreme Court Justice Hendrick yesterday on the argument of a demurrer interposed by the defendants to the complaint, the ground being that the complaint does not disclose a sufficient cause of action. Decision was reserved.

ORPHANS' DAY AT LUNA PARK.

Fifteen Hundred Brooklyn Youngsters Enjoy a Great Day's Outing.

It was orphans' day at Luna Park yesterday, when something like 1,500 boys and girls from nine Brooklyn orphanages were taken to Coney Island in 150 automobiles provided by the Long Island Automobile Club.

To start the day right, every child got a toothsome breakfast. They were then loaded into the cars and the procession to the island began. The marshals of the parade were President Webb of the Automobile Club and Chairman W. P. Richardson. Edwin Melvin and H. C. Cavanaugh acted as couriers. Frederic Thompson devised a plan to keep the youngsters together. Each visitor wore a tag with a different color for each institution, and each tag had the owner's name printed on it. These also served as tickets of admission to all the shows in the park.

Every concessionaire did his utmost to make the children happy. After a luncheon at the park restaurant the youngsters began the rounds of the attractions. Nothing was missed. They shot the chutes, tumbled down the helter skelter, rode on the mountain torrent and the dragon's gorge, where several were too frightened even to scream; looked over the Prairie Belle and Jack Binns and his show, "Saved by Wireless," and, in fact, tried even the turbulent Virginia Reel.

The crippled children from St. Giles's Asylum were carried about by the attendants and placed on the various rides. In the excitement they forgot their crippled condition and shouted as noisily as the more vigorous ones.

When it came time to go home there wasn't one who said he had had enough, so a few more merry-go-round rides were thrown in for good measure. They all voted finally that it was the happiest outing they had had in many a long day. To-day a brigade of orphans from New York asylums will take in Dreamland.

DEL VALLE TRUST SET ASIDE.

Testator Sought to Tie Up Residuary Estate for More Than Two Lives.

D Cady Herrick, who was recently appointed referee to construe certain trusts created in the will of Antonio Yznaga del Valle, under which he tied up his residuary estate for a longer period than during two lives at his death, has filed his report and decides that such trusts are null and void under the laws of this State. This leaves about $356,980 available for immediate distribution among Mr. del Valle's three daughters, Consuelo, Dowager Duchess of Manchester; Lady Lister-Kaye, and Miss Emily Yznaga.

Mr. Yznaga's will was probated in Philadelphia on Sept. 10, 1892. It was only recently that his three daughters began suit to have these trusts construed, holding that the will ought to have been probated in this State instead of in Philadelphia, where such trusts are legal.

In his report Mr. Herrick recommends that the will be admitted to probate here, except that part of it which deals with the litigated trusts, which he declares are contrary to the statutes of this State and against public policy, inasmuch "as there is an attempt to suspend the absolute ownership of the residuary estate for a longer period than during two lives in being at the death of the testator."

The referee also decides that the testator died intestate as to his residuary estate, and that the plaintiffs—the three daughters—are entitled to an accounting for the principal thereof and any income not already distributed. He further decides that the three daughters are entitled in equal shares to the principal of the estate in the hands of the trustees.

WRECK BANKER'S CAR.

Three Out of Four Injured When It Smashes Into a Moving Van.

An automobile belonging to Albert McLave of the banking firm of Waterman & Co. of 67 Exchange Place, which had been taken out without Mr. McLave's permission, was wrecked between Hastings and Dobbs Ferry, near the Percy Rockefeller estate, early yesterday morning, and three of the persons who were in the machine were injured.

Daniel Cush, a chauffeur employed by Mr. McLave, was driving the machine. According to two girls who were in the car he was making about fifty miles an hour when it crashed head-on into a moving van.

Besides Cush those in the machine were Belle Daly of 16 Grove Street, Florence Jacobs of 2,371 Seventh Avenue, and Daniel Demson of 108 Morningside Avenue. Both of the girls say they thought they were returning to New York instead of speeding away from it when the accident happened. Demson, they said, was a friend of theirs, and he it was who introduced Cush to them earlier in the evening. They thought the machine belonged to Cush, and had no idea that he was somebody else's chauffeur.

It was about 7:30 when the two men and the girls left New York to appear in Yonkers about an hour later. In Yonkers they went to a dance hall, where they remained several hours. In that time Cush, they said, left the place. They supposed he had taken the machine back to New York. About 10:30, however, he returned and told the girls he was ready to take them home. Instead he went north, after telling the girls, they say, that he was returning home.

Miss Jacobs said the car was going so fast that both she and Miss Daly begged Cush to slow up, but he paid no attention to them. Finally, she added, they became so frightened that they begged Cush to let them out and they would take chances of getting back to New York on foot. Cush only laughed at them.

After passing Hastings the car went even faster. Near the Rockefeller place Miss Jacobs saw the van in the road and warned Cush to be careful. A moment later came the crash and the wrecking of the machine. The driver of the van and Miss Jacobs, she being the only one in the automobile who was not injured, thought that Cush, Demson, and Miss Daly were dead. They began shouting for help, and a farmer came out.

When the farmer saw what had happened he telephoned to Dobbs Ferry Hospital for an ambulance. Dr. Robert Denniston responded. Cush was found to be the only who was seriously injured. He was taken to the hospital under arrest for reckless driving. Demson was held on the same charge, and the girls were permitted to go home after they had promised to appear against the men when they are arraigned before Magistrate Hogan at Hastings in a few days.

Mr. McLave, it was said at his office, had warned Cush before not to take the machine out without permission. The banker knew nothing of the accident, it was added, until he read of it in yesterday's papers.

WOMAN'S AUTO RAN HIM DOWN

Workman Seriously Injured in Broadway and Miss Johnson Is Arrested.

Abraham Hollender, a laborer living at 17 East 112th Street, was hit by a runabout automobile at Broadway and Prince Street yesterday, and he was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital with a fractured skull. The runabout was being driven by Miss Maude L. Johnson of 161 Henry Street, Brooklyn. She was arrested on a charge of assault.

Miss Johnson was going north in Broadway, and as she approached the Prince Street crossing Hollender stepped out from the curb directly in front of her auto, she says. He was knocked down, and, his clothing catching in the running gear, he was dragged to the north side of Prince Street.

Neither Miss Johnson nor the two women who were with her in the automobile seemed to be aware of the accident until the shouts of persons on the sidewalk brought the auto to a stop. Patrolman Donohue called an ambulance from St. Vincent's Hospital and the injured man was hurried to that institution. It is said his condition is serious.

Donohue placed Miss Johnson under arrest and ordered her to drive to the Mulberry Street Police Station, the policeman hanging on behind the automobile. From the police station the prisoner was taken to the Tombs Court, where she was arraigned and released in the custody of her counsel for examination on Thursday.

AUTO ENGINEERS' PLANS.

By Incorporating They Purpose Improving Mechanism of Motor Vehicles.

The incorporation of the Society of Automobile Engineers was approved yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Guy. The object of the society is "to promote the arts and sciences connected with engineering and the mechanical construction of automobile vehicles; to hold meetings for the reading and discussion of papers relating to the construction and improvement of automobiles, and to promote social intercourse among its members; to publish and distribute papers and literature relating to the construction of automobiles, and to maintain an engineering library." There are to be twelve Directors and the principal office will be in New York.

The incorporators are Russell Huff of the Packard Motor Car Company of Detroit, Mich.; Andrew L. Riker of the Locomobile Company, Bridgeport, Conn.; Henri C. Chatau of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.; B. D. Gray of the American Locomotive Works, Providence, R. I.; R. C. Carpenter of Sibley College, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; Henry Hess of Philadelphia, F. J. Newman of Chicago, Alexander Churchward of 2 Rector Street, Horace M. Swetland, and Thomas J. Fay of 239 West Thirty-ninth Street.

ACCEPTS PLEA OF POVERTY.

Court Paroles Two Chauffeurs Convicted of Speeding—Second Offense.

The Justices of Special Sessions yesterday paroled two chaffeurs, John Mallett of 341 East Seventy-sixth Street and Albert Dugan of 218 West Sixty-ninth Street, both convicted of speeding as second offenders, until July 29. This unusual decision was reached owing to excuses given by the chauffeurs.

Mallett, who was convicted of speeding at 30 miles an hour on Columbus Avenue last November, said that his employer was in Europe and that he had no money of his own. Dugan gave a similar excuse, saying that he was out of work, had no money, and had a wife and children to support.

The two men will have to report to a probation officer at the expiration of their parole.

Blanche Ring's Ring Bails Chauffeur.

Miss Blanche Ring, the actress, bailed out her chauffeur, John Woodcock, with a ring worth $1,000, when he was arrested in Boston Road for speeding last night, while carrying Miss Ring to the theatre at which she is appearing in Manhattan. Miss Ring lives in Larchmont. She was delayed only a short time.

Taxicab Ordinance Vetoed.

Mayor McClellan vetoed yesterday the ordinance passed by the Aldermen providing for the regulation and inspection of taximeters by the city, and sent it back to the board with a recommendation that it be reconsidered together with the question of taxicab rates, which was stricken from the ordinance before it was passed. The board was in session, and immediately took up the resolution in its original form and resubmitted it to the Law Committee.

Another hearing will be held on the matter on Monday, and it is probable that the original ordinance will be passed by the board at its next meeting.

Mrs. William C. Wharton Ill.

LENOX, June 8.—Mrs. William C. Wharton is ill at the Curtis Hotel. On arriving there she was taken ill, and her condition was quite serious at one time. Fordham Morris is also sick at the hotel, and is attended by a corps of nurses and a private physician from New York.

CITY BONDS BRING A TRIFLE ABOVE PAR

$40,000,000 4s Average 100.71 and 100.14, but Controller Metz Is Satisfied.

NO BID FROM MORGAN & CO.

Coolness Between Bankers and Mr. Metz Over a Previous Sale—Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Get $6,500,000 Worth.

Controller Metz sold $38,000,000 of 4 per cent. 50-year corporate stock and $2,000,000 of 4 per cent. 10-year assessments bonds yesterday at prices averaging one of the lowest figures reached in a city bond sale for years. The corporate stock went at an average price of 100.71, giving an investment basis of 3.96, and the bonds at 100.14, on an investment basis of 3.98.

After the sale, however, the Controller expressed himself as well satisfied. "Taking everything into consideration, I think we did very well," he said. "Of course we would rather have received a little higher price, but it must be remembered that this is a very large issue and that it is 4 per cent. paper instead of 4½ per cent."

Deputy Controller McCooey supplemented the Controller's remarks by declaring: "With the present uncertainty as to the legal limits of the debt limit of the city and the condition of the market taken into consideration, I think the sale was most satisfactory."

A distinctive feature of the sale was the absence of J. P. Morgan & Co. from the list of bidders. It was learned that there is a definite reason for this in the form of somewhat strained relations of late between the Controller's office and the Morgan syndicate. It seems that after Mr. Morgan offered to guarantee the $40,000,000 issue of the Fall of 1907, and to take over the entire block of bonds if necessary, certain demands were made upon the Controller which resulted in a break in the cordiality between his office and Mr. Morgan's.

The financier's offer in the troublous times of 1907 saved the day and so far restored the public confidence in the sale of bonds at that time that bonds brought an average price of 102.06. On the strength of this service to the city, the Morgan syndicate concluded that it should have certain favors granted it in the purchase of revenue bonds across the counter. The demands were of such a nature that Mr. Metz refused to agree to them and informed Mr. Morgan that he and his friends could not dictate to the city. Since then the Morgan syndicate has been conspicuously absent from the lists of bidders at city bond sales. At the last sale in March a small bid was put in by Mr. Morgan, but it was on behalf of certain customers.

One hundred and eighty-six bids were received on the present issue, totalling approximately $691,000,000. The awards were divided between 140 bidders. The largest award was made to Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who asked for $10,000,000 and received $6,500,000 at prices running from 100.43 to 100.83. Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. and William Salomon & Co., bidding together, received $5,500,000 at prices running from 100.44 to 101.01. They bid on $6,500,000. Farson, Son & Co. asked for $5,000,000 and received $700,000 at prices running from 100.49 to 100.75. The highest award was to Daniel Huber, who received $15,000 at 103.

Other awards were:

| | Amount. | Rate. |
|---|---|---|
| Wm. N. Coler & Co.. | $350,000 | 100.41 to 101.23 |
| Bank of Savings...... | 1,000,000 | 100.65 |
| Royal Bank of Canada | 800,000 | 100.71 " 101.07 |
| J. A. Seligman & Co.. | 4,000,000 | 100.40 " 101.01 |
| Guaranty Trust Co... | 1,653,000 | 100.50 " 101.50 |
| Morton Trust Co...... | 1,000,000 | 100.50 " 100.75 |
| Simon Borg & Co..... | 250,000 | 100.51 " 100.63 |
| Chemical Nat. Bank.. | 300,000 | 100.49 " 100.69 |

A cable bid was received from Seligman Bros. of London, and they received $1,353,500 at prices running from 100.50 to 101.50. The deposit was put up by the Seligmans of this city. Harvey Fisk & Sons bid 100.27 for $2,500,000, but the figure was too low, and they received none of the award.

HATCH AND HIS BRIDE SAIL.

He Is Studying Dutch So as to Converse with Her Relatives.

Charles Phillips Hatch and his bride, who until her marriage at Grace Church a few days ago was Baroness Marie Wilhelmina Adrianna van Haeften, sailed on the steamship New Amsterdam of the Holland-America line yesterday, to spend their honeymoon in London, Paris, and Holland.

To fit himself for conversation with his wife's relatives in Holland Mr. Hatch said he had been studying the Dutch tongue. As a further concession to his bride Mr. Hatch took on her family name when he inscribed his name and hers on the ship's sailing list as "Mr. and Mrs. van Haeften Hatch." They were accompanied to the pier by Cyril Hatch, the brother of the bridegroom; Miss Alice Cruger Hasell, Miss Abby Stevens, and John W. Northrup.

PENSION FUND STILL LIMITED.

Mr. Carnegie Declines to Extend Benefits to Denominational Colleges.

Andrew Carnegie has refused for the present to admit to the pensions of the Carnegie Foundation the professors of denominational colleges. When he set aside $10,000,000 for pensioning aged professors and their widows and orphans State institutions and those identified with religious bodies were specially excluded from its benefits.

In March representatives of eleven leading denominational colleges drew up a memorial setting forth that many of these institutions were as free to all students as any other educational foundation, and that practically there was no difference between them and nonsectarian schools.

The petition was forwarded to Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, President of the foundation, and the Executive Committee reported it to Mr. Carnegie without definite recommendation. It was understood, however, that the committee took the view that they had no power to extend the scope of the benefaction in this way, and also that they were opposed to the suggestion made.

Mr. Carnegie has now returned the papers to the foundation with a letter from his secretary stating that he is not disposed to act on the matter at present. It was pointed out yesterday that Mr. Carnegie has consistently refused to interfere with the management of the foundation since he instituted it, but it is also believed that he does not look favorably on the request of the denominational colleges.

The regulations against the State institutions have, however, been so far relaxed as to permit the extension recently of the benefits of the fund to the Universities of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, and Toronto.

STATE MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Music Teachers' Convention to be Held in City College.

Final arrangements for the twenty-first annual convention and musical festival of the New York State Music Teachers' Association, which is to be held at the City College on June 29 to July 1, inclusive, were concluded last night at a meeting of local Vice Presidents held in the Aeolian Hall, 362 Fifth Avenue.

It will be the banner event in the history of the association according to the view of the seventy or eighty officials present last night. There are to be nineteen lectures by eminent musicians, including a lecture recital by David Bispham and nine concerts.

The admission fee to the series was fixed at $2 for members, and half this sum for music students and students at the public schools.

A Mighty Ruler, He

Who wisely rules himself.

Curious what a scrap you have now and then (maybe two or three "nows" and several "thens") with what the old Scotchman called the "deevelish part" of your make-up.

* * *

It's safe to say "you" and not miss the mark, for we all belong to the same lodge, and it seems to be a part of some great plan to try us out and see if we can thus earn the right to rule greater things.

* * *

Most every day some one of the many "warriors of the enemy" comes across your pathway and puts up a scrap to see if he can rule.

* * *

You must be well trained and alert or he will make you bend the knee or, perhaps, break a leg or permanently cripple you.

* * *

There are several of these "enemies" which can be named over, but for the purpose of this article let us speak of the narcotics, the family which includes morphine, whisky, coffee, cocaine, tea, tobacco, etc., all the same family, each member having a different degree of strength.

* * *

Now, coffee is perhaps one of the most plausible and deceitful of them all.

* * *

It has many friends, but coolly and cunningly knifes them, and they don't know where the blow comes from.

* * *

Many and many a poor, nervous wreck with weak heart, suffers by day and lies sleepless at night without suspecting that his "dear old friend," Mr. Coffee, is quietly pushing him along towards the silent city. No, coffee don't hurt everyone by any manner of means, but it does pick out the highly organized individuals and wrecks them by the score.

* * *

Perhaps the victim realizes it, but has fallen time and again in the battle and been whipped so often that he has given up and bowed the head to the chain of his master.

* * *

"I simply cannot give up my coffee," is the wail, and so day by day he grovels and the master stretches him a few turns tighter on the rack of suffering.

* * *

Make sure of one thing. Once you become conscious of the fact that a fight is on, suffering follows steadily until you are able to rule.

* * *

Then comes the reward—comfort, health and happiness for the victor.

* * *

It is good work to stand right up and smash away with a "mailed fist" but it's much more comfortable to whip Mr. Coffee by throwing him "right over the side of the mountain" and give his place to Postum.

* * *

A steaming, fragrant cup of this famous beverage has the clear seal brown color which changes to a rich golden brown under cream.

* * *

Oft times, remarkable changes quickly follow the victory of one's better self over a known enemy. Peaceful sleep, balanced nerves, stronger heart, and all the joy which comes after the removal of a drug and its replacement with natural food elements which old Dame Nature is only too glad to seize upon for the building material so badly needed and so long denied.

* * *

Well, here's best wishes to you, reader. Hope you don't get "licked" too often, it's weakening.
